Now Comes Bootleg Money.
An Inter-Language Wanted
Vare's Better Chance.
Dementia Americana.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1928.)

WE HAVE with us now "bootleg money," worrying the financiers that nest in Wall street.

Bootleg money comes from the West to share the plunder when "call money" is jacked up to 7 or 8 per cent, as at present.

Financial bootleggers cut the price a little and take some of the cream from those milking the stock gamblers in the holy name of "conservative speculation." New York's Clearing House Association held a special meeting yesterday to combat the evil.

At least a billion dollars have been sent to Wall Street from outside. You can't imagine how that hurt inside gougers that want the profits on usury for themselves.

DELEGATIONS of college men from different parts of the United States will record their voices on talking machines that scientists may study "American dialects."

The main thing is that all of them are understood from New York to San Francisco.

IN EUROPE, traveling 3,000 miles from Oslo to the southeast, you would hear Norwegian, Swedish, Danish, German, Czecho-Slovakian, Hungarian, Rumanian, Bulgarian, Turkish, Greek, and in Egypt, Arabic. Twelve different languages in a 3,000-mile trip, and not hear one-half the languages that Europe speaks.

EUROPE feels the need of an "inter-language." The sensible thing would be to make that language English, that all waiters and clerks need, and nearly all educated Europeans know.

National pride prevents that. So why not use Latin, once the universal learned language, making it possible for Erasmus to speak to Henry the Eighth, for all learned men in Europe talk to each other through their books? Nothing could be more hideous than a made to order language.

SENATOR VARE, most powerful politician in Pennsylvania, elected to the Senate but not seated, is felled by a stroke of paralysis.

If he recovers, as doubtless he will, the Senate in all probability will give him his seat. Such is human nature. Even Jim Reed, of Missouri, relentless fighter, would find it hard to reject a man with one-half of his body paralyzed.

That shows how far we have progressed beyond the wolves. With them a wounded comrade is immediately eaten.

DELPHIN DELMAS, Thaw's lawyer in the big murder trial, is dead. He will be remembered for his invention of the expression, "Dementia Americana," to describe Thaw's state of mind.

Delmas, who lived and died in California, was the greatest criminal lawyer since the days of John McSweeney and the star route trials.

A PARIS editor informs his readers that Gov. Smith speaks four languages. Many here did not know that.

But Republican members of New York's legislature know that Gov. Smith can speak at least one language plainly. The four languages that Gov. Smith is supposed by the French editor to speak are Irish, German, Yiddish and English.

He knows a few words of the first three and all of the fourth.

AN OLD gentleman, aged 104, arrived from Lithuania two days ago to see this country. He said he didn't believe in "spending all your life in one place," so he only lived 104 years in Lithuania. He danced a jig for reporters, said he had given up tobacco eight years ago, but "never found that liquor ever hurt anybody."

He will change his mind if he tries certain brands on sale in this country.

ANCIENT manuscripts are supposed to show that King Herod, not Pilate, ordered the crucifixion of Jesus. Herod was bad enough without trying to make his record worse.

Crucifixion was distinctly a Roman punishment, as many Christian martyrs learned with sorrow.

It was never a Jewish punishment. Jewish law stoned the condemned criminal.

Jerusalem was ruled by a Roman governor, Pilate, at the time of the crucifixion, and the Roman punishment was adopted.

ANOTHER airplane down somewhere on the Atlantic Ocean, a ship, as this was written yesterday afternoon, having just found it.

Capt. Courtney and his associates were able to broadcast their fall.

Fortunately no number of accidents can discourage flying courage.

One Kiss: $25

HONA KAROLENRUE

Hona Karolenrue, Russian actress, felt a bit useless about a charity bazar for widows and orphans and struck upon a happy plan to raise money. She sold kisses for $25 each. Two hundred kissed her and there you have $5,000!

COURTNEY DOWNED BY BLAZING PLANE

International News Service.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—Capt. Frank T. Courtney and his three companions were forced to land in mid-ocean and thus give up their trans-Atlantic attempt because fire broke out aboard their Dornier-Napier seaplane, the Whale, a radio message from Courtney received by his wife here today revealed.

"Fire broke out on our plane and we were forced to descend. We had an anxious time while our plane bobbed up and down on the sea for hours and were thankful when our rescuers came, but everything is all right now and there is no need to worry," was Courtney's reassuring message.

Courtney radioed to the Morning Star the following message, depicting the descent of his plane:

"We were picked up by the Minnewaska after a terribly harrowing experience. Our machine caught fire midnight Wednesday. We were flying at a height of 1,500 feet at the time. We landed in flames on the rough sea. Then we put out the fire and waited for aid."

Courtney's plane was abandoned, at sea.

ON WAY TO NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Thankful to have escaped the fate of others who unsuccessfully attempted to span the Atlantic, Capt. Frank T. Courtney, famous British flier, and his three companions were aboard the Atlantic transport liner Minnewaska en route for this port today.

The Minnewaska will reach here Monday morning. Radio reports from the liner indicated that Courtney, E. B. Hosmer, Montreal banker and backer of the flight; E. W. Gilmour, radio operator, and Fred Pierce, mechanic, all were in good condition despite their harrowing experience.

Heat Wave Takes 11 Lives

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—It wasn't the heat, it was the humidity (as the weather conversationalists put it) that made the Midwest miserable yesterday and early today.

Relief was promised through thundershowers today. Six deaths were attributed to the early August heat wave, three persons being overcome, while three others drowned.

The temperature top for yesterday was 91, and the humidity reading was 56 at its high point.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—A record-breaking temperature for August 2 caused one death and three prostrations here. The temperature rose 12 degrees in four hours and later reached a maximum

THOUSANDS OF CARDS SENT

Many thousands of postal cards have been mailed to registered voters throughout the Pittsburgh district by The Sun-Telegraph within the last few days asking for an expression as to presidential preference in the coming election.

The voting machine returns, while interesting and large in proportions, is not considered a general expression inasmuch as many people were not reached by the voting machine. The postal cards are being sent to a large percentage of registered voters throughout the Pittsburgh district.

However, the voting machines proved more than popular with hundreds of persons visiting them each day, asking questions of the young women attendants, learning how to cast a ballot on them, and watching the process of registering such a vote made by machine. The many thousands of persons who have had intimate and personal contact with the voting machines are expected to make a large vote in November for the adoption of this sort of system of voting, to succeed the present ballot box style of voting.

A 2-to-1 return was made on the machines yesterday, with Bridgeville showing the largest vote of the day. This is an average day's figure for the more than five weeks of voting machine balloting, and is given as an indication of the public's preference.

Results recorded on the machines yesterday follow:

FRED STONE HURT IN PLANE CRASH

FEAR NEW SHAKEUP IN POLICE RANKS

With an additional shakeup threatened, the Police Bureau today is in a state of demoralization with those untouched by the storm worried where the ax may fall next, and those who hit the toboggan in a state of dismay.

While most of those affected by the reductions are taking their "ups and downs" in good grace, some were active today in taking an appeal to the "higher-ups" to lessen the effect of the blows.

The aftermath of the shakeup is filled with speculation as to the motives behind it. While it is generally charged, and to a large extent agreed, that the move was designed to build the fences of Mayor Charles H. Kline looking to his campaign for re-election next year, other reasons are also assigned for the severe step of the police heads.

"For the good of the service," the stereotyped reason generally given, is accepted lightly.

"What service?" asked one of

Heeney Elopes, Report

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Tom Heeney, erstwhile contender for the world's heavyweight championship, is honeymooning with the former Marion Dunn, of Port Washington, L. I., according to an unconfirmed report circulated today.

Heeney is said to have eloped to the little village of Ladentown, near Sufferin, N. Y., to be married by P. Margulies, justice of the peace and proprietor of the general store.

Eddie Harvey, brother of Charlie Harvey, Heeney's manager, had no warning of Tom's matrimonial plans.

"But it's a safe bet that it's true," he said. "Tom and Miss Dunn have

Vare Rests Well

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 3.—(AP.)—A statement given out here at 12:15 today regarding the condition of Senator-elect William S. Vare, who suffered a stroke Wednesday night, signed by Dr. John J. Shaw, who was assigned to the case as resident physician, follows:

"Senator Vare is making a good battle. His temperature has dropped to 99 degrees, slightly above normal. His pulse is excellent for a man in his condition. His restlessness has disappeared. He is in a condition to recognize persons in the room and a slight improvement is noticed in the paralytic condition of the left leg. Altogether I regard his condition as slightly improved. It is now just a case of waiting."

Mrs. Vare, who was last night in a highly nervous state, is considerably better, the doctor stated.

His daughter, Miss Mildred Vare, said that he had spent a "fairly comfortable night," but that his condition remained unchanged. He was conscious, but very drowsy and able to take but little nourishment. His three physicians were in almost constant attendance upon him during the night.

Dr. Ellwood R. Kirby, of Philadelphia, Vare's personal physician and friend, declared after a consultation last night with Dr. Edwin Strecker, of Philadelphia, and Dr. J. C. Marshall, of this city, that the Senator-elect had practically lost all muscular control.

AUTO VIOLATION LAID TO PITTSBURGH PAIR

KITTANNING, Pa., Aug. 3.—John Coutts and Miss Mytle Gould, both of North Side, Pittsburgh, will appear in court August 7 on charge of violating the automobile laws. Motor Patrolman Pickles claims Coutts permitted Miss Gould to operate his automobile without a driver's license.

FIFTH AVE. RESTAURANT RANSACKED BY THIEVES

Thieves ransacked the restaurant of Friedman & Stone, 809 Fifth avenue, last night and took merchandise, mostly cigars, valued at $125, and $23.75 in cash. The cash box of a telephone also was broken open. The robbers entered by cutting a screen on a rear window.

DAUGHTER SEES HIM DIVE 100 FEET

International News Service.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 3.—Fred Stone, noted actor, was hurt today when an airplane in which he was flying went into a tail spin 100 feet aloft and crashed. Stone's daughter, Dorothy, witnessed the accident. He was taken to a hospital here for treatment.

Stone was taking a solo flight from the new state aviation field at Groton, opposite this city, when the accident occurred. Stone had been aloft a short time and was returning when suddenly his motor went dead and the machine slipped down.

The accident occurred over a farm lot beyond the landing field and the machine went into that lot instead of into the regular field.

Attendants at the hospital had not determined, early this afternoon, the extent of Stone's injuries. It was understood, however, that both legs were broken and that he received head injuries.

Snake Nearly Squeezes Man To Death

Attacked by a 6½-foot blacksnake while picking berries in Van Thiel hollow, near Tarentum, yesterday, Charles Roewicz, of Natrona, narrowly escaped being squeezed to death. The reptile coiled itself around his body and was seeking his throat when his cries brought companions to his rescue. They pried the snake loose from Roewicz and killed it with clubs.

Bond Rate Raised by County

The County Commissioners voted today to raise the rate of interest on county bonds soon to be issued from 4 to 4¼ per cent.

The motion was made by Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, who said the present condition of the bond market would make it impossible to get bids on a four per cent basis, according to information furnished him by bankers. It would be necessary to increase the interest rate, Armstrong continued, if bonds were to be sold promptly and the proposed improvements made.

This referred particularly to an issue of $5,300,000 of bonds, part of the $43,000,000 issue that the voters recently approved, the sale of which was authorized two days ago. Four and one-fourth percent was the interest rate on $18,000,000 of the $29,000,000 bonds of the 1924 issue.

5 IMMORTAL FIGURES IN THORNTON WILDER NOVEL

Five charatcers that Time will have a difficult task erasing are the five big characters in "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," prize winning novel that will be complete in Sunday's Sun-Telegraph.

For Thornton Wilder, the author of this Pulitzer prize winner, has penned them so well that even the fleetest reader of this acclaimed novel will be deeply impressed.

And if literary critics can be called authorities this is the test of immortality—the ability to get real people out of life into the pages of a book.

But perhaps the most worthwhile phase of "The Bridge" lies in its keen insight into the moving force of life—which Wilder conclusively proved is Love.

Five characters, five real people, exemplify the five shades of the most discussed element in human life—and Wilder says:

"For the bridge between life and eternity is love."

This novel, praised as one of the greatest ever written by an American, is free with Pittsburgh's most complete paper—The Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS-N. Y. SEA FLIERS HEAD INTO STORM

International News Service.

LORIENT, France, Aug. 3.—The Polish fliers, Maj. Louis Idzikowski and Maj. Casimir Kubala, in their plane the Marzaley Pilsudski, were reported out over the Atlantic Ocean at 8:10 a. m. (local time), by the Lorient wireless station.

The fliers are headed for the United States—probably planning to land at New York.

They were reported flying into a storm, soaring in the direction of the Azores.

The naval prefecture announced that the coastal vessel Penguin noticed a white airplane about 600 feet in the air 60 miles Northwest of Lorient, in latitude 47 North and longitude 4.30 West. This was believed to be the Poles' plane.

Sighting of the plane was just three hours and 21 minutes after the machine took off from Le Bourget. The 8:10 A. M. mentioned by the Penguin is Greenwich time, or 9:10 A. M. Paris daylight time. The machine left Bourget at 5:49 A. M. Paris daylight time.

Lorient is approximately 300 miles from Le Bourget and sighting of the Polish plane sixty miles off the coast would indicate that the fliers were making excellent time.

The trawler reported that fog

Lost Their Fun, But Got Town Big Factory

CERTAIN citizens of Meadville were in evening dress recently, about to set out for a social affair that had long been joyfully anticipated, when urgent messages reached them, bidding them attend immediately a meeting of a Chamber of Commerce committee. A matter affecting the welfare of Meadville had arisen and required prompt action. So, instead of dining and dancing, they spent the evening in their formal attire in an office, discussing a community problem. Meadville is to get a great plant, covering 305 acres and employing 2,500 men and women, for the manufacture of rayon, as the fruit of that meeting.

Perfect teamwork by the civic leaders and the sacrifice of selfish personal interests for the common good are changing Meadville from a quiet college town to a busy industrial city. It is a remarkable example of what can be accomplished by co-operation.

The story is told, with illustrations, in a page devoted to Meadville in The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph of next Sunday.

VETS' BODIES SAVED FROM CREMATORY

Rates Cut to One-Fourth :-: Air Mail Booms Throughout Nation :-: Local Volume Increases

INCREASE

Air mail throughout the country is on the boom with the start of new rates, authorized by Congress, reducing the postage from 10 cents a half-ounce to 5 cents an ounce. The reduction is 75 per cent. This is a typical plane-loading scene at a busy mail airport.

VARIED

The air mail plane, of course, carries other things than just ordinary mail. For example, this woman undertook to make a cross-country journey by plane and carried her baby with her! This is the end of the flight.

TERMINALS

In Pittsburgh alone the increase in volume of air mail is expected to be about 300 per cent, says Postmaster George W. Gosser. On the first day, it was, conservatively, 20 per cent. Throughout the country, increase in the past few years has resulted in construction of terminals such as this one in many cities.

WOMAN IS FREED IN KIDNAPING PROBE

When Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court failed to unravel the alleged kidnaping of Lillian Detrich, 14, of 725 Ridge avenue, West Park, he held Mrs. Rose DuFrayne, 25, of 600 Arch street, North Side, for further investigation and turned the case over to the detective bureau. She later was discharged. Mrs. DuFrayne had been charged by the girl's parents with enticing a minor child.

Testimony of Mrs. DuFrayne, supported by the story of the victim and two other witnesses, was to the effect that Lillian approached Mrs. DuFrayne at Federal street and West Park way early Wednesday morning, and said she was lost. She said her home was in Squirrel Hill. Mrs. Cecelia Brennan, of West South avenue, approached and the child's plight was explained. Later Paul Hosenfeld, of East street, driving an auto, appeared and when the situation was explained he volunteered to take the girl home. In Squirrel Hill, Mrs. DuFrayne said, the girl could not point out the house where she was employed and asked to be taken home. In West Park, the girl said she could not tell how to reach Ridge avenue and was taken to the McKees Rocks Police Station.

Mrs. DuFrayne's story was corroborated by Mrs. Brennan and Hosenfeld. The girl in her testimony said she had come to Pittsburgh last Tuesday, flirted with a man in an auto and took a ride. She said after parting from her companion on the North Side, she rented a room and then took a walk, and met Mrs. DuFrayne to whom she related a story about being lost.

Magistrate Brandon insisted the girl was not telling a true story. About three months ago the girl disappeared and was found later by police. According to the police, Mrs. DuFrayne's picture is in the rogue's gallery. It is alleged she was arrested in Youngstown, O., on a bad check charge.

From the position given it is assumed that the Poles left the French coast between the Gulf of Morbihan and Lorient.

OFF AT 5:49

— International News Service.

PARIS, Aug. 3.—Undeterred by the news that Capt. Frank T. Courtney and three companions had been forced down on the Atlantic, the Polish fliers, Maj. Louis Idzikowski and Maj. Casimir Rubala, hopped off from Le Bourget Air Field at 5:49 a. m. (12:49 a. m., New York daylight time) today, on another trans-Atlantic attempt with New York as their ultimate goal.

Burdened by the weight of 1,200 gallons of fuel, which the fliers calculated would take them more than [illegible] miles without a stop, the silver gray biplane Morzalek Pilsudski, taxied more than three-quarters of a mile across the field before it lifted into the air.

Idzikowski was at the controls. A huge crowd which had been waiting at the field for several hours cheered wildly as the plane rose in the air and headed southwest for the coast.

The Marzaley Pilsudski is an [illegible] metal biplane powered by a [illegible]horsepower Lorraine Dietrich motor. Its wing spread is 65 feet and cruising speed about 100 miles an hour.

Both aviators have had long experience. During the early part of the war they fought on opposite sides, Idzikowski fighting in the [illegible] armies and Kubala on the side of Austria. Both learned flying during the war and joined the Polish air force when Poland became an independent country.

of 88 degrees. Heretofore the highest temperature recorded for August 2 was 79 degrees in 1918.

FRANKLIN, Pa., Aug. 3.—Many offices were closed here early today to permit persons to seek relief from the heat, intensified by the high humidity. The mercury leaped to 96 yesterday and was expected to reach that mark today, unless predicted thundershowers have a cooling effect.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 3.—Temperatures soared in the Great Lakes area again today after one of the warmest days of the summer. Three heat deaths and one drowning were recorded yesterday and last night. One of the heat victims was Robert M. McGee, 45. John Nagey, 19, was drowned in Lake Erie.

NEW POLICE SHAKEUP SEEN

the demoted, "service to the organiaztion or service to the public?"

Every indication points to the candidacy of Mayor Kline for reelection and there has been a general expectation for months that he will be forced to oppose President of Council James F. Malone. The gossip that the shakeup was a blow aimed at Malone is not fully credited by those who have analyzed the demotions and promotions.

They declare undoubtedly politics played a major part in the steamrollering, but that other causes, such as jealousy in the department, overzealousness and the loquacity of several officers had a part. Political friends of the administration profited by the changes, with State Senator James J. Coyne, city Republican chairman, credited with obtaining a goodly share of the rewards. He is the especial sponsor of Police Inspector James F. Hoey, who supplanted John P. Clancey, demoted to detective.

While the politicians are engaged in their customary shifting for advantage on the political checkerboard, the public may look on as usual, ignored and somewhat bewildered. There is a general feeling that the protection of the lives and safety of the taxpayers are subordinated to political expediency. One report was that prominent Jewish leaders have protested to Mayor Kline against the dropping of Charles Rosenblatt, possessed of an unusual record during more than 20 years for efficiency and industry.

A prominent lawyer today expostulated against the removal of Peter Conners from the detective squad.

"Here is an officer who was admittedly one of the very best heads the homicide squad ever had," he said. "When he was dropped from the homicide squad, members of the district attorney's staff complained. They declared that a number of first degree murder verdicts have been lost through the absence of his careful and complete preparation of cases. Now he is further reduced, removed entirely from the detective division."

POLISH FLIERS

The "Marshal Pilsudski" today is flying rapidly over the Atlantic Ocean, from east to west—Paris to America—bearing the two Polish fliers, Majs. Louis Idzikowski and Casimir Kubala. They plan to fly over the Azores and the Bermudas, so that emergency landings can be made, and they "may land almost anywhere in America."

ESCAPED PRISONER CAPTURED AT MINE

Ralph McCreery, 20, of Derry, Pa., who escaped from a United States marshal while being taken from Knoxville, Tenn., to the National Training School for Boys at Washington, was arrested yesterday at Cresson, Pa., where he was working in a mine. McCreery has been sentenced for transporting a stolen automobile. He will be taken to the school by Deputy United States Marshal John Lowers.

Farm Fee Barred —Smith

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Gov. Smith put his foot down today on the equalization fee feature of the McNary-Haugen farm bill, declaring that it was unacceptable to him.

The Democratic presidential nominee reiterated that he recognized the principle of controlling the sale of agricultural surpluses, the cost to be borne by the group benefitted, but he has no definite plan in mind for carrying out that principle.

Smith was led into a brief discussion of his farm relief views today by newspapermen who sought more light on his statement issued yesterday after his conference with George N. Peek, Illinois farm leader, who has swung to his support.

One of the reporters, who visited the nominee in his fourteenth floor suite at the Biltmore, asked whether in stating "control of the sale of the agricultural surplus is recognized by our platform as an essential need, the cost to be imposed on the unit benefitted," he had indorsed the equalization fee proposition, which President Coolidge contended was unconstitutional.

REFERS TO EDITORIAL

"The lead editorial in this morning's New York World sums up my views correctly," Smith responded.

A reporter furnished him a copy and the nominee read aloud:

" 'We take it that Gov. Smith's declaration comes down to this:

" '(A)—That the Democratic party is committed to the principle of controlling the sale of agricultural surpluses, the cost to be borne by the group benefitted.

" '(B)—That the plan for applying this principle contained in the McNary-Haugen bill is not acceptable to him.

" '(C)—That he has no plan of his own for carrying out that principle.

" '(D)—That he promises after election to work out such a plan.' "

That was all the Democratic candidate had to say on farm relief.

He disclosed that he had invited Senator Walsh, of Montana, to confer with him on the campaign outlook, and that while the Senator had accepted the invitation no date had yet been fixed for their meeting.

After his return this morning from an overnight cruise in Long Island Sound on the yacht of William H. Todd, Smith conferred with Fred W. Johnson, of Rock Springs, Wyo., who will have charge of regional headquarters at Salt Lake City.

Johnson, in conversation with newspapermen, said farm relief and waterpower were greater issues in the mind of westerners than prohibition. He also said that Smith's opponents in the West, in their campaign, were emphasizing his alliance with Tammany Hall.

VETS' BODIES SAVED FROM CREMATORY

Cremation of the unclaimed bodies of two World War soldiers was canceled at the morgue today when the fact of their military service was disclosed in papers found in their clothing.

The two were scheduled to have been cremated along with others, following last rites for 13 bodies today in the morgue chapel by the Rev. Franklin Beiswenger, of the Bethlehem Lutheran Church, Excelsior street. When it was found they were former soldiers, Coroner McGregor asked that the county be notified to provide funds for a fitting burial, as provided by law.

George Stephen, 36, died in Lane's Hotel, 118 Anderson street, of natural causes, July 11. A copy of discharge papers revealed that he had served in France from November, 1917, to April, 1919, with the U. S. Engineers.

The other, William Sinkler, 22, Negro, of West Newton, Pa., was killed, July 5, when struck by a train at McKeesport. Papers showed he had served at Camp Lee with a sanitary outfit, but there was nothing to indicate whether he had been overseas.

JURY SAVES MORTGAGED HOME FOR AGED COUPLE

"The plain fact is that these defendants gave or sold their daughter to the old man while she was still a child," declared Judge Elder W. Marshall today in refusing a new trial to Mrs. Gertrude Braun, Mt. Washington, who had sought to oust her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Rohrback, from their North Side home.

It was testified in trial of the case that the Rohrbacks induced their daughter, Gertrude, when she was 15, to marry August Braum, 71, of Elizabeth, with the agreement that he should give her a mortgage for $6,475 on her parents' home. The aged man died and she married A. E. Braun.

The daughter sought to foreclose the mortgage, but her parents contended the agreement with the aged man provided they were to live in it the remainder of their lives, without paying interest. The jury upheld the parents.

"You'd better ask Tom that," he replied.

"Isn't it a matter of record?"

"Not yet," was the ambiguous reply.

Heeney and his bride were reported to have sought seclusion here in an apartment listed in the name of Isaac Rosenblum.

At that address the telephone was answered by a man with a broad English accent. It sounded suspiciously like the voice of Tom Mortimer, Heeney's trainer.

"Mr. Heeney used to live here," the voice admitted, "but at present I think he is on his way to the coast."

He began his Wall street career at the age of 15 when 1 was employed by the brokerage firm of Tilghan Rowland & Co. as a runner. He rose to a partnership in the firm 13 years ago, when he became a member of the exchange. The firm name was later changed to Carter & Co. He leaves his wife and a daughter.

DEMOLISHED

ONE KILLED

A man believed to have been H. C. Meador, 30, Freemont street, McKeesport, identified by morgue officials from a card in his clothing, was killed. The car in which he and the Flaherty sisters were riding was struck by a street car near 1812 Second avenue, when, police say, the auto passed another street car.

BUILDING TAKES FORM

How many stories high will be the University of Pittsburgh's "Cathedral of Learning?" Some say 34; 28 has been announced; originally, it was planned for 52. But today, when the query was made at the chancellor's office, State Hall, University of Pittsburgh campus, the only answer available was an uncertain one about "30 stories, I think, but I'm not sure." After these years of planning and these months and months of digging, the building is beginning to take form on its site across from Hotel Schenley as the steel rises from the piles sunk to support the completed building. This photograph, taken from across Bigelow boulevard, also shows surrounding civic buildings.

"Pittsburgh is a city of surprises."
—ROYAL CORTISSOZ.

ROYAL CORTISSOZ, journalist and art critic, born in New York City, He is art editor of the New York Tribune and has lectured extensively on art. Author of "American Artists," "Art and Common Sense," "Augustus Saint-Gaudens," "Life of Whitelaw Reid," and other books. He Lives in New York City.

ROYAL CORTISSOZ

Pittsburgh is a city of surprises. You hear of it as a smoky place and therefore, presumably, rather drab; but when you see it for the first time you discover with delight that its situation makes it one of the most picturesque places in the world—and the smoke only adds to its charm.

Then you hear a lot about its steel mills, which ought to make it prosaic; but Carnegie Institute is dedicated to things of the mind and you go there year after year to see beautiful pictures.

I never visit Pittsburgh without a sense of stimulus and vital interest.

(From letters collected by Roy Jansen of Pittsburgh.)

OIL EXPLOSION DEATH TOLL REACHES 18

VINCENNES, Ind., Aug. 3.—(AP.)—With the death of seven men during the night and this morning, fatalities from the explosion of a steam still at the Indian Refining Company Wednesday at Lawrenceville, Ill., reached a total of 18.

Indications were that four other men would not survive the day. Physicians also said 10 others might not recover.

Edward Childress, 38, died shortly after 8 o'clock this morning. Others who died during the night were: Forrest Lawson, 24; Clarence Pace, 29; Walter Gullie, 49; J. L. Berry, 42; Edward Spangler, 49, and Ed Hinton, 23.

N. E. Becks, Knox county coroner, who made an investigation of the blast, said he would give a verdict in the disaster later, but indicated that he found nothing wrong at the plant and that the explosion was purely accidental.

Swimmer's Plunge Fatal

Diving into the city swimming pool at Market and Thirteenth streets, McKeesport, Louis Bartos, 15, of Strawberry street, McKeesport, was drowned last night.

Other swimmers brought him to the surface, but a two-hour effort to resuscitate him proved futile.

It is believed the boy struck his head on the bottom.

AUTHORIZE ADVERTISING FOR CALIFORNIA AVE. BIDS

County Solicitor W. Heber Dithrich was authorized to present to the grand jury plans for changing three township roads to county roads. One is the Simpson-Howell road, Elizabeth township. The cost of improving this road is estimated at $209,300, of which the county will bear $180,800. Another is the Warrendale and Bayne extension, Munhall, estimated at $323,600. This entire amount is to be paid by the county. The third is the Mowry, Gilhall and Concharne Mills road in Jefferson township. The county will bear $199,400 of the total cost of $224,400. WOMAN, SHOT, FOUND BY ROADSIDE

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 3.—The nude body of a young woman, with a bullet hole in the right temple, found near Mulholland road, presented a mystery to authorities today. The young woman apparently had been dead about three months.

A white gold wedding ring furnished police with their only clew. A number, 1047, similar to those scratched by pawnbrokers, was on the inside of the ring. An immediate check of pawnshops was planned by the police.

The body was found late last night about 100 feet from the highway. Police believe the girl had been killed elsewhere and the body transported in an automobile.

The girl was a blonde, with bobbed hair.

1 Killed, 2 Hurt in Crash

Harry C. Meador, of 1409 Fremont street, McKeesport, was killed, and Anna Flaherty, 36, and her sister, Theresa, 24, both of 5441 Second avenue, injured last night when an automobile in which they were riding crashed headon into a Homestead, Braddock and East Pittsburgh street car in Second avenue.

According to police, Meador attempted to pass another automobile. The street car was derailed and the passengers showered with broken glass.

Cut and bruised about the arms and head when run down by an auto, Elmer Schlagel, 10, of 918 Deely street, is a patient in Homestead Hospital. He was struck in Murray avenue last evening by the auto of Dr. E. V. McCormick, of Homestead.

Loses Arm, He'll Be Lawyer

"Well, I can be just as good a lawyer with one arm as two," is the smiling philosophy of 9-year-old Jack Coffroth, Bellevue boy, who will go through life maimed because of a fall from a cherry tree June 28. Jack is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John K. Coffroth, of 24 South Starr avenue.

It took blood transfusions and the skill of a corps of medical workers to save the boy, whose accident occurred when a rope by which he was hanging gave way and fell several feet, breaking his arm. Self-sufficient and spunring "babying," Jack although he returned from the hospital just a week ago, dresses himself and is learning to perform amazing feats with his right arm.

His grandfather and great grandfather were lawyers. That is why he has made up his mind that law is the field for him, even though his father is an insurance man. His mother describes the accident and pathetic maiming of her boy as "almost like a death in the family." But Jackie says:

"Oh, now mother, you've got me—almost all of me. And I'll make you proud of me some day. Suppose it had been both arms or my legs!"

WOMAN'S $150 COW IS SEIZED FOR $7 DEBT

"Bessie," a $150 cow, has been ruthlessly taken from her owner, Mrs. Flora Michenka, of 31 School street, Universal, all because Mrs. Michenka couldn't pay a $7 grocery bill, she told George W. Murren, chief of county detectives, today.

Constable Samuel H. Anderson, of Justice of the Peace August Miller's office at Universal, levied on Mrs. Michenka's property to compel payment of the bill owing to Thomas Predic, Universal, and when the $7 was not forthcoming, led Bessie away, she declared. The woman is the mother of 10 children, five, ranging in age from 2 to 12, being at home. Murren assigned Detective Samuel McWilliams to make an investigation.

MISSING YACHT SAFE

U. S. RACERS ARRIVE OFF SPANISH COAST

SANTAMDER, Spain, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—The American yacht Azara, missing contender in the trans-Atlantic race for the King's cup, is safe off the Spanish coast and making her way slowly to this port. All on board are well.

The yacht was spoken first by a government gasoline launch whose skipper talked with Commodore Enrique Careaga, Spanish observer of the trans-Atlantic race, and an officer of King Alfonso's royal yacht.

Commodore Careaga explained to the launch's skipper that the delay to the Azara was caused by adverse weather, she having been becalmed for some time on her voyage.

E. E. Greiner and Ted Rippengill were the first of the Azara crew to come ashore. They said they had an excellent breeze during the first six days of navigation, then they had five days of bad weather. From July 23 they encountered calm, not being able to move an inch for hours and hours. It took them until July 30 to enter Spanish waters under the impetus of light breezes.

At one stage they were four days without moving from the same position under a suffocating sun.

DAREDEVIL PLANE STUNTS FORBIDDEN ARMY AIRMEN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—A ban has been placed on Army aviators participating in exhibitions of daredevil stunts such as wing walking and performances of a similar nature.

"The day of the use of the airplane as a medium for exploitation by daredevils of various sorts has passed," said Assistant Secretary Davison in issuing the prohibition order. "The sooner foolish airplane stunts are entirely discontinued the better for aviation."

The policy of sending Army planes to dedications of airports and similar events would be continued, Mr. Davison said, only on the implicit understanding that daredevil performers would be barred.

"This does not, of course, apply to legitimate flying acrobatics at proper altitudes," explained the Army air secretary, "but merely to exhibitions such as trapeze work, wing walking, changing from one plane to another in the air, transferring from automobile to airplane and stunts of that character.

"Not by the longest stretch of the imagination can performances of that kind be claimed to be of the slightest possible benefit to aviation.

WIDOW CLAIMS HALF MILLION PLEDGE DUE

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Harry F. Sinclair, oil magnate, is being sued for $544,000 by Mrs. Janie Clay Zevely, widow of Col. James W. Zevely one of Sinclair's attorneys, stock of the Mammouth Oil Company. The suit was disclosed here when Sinclair's attorneys asked for a bill of particulars.

Mrs. Zevely says that in July, 1922, her husband turned over to Sinclair 32,000 shares of the company's stock valued at the amount sought in the suit, on Sincliar's promise to purchase it or return it within a reasonable time. Sinclair failed to keep his promise, the widow says, despite repeated requests that he do so.

Sinclair's answer is a general denial of Mrs. Zevely's charges, and his request for a bill of particulars asserts the Zevelys never asked him for the stock.

In his answer Sinclair said he once agreed to give Zevely a block of Mammouth stock but the gift was conditional upon the success of the oil enterprise.

"Certain senatorial investigations," the answer read, "affected the value of the company's stock and court litigation which turned out unsatisfactorily to Sinclair, made the sock of no value at all.

DAM VETO IS STUDIED

FLOOD EXPERTS HERE TO SCAN U.S. SURVEY

Resolved to continue its efforts in behalf of government aid in flood control for the Monongahela and Allegheny valleys, the flood commission of Pittsburgh has asked Gen. Edgar Jadwin, chief of United States engineers, for the complete text of the report of the survey recently conducted on those streams and their tributaries. The flood commission's action followed the notice broadcast by Maj. Jarvis J. Bain, district engineer in Pittsburgh, declaring that adverse conclusions had been reached by the engineers after the preliminary examinations and survey.

When the Flood Commission receives the report as to the practicability of the engineering features of the proposed flood control plans, the matter will be taken before the Rivers and Harbors Committee of Congress, according to W. M. Jacoby, secretary of the commission.

A letter was dispatched to Gen. Jadwin yesterday, Jacoby stated. He added that Maj. Bain's statement was no surprise and was issued as a routine matter at the local office of the corps of engineers.

ROADHOUSE HIT BY DRY AGENTS

Dropping in unexpectedly at the Five Mile House, Bellevue road and Perry highway, last night, prohibition agents surprised Charles H. Sauer, the alleged proprietor, and confiscated 120 pints of beer and a small quantity of whisky and wine. Sauer was arrested.

Two stills were seized in raids on dwellings in Mifflin township and Rankin. An automobile seized on the Perry highway 10 miles from Mercer, yielded 24 pints of moonshine, according to the agents, who reported that they found John McCampbell, 20, and John Harmon, 18, both of East Brady, in the car. Both youths were arrested.

POLICE DIZZY SOLVING THEFT AT CAROUSEL

Police and detectives are apt to get "dizzy" trying to solve Riverview Park's latest "crime."

Someone stole about $75 worth of candy from the confectionery stand in the city-owned "merry-go-round" yesterday. Police are running around in circles, according to latest reports.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

COMPLETION

—By—
EUDORA R. RICHARDS

ABOUT everything else Helen was truthful, but concerning her orphanage origin she practiced an evasion that savored of hypocrisy. Life had been rather hard for Helen. College had been hard—with her course spread over five years to afford time for dining room service and work in the dean's office. That the girls knew about the orphanage was hard, too. So when the degree was attained she sought a position to teach so far away from the old scenes that no one would be likely to discover the unpleasant secret.

Now she sat with Donald Mabie before the little coal fire in her landlady's living room and faced a problem which, strange to say, she had never anticipated. Donald had asked her to marry him, and there were two reasons why she couldn't. To vindicate her existence she had to succeed in some line of work. She wouldn't marry any man without telling him that she had been reared in an orphanage—and she found the thought of telling exceedingly painful. Then suddenly Donald's arms were about her, and she knew that she loved him, that above all things she wanted his love.

"In June, sweetheart, when school is out, we'll be married," Donald whispered, tightening his hard hold upon her.

Helen freed herself.

"Oh, I'm a fool," she said. "I can't marry you—can't marry at all."

"But you love me?" Donald was incredulous.

"Yes, that's the horror of it—I love you."

"Then—"

"Then go away and let me think. Perhaps tomorrow night I can explain."

So he left—and Helen ascended to the bleak little room where a cold trash burner greeted her inhospitably. She made a quick fire. Because she wanted to give herself time, she attacked the paper she had been working on for a year and a half. She had chosen first-grade teaching because she believed it to be a field to which she could make a definite contribution. Her principal, grateful for her rare enthusiasm, had let her try out new ideas. Helen had kept careful records of her results—and now she had a paper which she believed would add a tiny bit to the scant knowledge of the six-year-old mind. Helen had set for herself a far goal—summers at the university, winters in the laboratory of her classroom, a doctor's degree in child psychology, articles for educational journals, finally books that would bring her fame—the orphanage experience lost in the fullness of achievement.

As she sat, however, before the little stove that grew warmer with each passing moment until it fairly danced before her, words blurred on the pages in her hand. Donald Mabie—Donald Mabie—coming between her and the purpose of her existence. How terrible that she wanted him so desperately when she should want success vastly more! His tall straightness, the clear light in his blue-gray eyes, burning deep as he told her of his love. If she yielded to the happiness that he offered her, might she not forget that there was a past to be vindicated? The past—those drab days in the uniform of gray calico, the cruel matron she had hated. Helen shuddered as she remembered. An orphanage child fighting her way to success alone! Donald Mabie did not know there had been an orphanage.

If he knew, perhaps he wouldn't want her—would hate the thought, as she hated it, of having the mother of his children look back to a childhood in gray calico. Helen buried her face in her hands. She was not thinking of ambition. The chance of losing the man she loved was overpowering in its poignancy. She could not marry him and withhold the reality, and the pain of wringing out the story seemed more than she could bear. Donald Mabie had family, background, position which should not be violated by marriage with a little nobody from an orphanage. She should have told him before he grew to love her. Casting her aside now would hurt a man like Donald—and she did not want to see the lines of pain etched across his brow.

Back at her boarding house at dusk she found that Donald had telephoned that he would call for her at 6:30, which meant of course, that there would be dinner downtown. Helen was glad, for it would be easier to talk in the hotel dining room than before the intimate little fire in the landlady's sitting room.

As Helen slipped into a new red crepe dinner dress as different from gray calico as cloth can be made, and pulled a silk velour toque over her black hair, she stood before the mirror and wondered if anyone could guess that once straight, Indian braids had hung beneath a black sailor like a hundred other sailors that topped a line of marching children. Then she heard Donald's ring at the doorbell and went down to meet him.

"You are beautiful," he said, as he helped her into his car.

"You are beautiful," he said as he faced her across a table set for two.

"You are beautiful," he said, as he seated her in a palm sheltered nook in the hotel drawing room where distant music came softly to them.

"I can't marry you," she said, "I have something to live down. I spent 10 years in an orphanage. I must become famous so I won't mind so much. Besides, I can't give your children a mother they'd be ashamed of. I should have told you sooner."

"Don't look like that," she stammered. "Don't. I'm sorry to have hurt you."

"I've known all along," Donald said, measuring his words. "I thought you understood me well enough to believe that I love you for yourself, and to know that I want to help you achieve the fame that is sure to be yours. It's a very little man who is willing to stand in the way of the woman he loves."

"You knew," Helen gasped, "and still you love me?"

"I knew, dear, and I understand why you're working so hard, how you've been feeling about it all. If your name isn't in Who's Who in three years, I miss my guess. Will you trust me to help you, Helen?"

Again his arms were about her, and Helen's heart, beating hard against his, was satisfied.

COW DISGUISE FAILS; 2 ARRESTED IN THEFT

GREENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 3.—Efforts of two youths of Mutual to disguise a cow by dehorning it proved a failure. Joseph Shamrock and Michael Bizub are held by state police, charged with larceny, after they are alleged to have stolen a Guernsey cow valued at $175 from D. W. Fry, of Newton. They are alleged to have hauled it away in a truck, cut its horns and then rented a pasture, hoping to sell it.

AST PITTSBURGH FIRM BROKE FAITH, IS CHARGE

Morris Gordon and Jack E. Rubin have asked Judge Elder W. Marshall of Common Pleas Court to restrain William O. Mikaloff and Anthony Twardowski from conducting a restaurant and confectionery business in East Pittsburgh. The plaintiffs say they paid $16,000 for the business, the defendants agreeing not to engage in the same business for three years, alhtough when they sold out they conducted a drug and confectionery trade. The plaintiffs ask that the defendants not only be enjoined from trading, but that they render an accounting.

SECRETARY LIKELY TO STAY IF HOOVER WINS

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—In the event of election of Herbert Hoover it was believed in political circles here today that Secretary Mellon might be appointed for his third successive term as head of the Treasury Department.

Observers, however, said that it would be surprising if Mellon remained in the cabinet throughout the administration, but that he would resign within a comparatively short time. Mellon, during his eight years as Secretary of the Treasury, has completed all of the principal reconstruction projects.

The foreign debts, excepting that of Russia, have been funded and there is no further action to be taken in that connection by the Treasury except collection. Arrangements have been completed for the retirement of the public debt, tax legislation has been transformed from emergency to permanent, peace time basis, the War Finance Corporation virtually has been liquidated, the farm loan system remodeled and other details of post-war financing cleared away.

Undersecretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills is said to be under consideration for ambassador to Great Britain. Hoover desired to place both Mills and Col. William J. Donovan, assistant to the Attorney General, in cabinet jobs, but both are from New York and it is not customary to name two cabinet officers from a single state.

LAWRENCE CO. BRIDGE DECLARED DANGEROUS

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Complaint against the alleged dangerous condition of the overhead bridge carrying a state highway over tracks of the Buffalo, Rocchester & Pittsburg Railway, near New Castle, was filed with the Public Service Commission yesterday by the state department of highways. The railroad, the New Castle Street Railway Company, Shenango township, and Lawrence county, were named as respondents.

HARRIET PATTERSON

Miss Harriet Patterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Patterson, Beechwood boulevard, whose engagement to Lowell Clemens Noyes, Evanston, Ill., is announced.

WHERE are the buds of yesteryear? They're all out of town. And where are the buds of this year? All out of town. The debutantes of last year, after their brilliant season, are resting up after an arduous year of teas and balls and theater parties. And the buds-to-be are living a carefree outdoor life so that they may be as fresh as rosebuds when they make their bows to the social world and enter upon that first glamorous year in the social swirl.

Rebecca Follansbee, daughter of the John Follansbees, of Squirrel Hill avenue, is at Cape May. She expects to return about September 1 to make plans for her debut. The date will not be set until she comes back, I understand. Not many dates are being taken yet for debut parties, but with the arrival of September days many will be announced, I daresay.

Dorothea Jenkins, daughter of the T. Clifton Jenkins, will be another debutante of this fall, it is expected. Dorothea and her sister, Elizabeth, are with their mother at Spring Lake, N. J. And they'll not return to the city until the first of October.

MARTHA COOPER, daughter of the Frederick M. Coopers, has been at Perth Amboy, N. J. On Saturday she was one of the bridesmaids, we have just discovered, at the wedding there of Kathryn Howell, daughter of Mrs. George Janeway Howell, of Perth Amboy, and James Cropsey Lott.

JEAN BROWNE SCOTT, her parents, the John R. K. Scotts, of Philadelphia; Janet Hardie, of this city, Jean's cousin, and Elizabeth Alcorn, of Bryn Mawr, have just returned from London.

There's no doubt but that you recall Jean was to have married Nigel Claudian Colman, member of the British Parliament, on July 25. The engagement was abruptly broken about a week before the wedding, you remember. "It was a case of agreeing to disagree," was the comment Mrs. Scott made upon the broken engagement. Jean is a popular and noted horsewoman, and has always had entries in the annual horse show at the Allegheny Country Club.

THE big event of the week-end at the Hamptons will be the consolidated Hamptons' dog show to be held Saturday at the East Hampton Riding Club. Harkness Edwards will be among the exhibitors, we've been told.

THOUGH most folks will return in the fall from Europe, some are already returning to their home country. The Sumner E. Elys and their daughter, Esther, of Pembroke place, have just returned on the White Star liner Majestic. William H. Brown, Jr., arrived on the same boat.

AND some folks are still going abroad! The Charles Stuart Wunders sailed Wednesday on the DeGrasse for Europe. Mrs. Wunder's mother, Mrs. Harry D. W. English, saw them off.

NO matter how eventless the last month of summer may be, the fall will more than make up for it. In addition to all the interesting debut plans it looks as though the number of fashionable fall weddings will be larger than ever. Just today we've heard of two new fall wedding dates.

Louise McConway, daughter of the junior William McConways, of South Linden avenue, has named September 29 for her wedding. Her fiance, no doubt you know, is Stanley Overholt Law, son of the Carl C. Laws, of South Graham street.

An early date, September 8, has been taken by Mary Vourneen McCarthy, daughter of the Jesse Overn McCarthys, of Brantford, Canada. Her engagement to William Cecil Hogg, son of Mrs. George Alexander Hogg, of Shady avenue, was announced not long ago, I believe. They wdill be married in His Majesty's Church of Mohaws. Sounds picturesque, doesn't it?

MISS MARGARET J. GWYER and her sister, Mrs. W. L. Thomas, were hostesses Wednesday night at a dinner in the latter's home in Clermont avenue, Brentwood, in honor of their aunt, Mrs. Rovina Gwyer Wilke, of Monessen, who is visiting them. There were 12 guests. Mrs. Wilke was guest at a luncheon given today by her niece, Mrs. William O. Gwyer, of Orchard avenue, Knoxville.

WEDNESDAY, August 15, is the date chosen by Miss Clara Katherine Volke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Volke, of Mt. Washington, for her marriage to James E. Flinn, son of Dr. and Mrs. James E. Flinn, of Mt. Washington. Miss Lulu Yost, cousin of the bridegroom, will be maid of honor, and Walter P. Boyer, Jr., is to be best man. The ceremony will be performed in Trinity Cathedral with only the close relatives and a few intimate friends in attendance.

A BENEFIT card party and dance will be held Monday night in the Elks' Temple, with John Freyvogel as chairman of the general committee. His assistants include Mrs. Harry Rectenwald, Mrs. Joanne Duffy, Miss Bessie McCurry, Mrs. G. L. Caraccia, John Ward, Walter Catteral and James J. Laffey. Euchre, "500," bridge and old maid will be played.

MR. AND MRS. HAMILTON R. WICKES, of Squirrel Hill, have returned from a three weeks' tour over the mountains to Maryland, Delaware and Ocean City, N. J.

MR. AND MRS. S. PERRIN, of Beacon street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Berthe Rae Perrin, to Sidney H. Witt, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Witt, of Hampton street.

THE marriage of Miss Anna I Seperko, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew S. Seperko, of Whitney, Pa., and Earl R. Daniher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Daniher, of the East End, will be solemnized Thursday morning, August 16, at 9 o'clock in St. Mary's Catholic Church, Forty-sixth street. Miss Elizabeth Seperko will be her sister's maid of honor and Miss Rose Griffin, bridesmaid. J. J. Griffin will be his cousin's best man and E. E. Daniher, his brother, will be the usher.

THE Seapker family will hold its reunion next Wednesday at Rose Grove, North Park. There will be dancing, swimming and sports.

THE marriage of Miss Ilah Farrar, daughter of Mrs. Rena Farrar, of Wolfdale, near Washington, Pa., and William A. Challener, of Washington, was solemnized Wednesday in the Farrar home by the Rev. R. W. Nairn, pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church of Washington, assisted by the Rev. L. K. Peacock, of Houston, uncle of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Challener are taking a western trip. The bride has been a teacher in the Washington schools.

FLOWER SHOW ARRANGED BY MT. LEBANON WOMEN

REGULAR club activities are quite unheard of in the summer, usually, but if a garden party and flower show are included in these activities, then they must inevitably be held in the summer. For clubwomen staying in the city during July or August, and for those here between trips, such an event is a pleasant diversion.

Many will attend the annual flower show and garden party of the Woman's Club of Mt. Lebanon, to be held on August 22 from 3 to 9 o'clock in the gardens of Mrs. Paul Bolger, Washington road.

Mrs. Bolger is chairman of the event, assisted by Mrs. J. E. Stone, Mrs. G. H. Fox, Mrs. C. L. Hickling and Mrs. H. M. Johnson, who form a general committee.

Judges for the exhibit will be A. V. Mason, Lewis Walters, Arthur Godwin, Mrs. R. A. Fulton, and Miss Eleanor Gilfillan.

The committees in charge of the display are as follows:

Class one, perennials and roses—Mrs. S. Y. Free, chairman; Mrs. F. S. Martin, Mrs. A. H. Davis, Mrs. F. C. Andresen.

Class two, annuals—Mrs. Adolph Krebs, chairman; Mrs. J. H. Evans, Mrs. C. W. Kenney, Mrs. F. S. Jones.

Class three, bulbs—Mrs. Charles Mu[illegible]ay, chairman; Mrs. M. E. Henry, Mrs. R. H. Reese, and Mrs. Martin Ely.

Class four, arrangements for centerpiece—Mrs. W. L. Williams, chairman; Mrs. W. A. Smott, Mrs. P. McCain, Mrs. J. S. Huey.

Class five, fruits and vegetables—Mrs. W. M. Phillips, chairman; Mrs. H. F. Phillips, Mrs. Thomas Musgrave, and Mrs. Clarence Zook.

Class six, baked and canned goods—Mrs. I. G. Amsler, chairman; Mrs. E. R. McCarty, Mrs. G. R. K. Day, Mrs. A. M. Rearick, and Mrs. B. H. Canon.

Class seven, garden accessories—Mrs. J. V. Long, chairman; Mrs. John McKelvie, Mrs. A. V. Mason, Mrs. D. Lawson, and Mrs. L. D. McCandless.

Class eight, everlasting flowers—Miss Ellen Wilcox, chairman; Mrs. W. E. Schilpp, Mrs. M. R. Collins, Mrs. T. W. Nicolet.

Refreshments will be served by Mrs. Miles Bulger and her committee, including Mrs. H. B. Long, Mrs. G. C. McMasters, Mrs. Frank Garrett, Mrs. James McKelvie, and Mrs. W. C. Allen.

The garden section of the club will meet at the home of Mrs. Philip McCain on Wednesday.

THE Woman's Club of Pittsburgh will gather flowers to be distributed Tuesday among the little patients at the Children's Hospital. This summer members who have been in the city have been sending flowers each week to various hospitals.

THE Woman's Community Association of the Twenty-seventh Ward will hold a monthly meeting on Monday evening at 8 o'clock in the Reformed Church of the Ascension, Termon avenue. Mrs. James C. Wilson will conduct the meeting.

MRS. CHESTER B. STORY, of the Business and Professional Woman's Club, is now in Vienna. She will visit the Tyrol, Munich, Prague and the more usual points of interest for the tourist. Next week she will sail for New York.

WAR'S 14TH ANNIVERSARY BRINGS FRENCH AMITY PLEA

COLOGNE, Germany, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—A strong plea for Franco-German friendship was made yesterday, the fourteenth anniversary of the declaration of war between Germany and France, when French Minister of Education Edouard Herriot arrived here to visit the German Press Exhibition.

M. Herriot headed a delegation composed of prominent French educators. They were welcomed officially by Burgomaster Adenauer at a banquet in the historical Guerzenich Hall.

The German official said:

"It would be tragical for Europe, for our people and for humanity if France and Germany fail to find a way to bridge the gap between our countries. Let us learn to know, believe and trust each other as a way toward peace not based on arms and armies. It would be a peace founded on the common interests of humanity and justice. France has an opportunity of winning Germany's heart. God grant that she use it."

M. Herriot, who has long been a champion of closer relations between France and Germany, replied:

"France may be counted upon to be true to her traditions. She will welcome every honest move of conciliation as a move toward peace, which is the greatest wish of the French people."

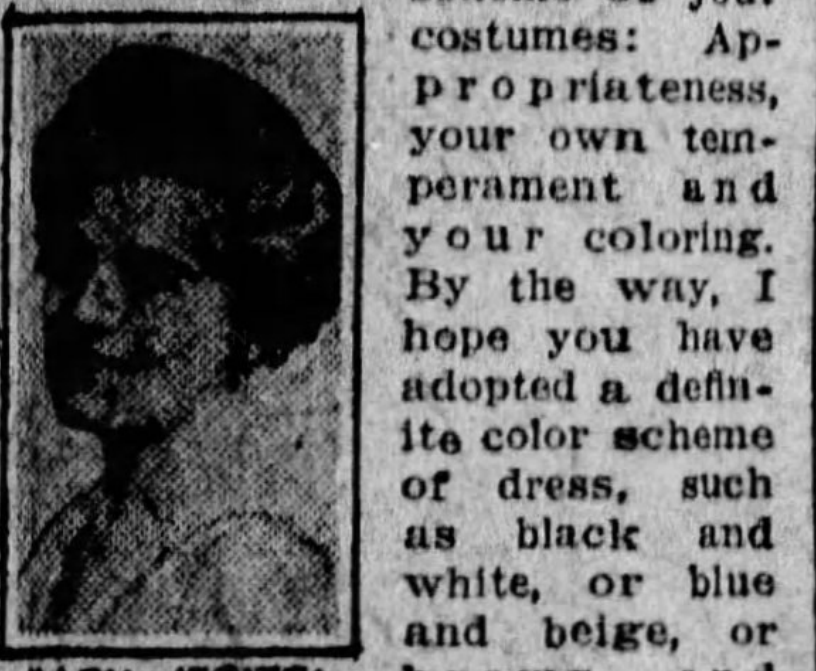
How To Be Beautiful

by Maria Jeritza

Do You Consider Color Carefully?

ONE reason modern women seem so adorably lovely is because they give due heed to color in selecting costumes and also the home background.



MARIA JERITZA

Three considerations should influence you in choosing the color scheme of your costumes: Appropriateness, your own temperament and your coloring. By the way, I hope you have adopted a definite color scheme of dress, such as black and white, or blue and beige, or brown and cream. Otherwise, unless your income is limited only by the sky, you will find that various items of your wardrobe clash in color with other details and with the entire ensemble, and the impression you will give will be discord, not beauty.

Personally, I plan my entire wardrobe for a season at the beginning of the season and buy it all together. In this way each detail of my costume is designed to blend with the ensemble and to suit the occasions for which it is intended.

Colors a woman loves best are usually those to which she is temperamentally suited. For instance, a shy mouse of a woman could not wear scarlet well. But would she wish to? Her taste would naturally prefer less conspicuous shades, silvery gray or mauve or navy blue.

Manage to wear the colors you love best and long to wear for this self-expression will enrich your individuality. Do you yearn for purple, or, let us say, orange? Very well! They are out of the question, of course, for the street or the office. But why should you not select carefully the particular shade of violet or of orange which blends best with your hair, eyes and skin, then choose that tint for a negligee, a house frock or possibly an evening gown.

Let us say you love gray and cannot wear stone gray. The chances are taupe or brown-gray will satisfy your longing and prove most becoming. Blue-violet goes exquisitely with shades of red hair that cannot draw near pink-violet without a clash of tones.

May I suggest a few color combinations for various types? An elderly woman with white hair is distinguished in black—especially black velvet. White is equally lovely for her, so is silver for evening wear. Pearls and diamonds are her jewels.

A woman with clear skin and brown hair can wear nearly all shades well, especially blue on brown as the case may be to match her eyes. Sapphires would be stunning for her if her eyes are blue.

Bright red hair is perfect with a costume of creamy white, all black, or black and white, with gardenias for a boutonniere and with emeralds or jade and a green background.

Let the auburn-haired woman wear the colors of the autumn woods. Black and flesh color are also becoming to her. Light green, gray, mauve, pale pink and black and white are colors the blonde can safely choose—but not all in one costume.

Have you that lovely combination, black hair and a white skin? Then black and white are exquisite for you. If your color is high and your hair black, wear neutral dark shades on the street. But you can wear vivid reds and yellows perfectly provided you have a vivacious temperament. The girl who is prematurely gray with a young face and clear skin will be a dream, with her silvery hair, in black or white or silver or pastel pink.

These are only a few hints regarding beautiful color combinations. But I hope they may suggest to you means of enhancing your loveliness by careful selection of a color scheme for your costumes, including accessories, and your home background.

Weather Conditions.

The highest barometer on the map this morning is 30.18 inches along the South Atlantic coast and the lowest is 29.78 at Green Bay, Wis. The rains were heavy in Iowa, Kansas, Michigan and a few other sections locally.

There was a rise in the temperatures over the Ohio Valley states and a change to cooler over the Northwest. In Montana and Wyoming the temperatures are below 50 and at Yellowstone 36 degrees.

River Conditions.

The rivers are again falling everywhere above Pittsburgh and the Ohio is about stationary at Pittsburgh. Stage at Pittsburgh is 12.1 feet; Dam No. 2, 8.5, and Dam No. 6, 9.3 feet. The dams are up.

MELLON IN FRENCH CAPITAL

PARIS, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury department of the United States, was in Pari today as the guest of Theodore Rousseau, an American banker of this city.

The Secretary will return tomorrow to Dinard, where he will remain until he goes to Cherbourg to embark for America in a week or so.

The only person Mr. Mellon has seen with any suggestion of official business, has been Parker Gilbert, agent general for reparations under the Dawes plan. He called upon Ambassador Herrick this morning and had luncheon with Former Ambassador Wallace. This evening he will be a guest at a small private dinner at the embassy. No French officials have been invited.

One may be a presidential nominee and all that sort of thing, but he must ofttimes help himself. Herbert Hoover had to do just that when he was "roughing it" in the Oregon woods on that week's fishing trip, just completed. Here, he takes a drink—a drink kept cold in a vacuum.

Ione Tells Marie That She Refused a Dinner Invitation From Benz

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Ione Farr, just out of high school, gets a position with Max Weimar's music publishing house, in New York, to which she commutes from her home on the Hudson. Her chum, Marie Karey, is engaged to Palmer Elliott, a young lawyer. Ione loses her heart to Alan Blake, an accompanist for the Weimar concern. Marie holds up Ione's sister Jenepher as a model. Jenepher is married, has a small son, and also holds a fine position in a smart New York shop. Ione feels Jenepher's married life is not the romance it should be and that Timmy, the baby, suffers owing to its mother's absence. She finds herself drawing a picture of Alan Blake. Benz, the office manager, takes her to Tin Pan alley and she meets the famous song writer, Wolfie Speed. Weimar comes in much excited and talks to Benz. The latter tries to persuade Antony Ros, a matinee idol, to use Speed's new song. He fails, but Ione, enthusiastic and vivid persuades him to take it.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

ALL that gorgeousness! Why, girls she knew would give their eyes for him. Proud she'd be with a rose at her throat, going up the street.

"You like it, dear? Tony Ros sent it." Something like that she could say, offhand, and watch their envy.

Only she couldn't be offhand about anything so triumphant. Life—ah, the joyous thing!

Alan Blake sauntered in from the studios, and quickly followed the gay look he sent to her corner. "Morning—sweetie sweet. Hey—Ros better mind his step, the big bum!" Laughing and breaking a spray of candytuft for his buttonhole.

The girls were watching over their typewriters, Emma Shepherd down the room—the new stenographer they called Fluff. She felt a quick stab of pride in his clean, winsome youth, his good looks, the fact that he had singled her out.

"I'll tell him that," she flung back, twinkling. "I'll say there's a wild blonde person over here doesn't like him much. Though why not—well, why not?"

"I saw her first is why. You, I mean. Tell him that, then." He strolled on—threw her a laughing glance from the door.

Benz came to search the bouquet for a yellow bud. She found one and made him bend down while she fastened it to his coat, lashes like black lace on her cheeks. She gave the bud a pat, looked up suddenly.

"There—so handsome he is!"

"That's a thing to remember! Since you like his looks how about dining with him! Run up the Drive to the River Inn—dance a little—be frivolous—well?"

"Ah, tonight, you see—it's all taken."

Her eyes turned swiftly from him, red running up her cheeks.

"Another time perhaps"—voice breaking with amusement.

She told Marie about it when they were rushing across Forty-second street at 5 o'clock.

Marie was setting out to do some shopping for her trousseau and Ione, whose taste she admired, must go with her to see that she bought the right things.

"Do you think he'll be offended? He didn't believe I had a date."

"Well you have—with me, ol' thing. Why didn't you go? She went on, thoughtfully. "Not a girl in the place wouldn't jump at the chance to dine and dance with Eddie Benz. I'd think you'd feel flattered to death, Io."

She was flattered down in her heart. But he looked so grand, bending over the roses—so clad in a careless brilliance, this man who knew important people and did sophisticated, dazzling things. Such a mocking light in his eyes sometimes when he flashed them at her. . . .

She felt again the glow that crept through her when he put his face down, close to hers, in the corridor yesterday. He would do that to you with his personality—make you think of him and like him whether you wished to or not.

Marie was pulling her arm; drawing her to a case of filmy lingerie, all pearl white and trimmed with tiny sating orange blossoms.

"Look, dear—three pieces! But it's too much; forty dollars! Have to find something else"—

But she twisted her face back, wistfully, lips under her teeth as if in pain.

"But it's your trousseau, sweet Marie. Indeed you have to splash a little, don't you? And these small shops cut prices. I'll talk to the woman—you see now"—

The price was put down to thirty dollars and Marie took the set with a little, ecstatic sigh.

"My last extravagance for 10 years, probably. I'll be satisfied, though, remembering this." She was to meet Palmer Elliott and they started back through a thin, misty rain.

Ione left her at Broadway; by the time she was across the street the mist had become a smart rain.

They kept an emergency umbrella at the office; now she ran into the building and began to ring the bell for the rickety old elevator.

Steps came clattering down the stairs. A jovial sound about that clatter—a chuckle in the way the feet knocked twice against each tread. She knew who it was before Alan Blake dashed around the turn at the landing.

"Whoops! I knew I'd have one piece of luck! Sort of hoped, at

BOAT FAILS IN RACE AGAINST TIME

CHESTER, Ill., Aug. 3.—(AP.)—The record run of 90 hours between New Orleans and St. Louis on the Mississippi remained undisturbed today.

Six hours ahead of the mark set by the packet boat Robert E. Lee in 1870, the speed boat Bogie struck a snag 30 miles below here early today and was so crippled as to be eliminated in the contest against time.

Dr. Louis Leroy, in command of the motorboat, took the disaster in good grace and made the statement that though the boat could not go on, he had demonstrated that the mark could be bettered.

In striking the snag, the propeller was broken and the drive shaft badly bent. A new propeller was put in place, but the damaged shaft caused such a vibration as to break an oil line, forcing Dr. Leroy and his two companions, Capt. A. A. Farris and Robert Hunter, to give up the race.

The record run of the Robert E. Lee was made in a contest with another packet boat, the Natchez. The race caused great excitement along the entire route.

ICE ASSOCIATION WORKS ENTIRE YEAR

Not every one realizes, perhaps, that the work of the Milk and Ice Association is an all-year-round proposition and is by no means confined to the hot summer months. It is during the summer, of course, that the babies stand most in need of assistance, since so many of the poorer families find it difficult or impossible to keep their children supplied with the fresh milk so vitally necessary to their well-being. But all through the rest of the year the association is laboring for the little ones, holding clinics, to which mothers bring their babies for examination and treatment, and get advice themselves on the proper care of infants.

That is why The Sun-Telegraph is so eager to make its fund as large as possible, so that every year the association may help more and more babies. The fund has been increased today by $15, consisting of two donations. The Ladies' Bible class of the Brighton Road Presbyterian Church sent in a gift of $5, while a contribution of $10 has been received from the Get-together Club of Bethel and Upper St. Clair townships.

Previously reported	$1,201.85

SIDE-WALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

HE HAD saved some vacation money and added to this was three-weeks' salary which his firm advanced to employes about to leave for a vacation. With a sizeable roll in his pocket, he hummed and sang in the bathroom while he prepared for his trip. On his way to the train, being somewhat early, he stopped off at his club to kill a couple of hours. There was a poker game on and, to while away the time, he sat in just for a few rounds. Near train time he was not at all eager to make a dash for the station. He had lost his roll in the card game. Now he is spending his two-weeks' vacation at home.

In spite of this we shall not take the stump against poker, because quite a few men get real pleasure out of a "friendly" game. As to poker we reformed a long time ago, but through no virtue on our part. The game simply began to pall and we discovered we got more fun out of other pastimes.

EVEN "friendly" games have the progressive spirit. Over a period of 10 years a game which started out as penny ante in the same crowd wound up with the lid off, and the boys still aching for new thrills and sensations. It degenerated from what was once pleasure into work of the hardest kind. And, almost unanimously, the players voted to disband. Poker players may not admit it, but in a sizeable game, no matter how friendly, there is a dream in the back of every players' head that with one or two deft strokes he may achieve a small fortune.

A LITTLE GAME TO-NIGHT—AN' I'M GOIN' TO TRIM 'EM
SEE THAT YOU DO!

In the little games that are staged in the homes of Pittsburgh something happened after the war. A draw game with a fair limit was the order until after the war. After that, nothing but "stud" seemed to be swift enough. This palling, someone would produce a pair of bones, and now and then someone got hurt. What starts out as a sociable game winds up, after a period, as a battle with meat cleavers. Such is the quest of money, a chance to get something for nothing—and among friends.

AMONG the big money fellows in town, bridge has supplanted poker. The stakes range from five cents to a dollar a point. At the latter stake a man might toss off or win as much as two or three thousand dollars. Some of the gals go in for games calling for a cent a point, in which the losings and winnings average around $10 or $20 a session, according, of course, to the way the cards were running. The most cautious game calls for a tenth of a cent point. A game where you don't have to "bear down" in fear of losing your shirt is a quarter of a cent a point game.

HOW 'BOUT SOME BRIDGE A DOLLAR A POINT?

In one of the games where the sociability is of far greater consequence than the stakes, there is a player who is known as Redouble Mossman. His full name is William T. Mossman. As our partner the other evening, Mr. Mossman got so enthusiastic about a very innocent bid that we made, that he redoubled and the resulting wreck is said to be something of a record in local circles. After the smoke had cleared away and the adding machines had been placed in position it was discovered that the total loss was 1,600 points. There is something about doubling that makes Redouble Mossman see red. His loyalty to his partner makes him all the more passionate. For instance, we took the double in friendly spirit, but Redouble Mossman resented the inference that our hand was not so hot, and so he redoubled. In fairness, he had a redoubling hand. The trouble came from the fact that we had misled him.

SO THE moral of today's sermonette is to watch your vacation money, don't stop at poker games on the way to the train, and never be too hasty with a redouble in bridge, as your partner may not always tell you the truth about his hand. Tomorrow's article will touch on the evils of croquet.

5 HURT IN OHIO FIRE

STEUBENVILLE, O., Aug. 3.—Fire, which gave firemen a three-hour battle in the business district late yesterday damaged the Cooper-Kline dry goods store and destroyed stock, entailing a loss of $30,000. The cause is still undetermined today.

THREE OTHERS INDICTED IN OBREGON KILLING

International News Service.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 3.—Jose De Leon Toral, Mother Superior Acevedo Concepcion De La Lata of Espinta Santo Convent, Senora Maria Luisa Pena Altamira and Jorge Fernando Gallardo Pavon, a cousin of Leon Toral, have been indicted in connection with the assassination of President-elect Alvaro Obregon and it was announced today that the trials would start next week.

Leon Toral is the self-confessed assassin. The others are accused of complicity.

Warrants have been issued for the arrest of three others. They are:

Manuel Trejo Morales, who is accused of giving Leon Toral the pistol with which Gen. Obregon was shot to death on July 17.

Carlos Castro Balda, who is alleged to have been a confederate of Morales in the planting of bombs in the Chamber of Deputies building last May.

Padre Jose Jimines.

It is believed that Leon Toral's counsel will adopt a plea of insanity, a defense that has proved efficacious in so many murder trials in the United States.

The Mother Concepcion Acebeda de la Lata was examined by prosecution officers again today, this time in the chambers of the court because the formal sessions of the preliminary hearing had ended. She was asked whether Toral or the priest Jimenez had any connection with the so-called "Catholic revolution," but she answered that she "knew nothing about it."

HICKMAN TO APPEAL

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 3.—All hope of gaining victory in the courts of California having vanished, attorneys for William Edward Hickman today launched preparations to carry to the United States Supreme Court their fight to save the slayer of Marian Parker from the noose.

On the heels of the California State Supreme Court's denial of a petition for a rehearing of Hickman's appeal came the announcement from Richard Cantillon, associate defense counsel here, that an appeal from the murder conviction would be taken to the Supreme Court at Washington.

Will Rogers Says

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Aug. 3.

Santa Barbara has the greatest Old California fiesta and celebration you ever saw.

Even W. G. McAdoo was in costume on a horse with all the old Catholic padres—which shows that he must be for Smith.

About the only way the United States can ever win a race at the Olympic Games is to annex Canada.

The effect of every four persons in the U. S. owning an automobile is having its effect.

Extraordinary Forest

WHAT is probably the most extraordinary forest in the world occupies a tableland some six miles in width near the west coast of Africa. Trunks are as much as 4 feet in diameter, but trees only reach a height of 1 foot.

Ione Tells Marie That She Refused a Dinner Invitation From Benz

that, but you sounded too good. That cage doesn't run after six." He came up to her, tapping his heels in a funny, staccato rhythm.

She flushed warmly, eyes loitering in his. "But I didn't know you worked so late. Stopped for an umbrella—it's pouring. And a block to the ferry after you get off the car."

"Ferry! Just where I'm going! Now if you'd walk under my tent"— He flourished his umbrella, drew her arm under his, pressing it to his side—slid his hand down so his fingers touched hers.

"And which ferry will she have tonight? And which kind of a cab, and why?" Laughing to himself.

"But you said you were going to the ferry? I do believe—don't come out of your way—"

He turned her hand so their fingers entwined—drew the umbrella low over their heads.

"Like shutting out the world," he thought. "Like going into a place and closing the door and being alone together in a pleasant quiet." And suddenly the rain looked to her like shafts of silver slanting in a running glory through the street lights.

"Let's walk them," she said, all in a rush. "I've never seen it rain like that, shining so!"

He left her at the ferry gate, leaning toward her with a gentle look. "Do you know your eyes are like forget-me-nots? Blue—so blue—and sweet—"

She thought of that all the way up to Lyall. And she sketched again in the Wish Book that evening—a scattering of small flowers all up and down the page.

By her typewriter next morning there was a bunch of forget-me-nots, stems in tinsel, corsage pins crossed through the leaves.

CHAPTER IX.

"WHO sent them, Io? If you're not the popularest! Oh—no card—"

Marie was like a big question mark, ready to pull adventure out of thin air for her friend.

"Maybe they don't need a card, ol' dear. Do you know, it's nicer to have things all secret-like and mysterious on a Friday. Why the perturbation?"

"Alan Blake? Was it? My dear! Tell me, can't you?"

Ione tossed her head, brought out "Nothing to tell," with a flippant swing of her wrist. But she felt a radiance—felt her eyes full of light. "There was nothing, really. I suppose he happened to think 'I'll give her a treat, poor thing.'"

"Any ol' time! Hold 'em up, dear—how blue they make your eyes . . . Ione, I think you're in love."

"Oh, pooh!" Laughter rippled through her. "Speak for yourself, John!" She twisted a sheet of paper and began to typewrite in a great hurry. But she made mistakes and had to copy it over; finally she leaned across the desk.

"Marie, when you're in love—well, how do you know? You might like someone, like the way they smiled or a thing like that. It wouldn't be love, would it? How do you know then?"

"Can't help it. You'll know because the whole world will change before your eyes—get bright and full of colors you've never seen before. Everything will look beautiful—even ugly things. And your heart will feel all soft and shiny, beating so high."

Ione said, vaguely, "Well—" and caught her hands together.

Alan stopped her in the hall after lunch. "Ever get lonesome on Sunday, Frills? Sure I've fancied you pale and pining for a good bright laugh now and then."

"And yourself to make me laugh, Mister Alan Blake? But we might have a picnic—there's a beach up home at the foot of a mountain—you'd like that?"

"Would I!" His full-cut lips drew up at the corners in a small boy grin; very winsome he looked standing there—very young.

Sunday was blue and gold, stealing up over the hills across the river, hanging violet mists on North Mountain. The sky was a great, delft canopy; Cedar road rambled drowsily in a rush of crystal light.

Ione ran out under the evergreens, feeling herself a part of the iridescence, dancing in the lacy shadows. Not quite grown up yet, she told herself, for all her importance—bouquets from Antony Ros and Eddie Benz inviting her out. Now Lanny Blake was coming — ah, buoyant thing! Wouldn't Emma Shepherd like to be in her boots? Strolling down the hill together to North Mountain beach—better hustle out some sandwiches!

She cut them all in fancy shapes—hearts, diamonds, funny little checkboards, and wrapped them in waxed tissue. There was Janey's gingerbread and spiced peaches. He'd like that—he was boy enough to enjoy things like that.

She put on a green knitted suit, a green tam-o'-shanter. "Like a slip of woodland sprite, lass. Is he such a boy, then, that you must make yourself a beauty for his eyes?" Tom asked her that, ruddy face lighting at sight of her exuberance.

"But it's such a day, Tom darling. The last of summer—oh, I hope you'll like him. Well, he's quite grand—nicer than Johnny Payne. You'll be here, father?"

Then she was in a panic lest he walk down the hill to Jenepher's and miss the sight of Alan Blake.

They saw him on Cedar road, swinging along the patches of sun. He carried his hat, held his chin high as she had seen him when he walked toward her out of her dreams on that first day.

She stood by the porch-swing, slim and eager, with the yellow light around her like a haze.

He came up the steps laughing, bent down to Janey's hand, met Tom's scrutiny with his young frankness.

"And folks live in the city when there's a place like this! It's a masterpiece—glorious—"

Tom like him, Ione saw. And Janey was smiling, her cheeks very pink. "Maybe you'll relish a glass of milk now? It's a ride on the Sunday train." Twenty-five miles to the city, but Janey, who scarcely stirred from her dooryard, looked upon it as a journey.

"'Twould spoil his lunch, mother, dear. We'll start now." She brought the basket and they rambled out under the locusts; under leaves like yellow sequins to the River road—down the hill to the narrow strip of beach along the foot of North Mountain.

He kept his hand closed on her arm, talking all the time about the office, the people they knew there, his work.

It was true he'd had a year at college; left because he wanted to make a start at something. "Might have worked my way, but I had a chance with Weimar. Not much of a job, piano-playing, but he promised me something when I've got things down a bit."

They came to an opening under spruce and hemlock; spread their lunch on a drift of pine needles. He laughed at the fancy sandwiches and ate enormously; when they had packed up the napkins and the vacuum bottle he threw himself back, hands under his head, staring into the gloom of branches.

"We sleep in the sleep of ages,
  the bleak barbarian pines;
The gray moss drapes us like sages, and closer we lock our lines,
And deeper we clutch through
  The gelid gloom where never a sunbeam shines."

He quoted it softly, turned to face her with a lazy smile. But the lines had struck a chord in her heart; she asked him to finish the poem.

"I'll bring it tomorrow, Frills. Just now—me and thee and this solitude! Will you believe it now when I say your'e sweet? No Tony Ros—no music—only the wind up there. Sweet—sweet—"

Beauty rushed in and filled up her heart. She said nothing, sat with her hands together, lashes striking down her cheeks.

They were a long time silent, his head touching her shoulder, gray eyes looking out across the river.

"All soft and shiny your heart feels when love comes," Marie said. Why, her spirit was luminous! Caught up some way—waiting.

But he began to talk of his father and mother; showed her snapshots of an old-fashioned house in New Haven. She admired its stateliness.

"Past grandeur, Io, family thinks more of tradition than comfort. What good are ancestors unless they leave you something to pay the bills with?"

They walked home through the dusk, a slight shadow of constraint between them. At the steps she reached down, broke off a white aster, slipped it into his buttonhole.

He caught her hands then, pressed the palms—turned them over and kissed them. "Sweet," he said. "Oh, yes—sweet Ione."

He was gone. Did he hurry so he wouldn't say more? He liked her—oh, he did!

But he was gone—he was gone!

CHAPTER X.

HE bought her "The Spell of the Yukon" the next day; turned the pages to the poem of "The Pines," and read it all through, a deep note in his vocie.

WHAT a priceless boon to lovers are flowers! Especially if they're shy and self-conscious when in the presence of the loved one. Then it is that the flowers say what the tongue cannot utter. Many an "I love you" has been said with a single rose. Many a "Will you?" and "I will!" has been spoken through the medium of a fragrant bouquet.

Flowers have been called the thoughts of the angels and what more fitting mission for the thoughts than the mission of love For love expressed in this way is deep and true and real and thoughtful.

Love's Embers Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife" By Adele Garrison

Lillian Makes the Great Producer Very Uncomfortable

PHILIP VERITZEN is not an athlete. Indeed, I fancy that he takes only enough exercise to keep himself in fair physical condition. Lillian, on the contrary, since her long and terrible illness, has adhered to a rigorous program of exercise, while walking in a faforite diversion of mine. I think nothing of a five-mile hike. It was therefore a refinement of cruelty for my friend to set the pace for the great man upon his hunt for driftwood, which she had proposed, and keep going until his face was red, his collar wilted, and his usual natty grooming generally spoiled.

That his pride was touched and and that he would not falter as long as two women were sharing his tramp, we saw, and I wondered how long Lillian meant to keep up her vendetta. Once I snatched the chance when he was a few feet from us, and put the question to her.

"Till he begs for mercy," she said with a vicious little click of her teeth. "I've got that old goat at just the length of rope I want him, and he's going to trot for awhile, believe me. The only sorrow I have is that he doesn't know why I'm doing it to him. He probably thinks I'm just indulging my own kittenish spirits. But I'm avenging Noel today, and I've got a long score. Look here! You haven't any idea of giving the old hyena an easy way out by quitting yourself, have you? If you have, you might as well order the ambulance for yourself right now."

"I am with you to the bitter end," I told her laughing, "but take care that we don't have to treat a case of sunstroke."

"I'll risk it," she said, but I caught her stealing a furtive glance or two at Mr. Veritzen's flushed face, and I think she secretly was as relieved as I when at one of our trips back to the fire, our arms laden with driftwood, Katie announced that she was "full oop," and that we were to be ready for dinner in half an hour.

With a hurried word of excuse, my employer walked away from us in the direction of his car, and Otto, who had been helping Jim, hurried after him. When they returned a few minutes later, the famous producer looked as if he had been freshly valeted, his collar had been changed and his clothing restored to a surprising degree of its original nattiness.

"It's a wonder he wouldn't bring his make-up box along and lend it to us," Lillian muttered, but I noticed that she was careful he should not hear the taunt, and guessed that she considered she had goaded him sufficiently for one afternoon.

Three fires were blazing. One of them had been made of the first driftwood, and when it had burned long enough to satisfy Katie's critical eye, it had been permitted to die down. Then the embers had been raked a bit to one side, and new potatoes in their jackets had been carefully buried in the hot ashes, the embers raked back, and another fire built over them. On this was a huge iron kettle of clams, while a similar kettle filled with boiling water was hung over a second fire, by the side of which rested two big coffe pots and a heap of "roasting ears" of young sweet corn. And like a priestess preparing a sacrifice, Katie squatted before the third and largest fire, intent upon the broiling of the "pirate steak."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Saturday, August 4.

ACCORDING to the lunar aspects predominating on this day, it may be difficult to make much notable progress in any direction. There are signs of tenacious obstacles and crystalized conditions hard to surmount, especially the mental attitude may not be constructive. It is warned that there are pitfalls through deception, spite or slander.

Those whose birthday it is may plan for a year in which difficult situations and stubborn obstacles must be resolutely met and overcome. They should also be on guard against deceit, treachery and slander.

A child born on this day may need to be schooled in determination, tenacity and to an optimistic or philosophic outlook, as it may have to work hard for its success.

HOW TO KEEP WELL by Royal S. Copeland M.D. U.S. Senator from New York

Treating Children for Crooked Legs.

MY mail is filled with letters written by anxious mothers. Today I shall answer one or two of the questions which are so frequently asked. I do this gladly because I can think of no joy equal to that of coaxing a smile to the face of a mother.

DR. COPELAND

Mothers are the greatest and best of God's creatures, I believe. I have always loved that old saying:

"God couldn't be everywhere, so He made Mothers."

Unfortunately, many a baby suffers from one defect or another. Then the mother is brokenhearted.

Some of these are due to the lack of proper nourishment. Some come from the absence of certain chemical elements essential to perfect development.

Others are caused by too rapid development, or they may result from bad habits. For instance, the child may be permitted to walk too soon. The tiny bones have not grown strong enough to carry the weight of the baby.

Bow legs and knock-knees are two conditions about which I get many letters.

A perfectly healthy child is not likely to have anything but straight legs. But rickets is a disease which softens the bones and causes deformities. It is a condition much more common than is suspected. This disease and its evil effects will appear if the feeding is not properly conducted.

Dear mother, do not yield to every whim of your child. He must be taught to eat the right things. You are unkind to the little one if you give way to his appeals. He must have the things which will supply the growing elements. If given the wrong foods they destroy his appetite for the more essential and nourishing foods.

Bow-legs may result from using habitually too thick a diaper. If this is the practice after walking begins, the thighs are forced apart and gradually the legs become bowed and perhaps markedly deformed.

It is unwise to hasten the walking. Keep the child off its feet if there is a tendency to knock-knees or bow-legs. The use of massage and gentle pressure several times a day will help straighten the little legs. Almost always a slight deformity disappears as the child matures.

Of course if the defect is marked you should talk with your doctor. If he thinks it necessary, you will consult a specialist in these troubles.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN by HELEN ROWLAND

FIFTY-FIFTY MARRIAGE

EVERY now and then, some man rises up in court and protests violently that his wife "makes him wash the dishes," for which indignity he demands a divorce.

All of which goes to prove that the beautiful theory of the "fifty-fifty" marriage does not work except in the imagination. It is still just a sweet dream!

The modern wife may help bring home the bacon and bear half the household expenses, but where will any woman find a man who will do half the marketing, half the planning and half the worrying when the cook is late?

HELEN ROWLAND

She may cheerfully pay half the bills for the imported china, the drawing-room curtains, and the table linen—but what man ever lay awake nights figuring out how to place the furniture, or insisted on ironing the embroidered doilies with his own fair hands?

When a man actually takes care of his OWN clothes, counts his own laundry, and picks up his own shoes, half the neighbors applaud him as a world-wonder, and the other half secretly despise him as a "henpecked husband."

He, himself, feels that he is something between a martyr and a mollycoddle. He doesn't know whether he should be wearing a halo, a gold medal or a fool's cap.

A normal man never asks, "Have you seen my hat?" He asks, "Where'd you PUT my hat?"

He doesn't inquire thoughtfully, "What shall we have for dinner today?" He demands, royally, "Well, what've we GOT for dinner?"

He never suggests sweetly, "Come, let's put up the new curtains, dear."

He groans, "Have I GOTTA put up those curtains?"

When he wants to sleep late on Sunday mornings, it's "HIS house;" but when the furnace won't work, it's "Why do you keep YOUR house so cold?"

Man has escaped all these soul-harrowing, little domestic responsibilities ever since Eve furnished the first meal. And he will never be so stupid as to take them on himself voluntarily!

And even when one of them DOES try it, he usually makes such a muddle of it that a woman is only too glad to hand him his hat and his golf clubs and tell him to "run out and play" while she straightens things out.

Of course, every successful marriage IS a Fifty-Fifty Marriage, in the sense that it is perfect TEAMWORK. But until the Lord changes masculine human nature, the happiest marriages will be those in which the man does the heavy pulling, and the woman does the worrying, the planning and the DISH-WASHING!

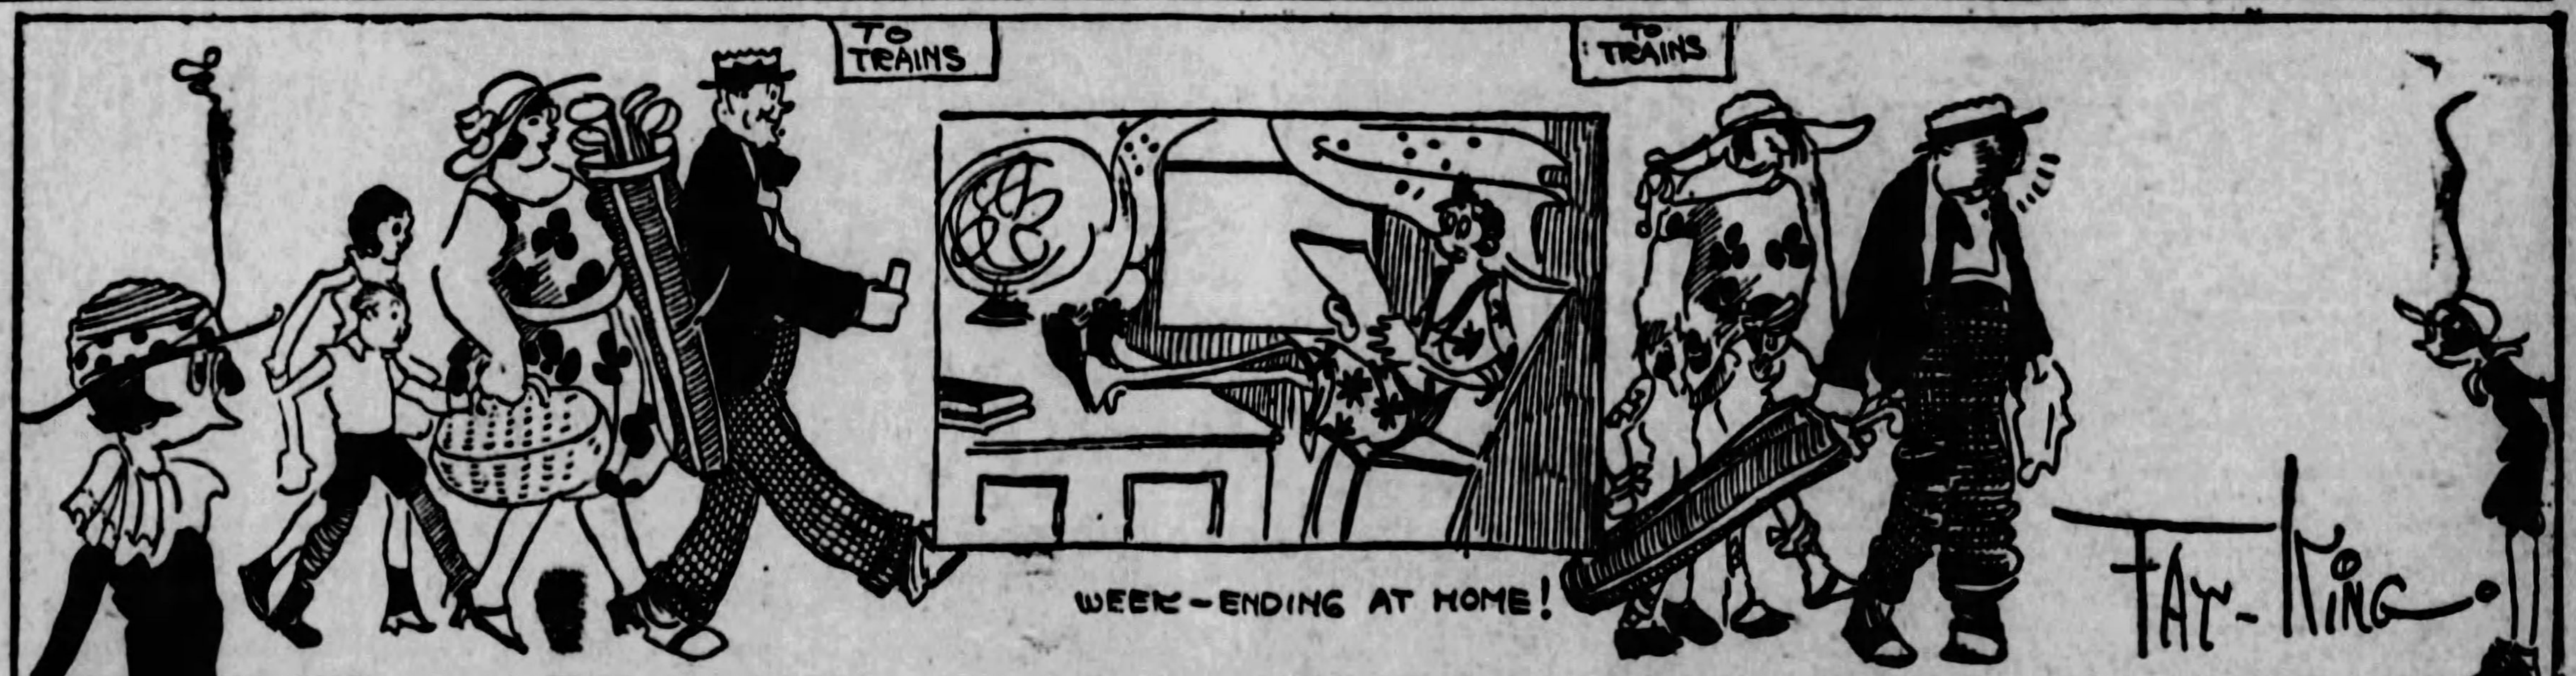
Week-Ends in Country Have Two Sides, Fay King Tells the World



By FAY KING

IT IS a bit saddening these days to stroll to the station and see everybody going to the country except yourself.

What a buzz of happy voices from the many groups gathered around the banners marking the meeting places forvarious camps!

What starchy Summer dresses! What scrubbed and brushed kiddies hanging to happy mothers!

Lunches that make your mouth water just to see the voluminous baskets that hold them.

But stroll to the station on Sunday evening! See them returning!

What wilted finery! What blistered faces! What weary, footsore, travelers are these returning from some joy-destroying journey?

Ha! Ha! It is then that we who seek week-end in the city wear the smile.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

From circus to symphony will be the stretch tonight's radio programs will make, with the variations of vocal and instrumental, classical and jazz interspersed.

An inquest into the deaths of two girls killed in the North Braddock runaway car accident, July 21, will be held next Friday, Coroner W. J. McGregor announced today.

Fifteen witnesses, including the car crew and several passengers, have been summoned to tell of the car's flight down a steep grade, which ended when it crashed into a store. Concette Prestia, 14, of 1112 Rebecca street, and Yolanda Sabella, 12, of 1114 Rebecca street, North Braddock, pedestrians, were killed and nearly a score injured.

The coroner fixed next Wednesday for inquiry into the death of John N. Egloff, 35, of 450 Fourth street, Braddock, killed July 17, when the county-owned Cow Hollow Bridge, near Bridgeville, collapsed as he was driving over it in his truck.

Marriage Steerer Falls Dead In Office

James (Cupid) Doyle, 70, for many years a cupid's assistant, died yesterday in the office of Alderman Thomas Flanigan.

Doyle obtained his living from the gratuities of the coupes to whom he supplied information and guidance concerning the "best and nearest" place to have marriages performed. His home was at 1135 Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks.

He was a familiar figure about the City-County Building and Court House as was his brother, who died just seven months ago.

WORK IN HOME DISTRICTS, COURT WARNS CONSTABLES

Deputy constables who infringe on the work of constables of other districts will be disqulified from serving if the court or the district attorney's office is made aware of the infringement. Judge Elder W. Marshall, sitting in Criminal Court, so announced yesterday from the bench.

The warning was prompted when R. L. Meassick presented a petition requesting the court name him as a deputy constable in Upper St. Clair township.

J. A. Ingram, the township's justice of the peace, told the court he had been having trouble getting papers served, although H. H. Schweinbraten is the regularly elected constable and there is also a deputy constable in the district.

The court remarked that there has been considerable complaint regarding deputy constables working outside their districts and that this must not continue.

The court advised the existing authorities of the township to adjust their differences and refused Meassick's request.

New York's Most Beautiful Hands

They are the hands of Miss Annette Grandin, the most photographed hands in the world. They are so white and smooth that they can stand "close-up" reproduction. And here's the secret, according to Miss Grandin:

"I use no fancy or expensive lotions, but make a skin bleach of my own. I get three ounces of Orchard White at the corner druggist and mix it with the juice of two lemons. This makes a full quarter pint of a remarkable, and at the same time perfectly harmless, bleach. I rub a little into my hands—also my neck and face—every night, and don't worry about freckles, tan or redness. This simple mixture not only keeps the skin clear and white, but luxuriously soft and smooth to the touch.

SAYS LIFE LOOKS BRIGHTER TO HER

Local Lady Tells How Ten Herbs Helps Nature Promote Better Health.

"Since taking Ten Herbs, life looks brighter," was the statement of Mrs. Lena Kestner, 129 Rentz Way (Knoxville), Pittsburgh, to the

MRS. LENA KESTNER

Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this great natural compound. "Your medicine does not work on one organ alone—it seems to cleanse and purify the whole digestive tract, so that nature will have a chance to promote better health," Mrs. Kestner continued.

"About a year ago my digestion become so impaired that I would fill with gas, and if I walked a little fast I would get short of breath, as though I were asthmatic. There was a bad taste in my mouth, and my bowels were irregular. My liver and kidneys were not working properly. I had a sallow color, and would get such bad dizzy spells that I would almost fall. My kidneys caused me to arise often at night, and I had pains across my back. I could not sleep at night, but would roll and toss by the hour. My nerves were unstrung, and at times I was irritable. I finally got so that life did not seem worth living.

Ten Herbs has changed all these conditions. I enjoy my meals now, and do not get so short of breath as I did before. My bowels are more regular, and my liver and kidneys are working better. I am not bilious, and my complexion has cleared. Pains have left my back, and I do not have to arise so often at night. My nerves are more quiet, and I sleep soundly. I am not so easily excited, and am not irritable any more. I gladly add my name to the long list of those who recommend Ten Herbs."

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine.

Roast Long Island Duck with Stuffing.
Browned Potatoes.
Green Corn.
Apple Sauce.
Tomato and Lettuce Salad.
Cantelope Sundae.

IT IS a simple matter to prepare a duck for roasting. All one needs to do is to give it a singeing. Wash inside and out. Cook the liver, gizzard and heart in a little water while cleaning the bird. Run them through the chopper and add to the stuffing.

For the stuffing I use a whole loaf of bread and break or cut it in small pieces, and cover it with the water in which the liver was cooked and half a cup of milk. About a cup of liquid in all. Mince 3 strips of bacon and saute with 1 tablespoonful of butter. Add 1 onion and a stalk of celery chopped. When tender this is added to the dressing with ½ a teaspoonful of salt, ¼ teaspoonful of pepper, a bay leaf and a pinch of thyme rubbed small. I pack what I can into the duck and the rest is placed in the bottom of the pan and the duck on top of it. Potatoes are rubbed with butter and placed

by Mary Blake

If you have mechanical refrigeration, don't fail to use this new convenience of yours for the concoction of the delightful new frozen dishes which it has brought into popularity. Not only are there a host of desserts which can be whisked together, slid into the refrigerator and frozen without packing and freezing, but salads have also been added to the list of refrigerator-frozen delicacies.

Some of these salads are made with fruit, others with vegetables, but all of them have one feature in common—a feature which makes both for deliciousness and economy—the use of whipped Carnation Milk as their base in place of whipped cream! My new book of refrigerator-frozen salads and desserts tells just how to whip Carnation Milk by boiling the can two or three minutes, then chilling it, and adding ¼ teaspoon of gelatine for each cup of milk.

You have doubtless used Carnation Milk for various types of cookery—for soups and sauces because of the velvety texture and rich creaminess which result; for wonderful candies, smooth and fine-grained; for delicate, fragile cakes and puddings. And like everyone else, you know how famous it is for rich, velvet-smooth ice cream.

All of these results come from definite qualities. Carnation Milk is simply the purest and freshest of whole milk, evaporated to double richness, "homogenized" and sterilized for safekeeping. Because of its double portion of cream, it makes foods richly creamy without the use of extra butter and cream. Because it is "homogenized" it gives an exceptionally smooth, fine texture. And because it is always uniform in quality it produces more certainly successful results.

If you haven't learned all these things about Carnation Milk, the Carnation Cook Book will guide you in real discoveries of its convenience, economy and dependability. Won't you send for it? It is free. Address Carnation Milk Products Co., 100 Carnation Bldg., Oconomowoc, Wis.

Carnation Cheese Salad

½ tsp. gelatine, 1 tbsp. cold water, ⅓ cup mayonnaise, 1 cup Carnation Milk, whipped, 2 packages cream cheese, 2 tbsp. Carnation Milk, ¼ tsp. salt, 1 cup celery, ½ cup sweet pickles, ⅓ cup pecans. Soak gelatine in cold water 5 minutes; dissolve over hot water. Beat dissolved gelatine into mayonnaise; fold this into whipped Carnation; fold whipped Carnation into cheese which has been softened with 2 tbsp. Carnation. Add salt and chopped celery, sweet pickles and pecans. Freeze without stirring; cut in cubes; serve on crisp lettuce, garnish with slices of pickle or parsley. Serves 10.

SAVES ON CREAM

Carnation
MILK

Carnation Milk, with its double helping of cream, makes particularly rich and delicious gelatine desserts and frozen salads. In cookery its use saves cream and butter. You'll find it unusually convenient and dependable.

about the duck and the whole thing is roasted in the covered roaster. It takes an hour and a half to two hours.

This is what a Certain Person calls one of my famous duck dinners.

Drop ears of corn into boiling water and cook ten minutes. Serve as is.

Apple sauce at this time of the year is better out of a can.

Wash lettuce when it comes from market and place on ice until ready to use. Have the tomatoes cold and also the dressing you use. A simple salad well chilled is a delightful addition to any meal.

Cut well ripened cantelopes in halves. Sprinkle with sugar and lemon juice and set in the refrigerator to chill thoroughly. Just before serving fill with vanilla ice cream.

VANILLA WAFERS—One-third cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon Blue Ribbon Malt Extract (Hop flavored,) 1 egg, ¼ cup milk, 2 teaspoons vanilla, 2¾ cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder and ½ teaspoon salt. Cream the butter, and Blue Ribbon Malt Extract, Hop Flavored, add sugar gradually, egg well beaten, milk and vanilla. Mix and sift dry ingredients. Add the first mixture. Place on floured board and roll out as thinly as possible. Cut with a cutter that has been dipped in flour. Place in a buttered and floured pan, and bake in a moderate oven.

HERE'S a problem that you won't have trouble in solving. What is it that is appropriate at bridges, luncheons, for the children's noon meal and for yourself when you're alone? Right! Sandwiches. You can keep your guests guessing what the two slices of bread hide if you serve these novel sandwiches.

RAISIN SANDWICHES—Put ½ cup seeded raisins and ½ cup pecan meats through the food chopper, using the knife. Moisten with 1½ tablespoons lemon juice and spread between buttered slices of whole wheat bread. Orange juice or mayonnaise may be used in place of lemon juice.

PIQUANT SANDWICHES—Cream together 1 cream cheese and 2 tablespoons peanut butter. Chop 1 hard-boiled egg fine, also 1 sour pickle and 1 tablespoon green pepper. Blend them into cream cheese. Add dash of salt and pepper and spread between buttered slices of bread.

* * *

SUGAR AND CINNAMON SANDWICHES—Cream ¼ pound butter and combine it with 3 tablespoons sugar and 1½ teaspoons of cinnamon. Spread slices of bread with mixture and put together.

YUM YUM SANDWICHES—Pick leaves from one small bunch watercress and mix them into 1 cream or cottage cheese together with 2 cupfuls minced ham. Spread between thin slices of unbuttered bread. A little mayonnaise or French dressing may be added.

* * *

WALNUT DATE SANDWICHES.—Pass one cup English walnuts and 1 cup stoned dates through food chopper. Moisten with little mayonnaise or cream and spread on slices of buttered bread using one white and one dark slice.

Beads of Soap make wash whiter...

Quick-dissolving Super Suds is a perfect washing machine soap. Replaces old slow chips. No fear now of gummy soap particles yellowing and aging clothes

HERE'S the recipe for an easy, smiling washday:

A washing machine, plenty of hot water, a box of Super Suds—and that's all you need! The washing will be out in far less time—clothes whiter and fresher—and you're less tired than ever before. You'll be amazed at the difference this new soap makes.

Bead soap is as great an improvement over present forms of soap as flakes were over old bar soaps. Flakes were better than bar soap. But hard to dissolve, gummy, prone to stick to clothes through many rinsings. And wasteful, too.

Now comes Super Suds! Thinner, more soluble, than any soap ever made. Beads of soap—tiny, porous, tissue-thin. Beads that burst into instant suds even in the hardest water.

Think what this instant sudsing means. Economy—no soap is wasted. Every particle dissolves. Speed—suds as soon as you put Super Suds in the water. Fewer rinsings—the soap washes out easily—no soap remains to yellow and rot the fabric.

Try Super Suds in the dishpan. See how it makes china sparkle, silver gleam! Saves time here, too—you don't need to dry dishes washed in Super Suds. Just hot rinse and drain.

Just put Super Suds in the dishpan, fill with hot water. Suds instantly ready—rich suds that clean dishes fast and without injury to the hands.

Costs less than other soaps

The big red box of Super Suds never costs more than 10¢. Holds 10 big cups—you get a cup of the speediest soap on the market for a cent. And remember, none is wasted—the soap dissolves immediately. Just pour in Super Suds until you get the amount of suds you want.

You'll find the box a handy size—convenient to keep near sink and washing machine. Get a box today. Use it for dishwashing and have it ready for washday. Don't do another washing with old, slow chip soaps!

Get Super Suds from any grocer.

Dishes done, almost before you know it! And how delightfully they sparkle! Without tedious wiping, too. Just rinse with hot water and drain dry

Comment About Film Notables and Their Plans for Journeys and Productions of Present and to Come

Dolores Del Rio Is to Star In "Evangeline" on Return From Europe Late in Fall

By REGINA CREWE

(Copyright, 1928, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 3.

ON THE very eve of her departure for a "good will tour" of Europe, the news is whispered that Dolores Del Rio's next photodrama will be a screen version of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow's ever-living poem, "Evangeline." The star and Edwin Carewe's organization have been in painstaking search of a suitable vehicle, and at various times different announcements regarding stories have been made. At one time "Deported" was said to have been selected for her next picture. Then "The Darling of the Gods" was rumored first choice. Thus the news that "Evangeline" is really it, comes as a surprise.

The star will tour Europe until November. Immediately upon her return "Evangeline" will be put in production. Then, about March, Dolores will be starred in "The Darling of the Gods." Which may yet be filmed in Japan. When it is made Ivan Lebedeff will play the role of the Prince rather than Sessue Hayakawa, as was previously reported.

Jimmy Gleason and Lucille Webster, his wife, are returning to Hollywood and pictures after a hurried trip to New York. They have taken a house. It looks as though they are here to stay. Gleason decided to do some re-writing on his last play, and it doesn't look as though his Al Jolson "Mister Bones" will open this season. Early in September Mr. and Mrs. Gleason will begin work on the screen version of "The Shannons of Broadway." Being a girl I put the real news in a post-script. It is that Jimmy has been signed for a role in Vilma Banky's next picture, as yet untitled. In it Vilma appears as an American girl in an American story. Lewis Milestone is the probable director.

Director Herbert Brenon is already making plans for his next production. Which means that the present Ronald Colman picture, "The Rescue," is all "under control." I hazard a guess that it will be a picture-play evolved from the story, "Lummox." At least three fine actresses are being considered for the title role. The present leader in the race is Louise Dresser, although I understand that Director Brenon himself believes that Anna Q. Nilsson could do wonders with the part. The dark horse, who isn't so dark at that, is Louise Fazenda. Louise is a "Lummox" enthusiast and believes the part was created for her. So now we'll have to await the final decision.

Ronald Colman is also about to get set for his new one. This time it may really be "A Tale of Two Cities" It was to have been this time you know. But Brenon wanted to makea sea picture. To date the most interesting news about the new Colman film is that Director Al Santell appears likely to direct it. Santell is a First National director, and it is a signal honor for him to be borrowed by the Goldwyn forces for such an important United Artists drama.

All the news today seems to be about directors. Henry King is about two weeks away from actual production on "She Goes to War." There is a little story work to be done. But they are already thinking about cast. There are three girls and two men who will have important roles. Of these only one man has been cast. This is Ivan Lebedeff, who will play the heavy role. As for the girls, one must portray a snobbish daughter of the rich, another a middle-class Irish miss, and a third a little Jewish cabaret singer. The picture shows how each of them is affected when "She Goes to War."

At first Camilla Horn seemed certain to play the part of the aristocrat. But now it is understood that the fair Camilla will be rushed into John Barrymore's next picture as soon as she returns to Hollywood. So Director King is busy searching through his casting directory. Here's a secret. Leatrice Joy has been mentioned. Just mentioned—but you never can tell.

Eve Southern, the girl with the eyes, who played with Fairbanks in "The Goucho," has been borrowed by First National from Tiffany for "The Haunted House." The cast for this picture gets bigger and better day by day in every way. So far they've lassoed Montagu Love, Eve Sothern, Larry Kent, Thelma Todd, Chester Conklin and—what memories this name carries—Flora Finch, who once played opposite John Bunny.

Among the ill and injured are Director F. W. Murnau, who is recovering from an appendicitis operation; Mildred Davis Lloyd, under the doctor's care for pleurisy, and Edmund Lowe, who, despite a "misery," reported to work on the Fox lot. It is an all-night job for Eddie these days, for he is making a sound film and work must be done in the still hours when traffic and other noises are hushed. The sound-film tidal wave has found a dearth of sound-proof stages. And until there are sufficient of these to go around, there will be a lot of night work in Hollywood.

"YES, MY DARLING DAUGHTER :: BUT :: DON'T GO NEAR THE WATER"

Fanny Brice, famous comedienna, a recent film recruit, joins the beach brigade of beauty at Santa Monica, Cal.

Clara Bow is all fixed for rain should showers come to dampen the ocean. Or perhaps that parasol is a complexion guard.

Adela Rogers St. John and Bebe Daniels don regular bathing suits instead of the display kind when the writer comes to visit the actress at her beach home on the shore of the Pacific, Santa Monica.

Josephine Dunn gets into one of those trick jeweled swimming suits designed only for shore duty and sun bathing.

SKYWARD By Commander Richard E. Byrd

Long Flights Aid Science And Pushes Progress Of Aviation

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

Commander Byrd first trained for a seafaring profession but later took to an aviation career. He has explained the dangers of pioneer flying and many of the earlier historical flights. During the war he established an air unit at Halifax, N. S. He advocated the creation of a Bureau of Aeronautics in the Navy Department. He described his trans-Atlantic flight in the America. He says that hazardous flights are often justifiable because of their furtherance of the art of aviation.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

Early Historical Air Exploits

CHAPTER XXXIII.

THE first nonstop trans-Atlantic flight was made by Capt. Alcock and Lieut. Brown, in June, 1919, flying from St. John's, Newfoundland, to Ireland, following practically the same route across the ocean that the other trans-Atlantic fliers have taken across the 1,880 miles of ocean. They hit a bull's eye.

On one occasion control of the plane was lost in a dense cloud while flying at an altitude of 3,500 feet, and was not regained until within 50 feet of the water. I take my hat off to these fellows for crossing the ocean when engines were nothing like so reliable as they are now. Alcock and Brown were knighted by the British Government (as later were Ross Smith and Keith Smith, for their great flight of 11,060 miles in 28 days from London to Australia). The Alcock-Brown flight showed that an airplane could survive darkness, fog and rain, and strong and changing winds.

Alcock and Brown staked their lives and won. They showed that the engine structure could stand the dampness and buffeting of the elements, and the human body the great physical strain.

Historical Flights

In October, 1919, First Lieut. Belvin W. Maynard, making landings en route, won the first trans-continental race, flying from Mineola, L. I., to San Francisco and return, covering 5,402 miles in a little less than 50 hours of actual flying.

The Army Air Service reported many good results from this test from a technical standpoint, but stated that "probably one of the greatest results of the test was the stimulus given to aviation in this country."

The first non-stop trans-continental flight was made by Lieut. J. A. Macready and Lieut. Oakley G. Kelly in a T.-2 monoplane equipped with a Liberty 400 horsepower motor. They left Mitchel Field, L. I., May 2, 1923, and landed in California the next day, making the 2,520-mile flight in 26 hours and 56 minutes, and so "linking the Atlantic and the Pacific in a non-stop flight."

This extraordinary feat showed not only that a plane could be navigated accurately over long distance by landmarks, but also that the permanent lights of highways, railroads, towns and cities afford a means of navigating an aircraft at night.

The longest flight on record was the round-the-world flight made by Capt. L. H. Smith, Lieuts. L. P. Arnold, E. H. Nelson, John Harding, Jr., Leigh Wade and Sergt. H. H. Ogden in three Douglas transport planes with single 400 horsepower Liberty motors. Twenty-eight thousand miles were covered in five months and 24 days, the longest non-stop flight of which was from Iceland to Greenland, a distance of 830 miles.

The preparation for this stupendous undertaking took intensive study and effort. The best types of planes and routes and landing places had to be selected, and then all three had a practical trial that made this flight of great value both from a commercial and military standpoint.

Zeppelin's Triumph

Let us consider the sensational flights that have been made for the Pulitzer Trophy and the Schneider Cup—the speed classics. Without the spur of competition and the enthusiasm of the race it is probable that our army and navy planes would not have achieved the astonishing speeds of over 270 miles per hour—more than four miles a minute. An unofficial speed of five miles a minute has already been made, and we do not yet know the limit of airplane speed.

Nor must we forget the many notable voyages made by the great dirigibles from the time Count Zeppelin made his first flight in 1900 as a demonstration of his theory that a ship of that type could be flown. One of the greatest of these demonstrations to the public mind that the dirigible was suitable for long flights with several passengers was made in 1919, shortly after the first airplanes crossed the ocean. The British dirigible R-34, commanded by Maj. George H. Scott and manned by a hardy crew, left England on July 2, and arrived at Mitchel Field on Long Island four days later.

She nearly ran out of gasoline in trying to evade a storm, but following winds came to her assistance and she made her landing safely. Then she turned around and flew the 3,000 miles back to England in 75 hours.

Not only did that magnificent achievement catch the imagination of the world and thrill it, but it brought home to every man the fact that the Atlantic could be bridged by airships as well as airplanes and in lower flying time than the best time of the swiftest steamships.

Conquest of the Ocean

Five years later the ZR-3, now called the Los Angeles, was flown from Friedrichshafen, Germany, to Lakehurst, New Jersey, for delivery to the American Navy, thus proving that the success of the R-34 was no freak of luck and that the distances between America and Europe were really conquered by a new kind of machine devised by man. That flight of 4,060 miles was made in 81 hours and 17 minutes—a tremendous distance to cover by aircraft in a single flight in that remarkably short time.

She was a larger ship than the R-34, and now both England and this country are building others twice as large.

Secretary Hoover, now following this pioneering, has announced that regular trans-Atlantic mail and passenger service will be instituted by one of these British airships the R-100 with the co-operation of the American Government.

Think what a long time has elapsed since the first crossing of the Atlantic by the Savannah in 1819 and then, by comparing in your mind that pioneer, steamship with the Leviathan or the Mauretania you may have some idea of what the airship might become in the next century.

Conquest of the Atlantic by aircraft seems to be proceeding with much more rapidity than did the conquest by steamships. The Savannah crossed in 1819 the Royal William in 1833; and the Sirius and the Great Western in 1838; fourteen years elapsed between the Savannah and the Royal William.

Alcock and Brown crossed in an airplane in 1919; Read and the N. C. boat also crossed in that same year, and Scott and the R-34 flew over and back a few months later. And within five years after that the ZR-3, or the Los Angeles, was flown over from Germany. The around-the-world flight of the army planes called for an Atlantic crossing. Then we come to Pacific and Atlantic air crossings of 1927. All of this in eight years.

The second fact which strikes me was that one of these early ships was lost at sea with all hands, her fate to this day remaining an impenetrable mystery.

Norge's Flight

The epochal flight of the Norge across the North polar regions did much to wipe out some of the skepticism created by disasters among dirigibles. The Amundsen-Ellsworth-Nobile expedition not only accomplished one of the greatest non-stop flights on record, but also performed one of the greatest feats of exploration in all history. It would seem that the polar flight, and eight other flights our Josephine Ford Fokker made from Spitzbergen, showed that heavier-than-air craft can fly in the Arctic—can conquer it, at least at certain times of the year. But that fact was known before the flight and has no immediate value unless it becomes necessary to fly up there in the near future. Our flights made the previous year from Etah, 700 miles from the Pole, where 6,000 miles all told were flown by the three planes, had proved that seaplanes can be used in the Arctic in midsummer.

The flight of both the Norge and the Josephine Ford demonstrated that in spite of the queer things the compass does in the Arctic regions, it is possible under certain conditions to navigate an aircraft accurately up there. The sun-compass is not only a contribution to aviation, but will probably be useful on all sea-going ships for steering when the sun shines and for quickly and accurately obtaining the error of the magnetic compass.

Noville Heated Motors

As to the engines, Lieut. G. O. Noville worked out a method of starting them in cold weather, which is, I believe, a contribution to science. He covered our Wright air-cooled motors with a fireproof canvas hood, and by placing a gasoline stove beneath them, heated the motors to any desired temperature.

Whether or not the recent long flights of 1927 and 1928 have helped the aviation game, and in what way, I must leave to the future to judge, as we are too close to the picture.

It seems fair to conclude then that spectacular flights are more than just circus stunts made to satisfy a morbid appetite for excitement, or to make money, for expeditions have nearly all developed fair deficits.

Bleriot's flight preceded regular flights across the English Channel. Maynard's flight preceded regular flights across the United States. Read's trans-Atlantic crossing was followed by other similar crossings. The trans-Atlantic flight of the air ship R-34 and Los Angeles will, as we have seen, probably be followed by regular airship flights next summer. It is simply a matter of economic evolution.

Spectacular flights accelerate progress, for which the flight is decided upon, then necessity in some cases produces inventions and developments which, in the ordinary course of events, would tend to be very slow and uncertain. Sensational flights are the italics in the story of aviation's progress. Certain it is that the United States is specially adapted to aviation by its great distances, and specially favored for it by the temperament of its people.

As regards international good fellowship that has resulted from spectacular flights there seems no argument. As times goes on, aviation will be shown to be more an instrument of peace and progress than of war. For the trans-Atlantic and trans-Pacific flights will bring us closer to the nations of the world, both in distance and in sympathy.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

by HARRY KECK
SPORTS EDITOR

JAMES (RED) MASON rushes in as we are about to go to press with the important announcement that he is not going to retire.

Which reminds us that it is difficult to understand what Billy Gibson retired from the other day when his man, Gene Tunney, quit. Billy let it be known that he, too, was retiring, but, as he has had very little to do as Tunney's manager ever since Tunney won the championship, he must have meant that he was retiring for a nap.

Billy Gibson.

Bill is a grand fellow, a democratic sort of a cuss. Tunney began to make strides forward toward a chance at the title as soon as he made a hookup with Gibson, and not before. Then when Gibson, through his connections, had placed Gene on the throne, Gene began to do his own managing, paying Billy to front for him as a manager, but denying him the actual portfolio. It was common gossip that whenever Tunney intended to make any sort of a move Gibson was the last man he informed of his intentions.

Billy's main job seemed to be to stand outside wondering what was going on while Gene was in conference with his lawyers and rich advisors. After the issues were settled, Billy could buy a newspaper and read about them, the same as the other folks on the outside looking in. But his pay went on just the same, and Gib, like a good sport, took his medicine and didn't utter a peep. He was much like the fellow who was assigned to help a bozo who had nothing to do and spent all of his time doing it. Now that he's retired, along with Gene, he'll probably go to work for a rest.

FOR all of that, Gib, I repeat, was and is a swell fellow. Only a swell guy, a hail fellow well met and a good sport would put up with the treatment Gib got from Tunney, or would accept the curb to his authority that he suffered and keep quiet about it. Gib was in the fight racket before Tunney knew what a boxing glove looked like. He was a manager and promoter and matchmaker. He was alternately up in the chips, as they say, and broke flatter than a pancake. But, flush or broke, he always had friends—and he used these friendships to put Gene in a position to win the title.

Gib picked up Benny Leonard when Benny sneaked into his old fight club in New York, and he nursed the kid along until he made him a great champion, and Benny then quit on him and went into retirement with the title. Then Bill picked up Louie (Kid) Kaplan after Louie had given up the featherweight championship because he couldn't make the weight of the class any longer, and Louie flopped as a lightweight. Tunney still was left to Gib—but how! Gene was going about contracting his own business, signing his own papers, doing the thinking for the firm, collecting the money and paying Gib a salary to be a manager in name only.

And now Gib comes to the end of the trail—and bleak retirement. And without anything visible from which to retire, so that even the retirement is a hollow gesture. Our heart and hand go out to Gib, a good sport and, we repeat, a regular fellow. Wish that we could find something for him to retire from other than a champion who retired him well

CORSAIRS REGAIN FIFTH PLACE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 3. Fred Fussell, who deserved but did not get a shutout victory over the Giants in his last time out, will face the Quakers this afternoon as a part of the Pirate victory plans. Fred was outlucked into defeat at the Polo Grounds a few days ago, but if he gets a break or two today, his mates think he will take the measure of the men of Baker.

The Pirates this morning seemed to have recovered somewhat from their many dashes in the sweltering heat of yesterday. No less than 18 of the Bushwhackers sank their spikes in the home plate as they recorded an overwhelming victory over the Phils. The count was 18 to 4 with all precincts tabulated.

The most pleasing result of the triumph, aside from the fact that Grimes got his eighteenth win, was the fact that the Freebooters moved back into fifth place. The Cubs aided by beating the Robins with Hal Carlson on the hill.

The Duke of Burleigh continued his grand march as he pushed over the home team in the opening game of the series. Grimes, however, was not on the job when the one-sided fight ended. Due to the heat or for some other reason, Burleigh became indisposed after pitching more than half of the contest. Joe Dawson went to the mound in the sixth and pitched like a good fellow for the remainder of the contest. Grimes, however, recorded his eighteenth victory.

BENGE TO TWIRL

Ray Benge, generally considered the leading pitcher on the Baker payroll, is due to flip the ball against the Western Pennsylvanians this afternoon. Benge is the Texas League recruit whose cleverness has been noted by all rival players.

Charlie Hargreaves is likely to decorate the wood again today. The Trenton athlete and first-string receiver of the Pirates damaged a finger-nail in the practice of yesterday. The accident caused Manager Bush to call upon Rolly Hemsley. The youngster from the coal mines of Ohio was the life of the party in the hot-weather conflict. While most of the contestants were willing to move along without any unnecessary yelling, Rolly was shouting like an Indian on the warpath. He handles Grimes like an old-timer.

Russell Miller essayed to check the drive of the Pirates in the opener, but the Columbus boy found the Pittsburghers in a distinctive batting mood. Miller left the scene in the second round, the Pirate slate showing six tallies at the time. Recruit Walsh didn't fare very well as he went to the rescue of his mate.

Glenn Wright nicked him for a three-run homer over the garden wall in the same frame and in the succeeding inning, Poot. Grantham matched Buckshot's round-tripper. Six runs on the two homers in successive innings represents heavy scoring, but anything is likely to happen in the Baker bowl.

After the third the Pirates were

CHAMPION DEFENDS TITLE

Carl Kauffmann, Pittsburgh city champion and National Public Links titleholder, is defending the latter crown in the annual tournament being played over the Cobb's Creek free course at Philadelphia this week. Above he is seen holing out on the final green during the qualifying round.

POLICEMAN MEDALIST

Pittsburgh is more or less dominating the National Public Links championship this year. Kauffmann, the defending champion, hails from this city, and so does Sam Graham, the police lieutenant, who led the field in the qualifying round. Both qualified for match play, along with C. J. Lunden, also of this city. Kauffmann still survives after the first three rounds of match play, while Graham went out in the second round and Lunden in the first yesterday.

OFFICIALS MAY PROBE OLYMPIC DEFEATS

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Rich food and too much of it. Climate, insufficient work, too much work, and last but not least, keener competition—these are reasons advanced in various circles to explain the relatively poor showing of the American athletes on the Olympic track.

Although the range of excuses advanced cover territories as remote from each other as the North and South poles, one thing remains certain concerning all of them—that a feverish search for explanations has begun as a result of the unprecedented succession of setbacks the Yankee favorites have suffered. Opinions are as divided within the American ranks as without, and the general dissatisfaction obtaining among the American official family, while not being blazoned from the housetops, is not being kept secret.

Even if America's failure to carry off the honors in one or more track events had been successfully explained to the satisfaction of the coaches of the United States team, the discreet snickers of their European rivals would have reminded them of their failure. While there is not likely to be any immediate action taken here, the cards appear to be stacked for a thorough shuffling upon the return home of the American team.

COMPETITION BETTER

From the viewpoint of the official chief of the American delegation, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, "stiffer competition from Europe, as well as other parts of the world," is responsible for the startling defeats of the Americans.

"Our boys train on faster tracks and make faster times as the result," the General points out. "Consequently when they meet Europeans on the latter's own tracks their advantage is reduced. I think the opposition is better in every respect."

Head Coach Lawson Robertson, who has sat glumly in the press box thus far while his athletes have been "taking it on the chin," blames the climate and training conditions for the failures. Robbie and his aides worked under unusual difficulties after debarking, and were divided between giving the athletes plenty of work or risking injuries on poor practice tracks.

The athletes themselves, at least many of them, insist they did not have enough work to regain the peak of condition they reached for the final trials.

"I know I was short of practice, whether or not that cost me the victory," declared Steve Anderson, University of Washington high hurdler, who came within inches of beating out Sid Atkinson, South

JIM M'LARNIN SCORES KAYO

DETROIT, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—The pile-driving power that Jimmy McLarnin packs in his hands has blasted another obstacle from his path to a return shot at Sammy Mandell's title, and at the same time relegated to the pugilistic scrap heap the title aspirations of Stanislaus Loayza, of Chile.

Last night a capacity crowd of 18,000 persons saw the Pacific Coast Irishman belt the courageous little South American into a state of insensibility in four rounds at the Olympia arena.

HARVARD DEFEATS JAPS

SLOTEN, Holland, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—The Harvard four-oared crew with coxswain, resenting the United States in the Olympic regatta here, got back into the running for the championship in its class by defeating the Japanese quartet today.

Harvard's four won by two lengths. It time was 7 minutes and 43 seconds for the 2,000 meter course.

As a result of its victory over the Japanese, the Harvard crew will participate in tonight's draw for tomorrow's races as if it had not lost to the German outfit yesterday. Scullers and crews who lost both yesterday and today aare definitely eliminated, but there were no Americans among them.

The United States double scullers beat the Swiss by five lengths in one of the first trial heats.

Charles McIlvaine and Paul V. Costello, of the Penn A. C., Philadelphia, led by two lengths at 500 meters. At the half-way mark, 1,000 meters, they were three lengths in the lead. They had increased their advantage to five lengths whn the 1,500-meter mark was reached and held this position until the end.

The American pair oared shell with coxswain of the Penn A. C., Philadelphia, was beaten by the Italian entrants by half a length. Charles McIlvaine and Paul V. Costello rowed the American shell with 14-year-old Tommy Mack serving as coxswain. The Italians were R. Vestrini and P. L. Vestrini and C. Milani as coxswain.

Canada beat Holland in the double sculls by three lengths. Canada's time was 7 minutes 48 1-5 seconds.

The Austrian scullers, Losert and Flessle, beat the British pair, Boardman and Guye, by one length. Time 7 minutes 55 4-5 seconds.

In the four-oared shells without coxswain event, the Pennsylvania Barge Club crew defeated a German crew from Dresden by a length and a half.

The British four-oared crew without coxswain defeated the French crew in 7 minutes 44 1-5 seconds.

HERB ELLISON NAMED TO REPLACE TARLETON

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Herbert Ellison, last year manager of the San Francisco Pacific Coast League club has taken over the management of the Dallas Texas League team succeeding Robert Tarleton. Dallas has lost the last seven games played.

Tarleton formerly was manager of the Shreveport Texas League club. He came to Dallas from the Pittsburgh Nationals, where he had served in a business capacity, early this season.

YANK WINS 400-METER OLYMPIC TITLE

OLYMPIC STADIUM, AMSTERDAM, Holland, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Ray Barbuti brought the United States its first running track victory of the Olympic games by winning the 400-meter championship today.

Big Barbuti, former Syracuse University football star, scored in brilliant style over a field of the greatest quarter-milers in the world.

His victory saved the United States from utter rout in the track events, as this was the last of the Olympic cinder path races with the exception of the relays.

Barbuti's time was 47 4-5 seconds, within one-fifth of a second of the Olympic record.

WITHSTANDS DRIVE

The American barrely withstood a terrific closing drive to beat James Ball, of Canada, by inches and collapsed after scoring his victory.

Herman Phillips, of the Illinois A. C., the second American to reach the final, also placed among the point winners, finishing sixth.

Barbuti, giving every ounce of energy and heart, raced into the stretch with the lead, having passed the two Germans, Buchner and Storz, but began to falter with the tape in sight. He fought his way forward as Bell rushed up, gaining at every stride. The American barely got to the tape first, falling forward full length on the track.

WINNER DRAWS POLE

Barbuti drew the pole position, while Phillips was far outside. Phillips was off in flashy style and led at the halfway point with Barbuti running easily. The Germany favorite, Joachim Buchner, made his bid around the last turn and moved out, followed by his countryman, Harry Storz.

Barbuti, picking up, gained rapidly and had a clear four yards with 50 meters to go. The Canadian, Ball, timed his spring too late and failed by less than one foot to catch the American, who fought to the finish courageously.

Although Phillips brought the United States one point he finished last, as the field numbered but six. He weakened somewhat after setting a killing pace.

The American contingent, which has been sitting gloomily for five days, went wild as the big ex-Syracusan won this event for America for the first time since 1912. Picked up after his great finish, Barbuti staggered drunkenly for a few moments, but revived quickly enough to respond to cheers and jog off the field.

The order of finish in this great race was: Barbuti, United States; Hall, Canada; Buchner, Germany; Rinkel, Britain; Storz, Germany, and Phillips, United States.

The point score for the 17 men's track and field events completed thus far, including the two which took place today, follows, the totals being computed under the unofficial but general system of awarding 10 points for first, five for second, four for third, three for fourth, two for fifth and one for sixth: United States, 142; Finland, 64; Great Britain, 40; Sweden, 37; Germany, 34; Canada, 33; Japan, 15; South Africa, 14; France, 10; Ireland, 10; Norway, 7; Hungary, 5; Haiti, 5.

Willie Ritola, of Finland, won the 5,000-meter running championship. Two young Americans, Leo Lermond and Macauley Smith, were beaten after a game attempt to stay with the Flying Finns, Ritola and Nurmi, who jockeyed, setting the

by TOM BIRKS

CUM POSEY'S Homestead Grays copped the initial battle with the Lincoln Giants of New York, but before that game was over local followers had many anxious moments, especially in the final innings. Beckwith's triple, that nearly reached the flagpole in the seventh frame, was really the turning point of the locals' victory. However, there seemed to be much bad feeling between Posey, who, by the way, was coaching on the first base line, and members of the big city outfit.

This feeling was engendered in the seventh frame when Posey claimed interference by the Yankee coach when Washington was trying to catch an easy foul fly behind first base. Washington fell trying to make the catch and Posey appealed to Buck Snyder, the plate umpire. Buck passed the buck to brother Beggs and then waved the batter out. Things looked pretty promising for a fistic scene between the batsman and Posey, but Buck Snyder broke it up.

Lincoln has a peach of a left-hander in Winters. He had a fast, sharp-breaking curve that played havoc with the Grays' sluggers. But Smoky Joe was in fine form and, while the rain was falling in the heavy gloom, he cut that fast ball over a plenty. Posey passed up a good chance to win the game in the fifth when the home sluggers were getting to Winters. With runners on first and third, Posey sent Harris down, and he was thrown out by a proverbial mile. And that broke up a promising rally.

The feature attraction of the sandlot week will be staged at Sullivan Field on Sunday when the Monongahela All-Stars meet St. Johns in the third round of the Class A eliminations. The up-river followers of the series feel that the Mon City boys will cop the title that New Eagle narrowly missed last season. Manager McGrady is going to have Rosemyer all primed for the game, which means so much and the largest crowd of the season is expected to be on hand.

The J. F. Galley Club, of Curry, is looking for a home game Sunday with one of the leading clubs of the district. Manager Al Schang was in the office asking for a little recognition, and feels he should get it when one of the best nines in the district comes under his managerial arm.

The Galleys have a real club with an excellent pitching staff, stated Al, and can play every evening and Sunday if games can be obtained. The Galleys want to book on the home-and-home basis and will provide plenty of opposition for any

CHAMPION TRIUMPHS IN CLOSE MATCH

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 3. Kendall Morrison, of St. Joseph, Mo., and Nicholas D'Onofrio, New York, today advanced to the semifinals in the national public links championship at the Cobbs Creek municipal course.

Morrison defeated Frank Invernizzi, of Baltimore, 7 and 6, while D'Onofrio triumphed over Frank Brokl, of St. Paul, 4 and 3, in the third round.

Carl Kauffmann, Pittsburgh, defending champion, also reached the semi-finals. He defeated Earl McAleer, left-handed star of Washington, D. C., 1 up on the home green.

Phil Ogden, of Cleveland, is the fourth semi-finalist. He defeated Barney Lucas, Los Angeles, Cal., 6 and 4, in the third round.

After a tense fight for 16 holes, the Kauffmann-McAleer match became a series of anti-climaxes on the last two holes. One down playing the seventeenth, McAleer's pitch on the short seventeenth was well over the green, but struck a tree, rebounding to the green 10 feet from the pin. Kauffmann, just over, was too strong with his chip and took a four, squaring the match.

On the eighteenth, with McAleer to the right of the green and Kauffmann off the back edge, the champion chipped three feet short of the cup and McAleer chipped within 15 inches. Kauffman, after careful study, ran down his three-footer, but McAleer missed the one of 15 inches.

The cards:

McAleer, Washington southpaw, beaten by Kauffmann today, yesterday eliminated Sam Graham, Pittsburgh police lieutenant, 7 and 6. Graham won the qualifying medal in the present tourney and McAleer was the medalist in the 1924 championship.

With the exception of Graham's defeat, there were no upsets. Brokl scored a 19-hole victory over Elliott Martin, 19-year-old Jacksonville star, in the morning and crushed Harold Cook, of Toledo, 5 and 3, in the second round.

Morrison had to play 18 holes in each of his matches, but came through.

DE MARCO WINS IN FAST BOUT

Cuddy DeMarco came from behind in the final rounds of his bout with Larry Brignolia at Cycler Park, McKeesport, last night to punch himself out a victory over the hard hitting Larry. Cuddy was forced to call upon all of his cleverness to win the decision of the judges after 10 hard rounds.

DeMarco fought one of the best fights of his career against Brignolia. Larry fought back every minute, and his punching kept Cuddy at top speed. In the fifth round, Brignolia landed a right hook to DeMarco's chin that sent Cuddy to the floor but only for an instant.

DeMarco came back with surprising strength and in the tenth round had Brignolia hanging on the ropes. DeMarco was credited with five of the ten rounds, Brignolia getting three and two being even.

In the semi-final, Johnny Ryan of Erie knocked out Ken Hargrave of New Kensington in the fourth round a scheduled eight round bout with a left hook to the stomach.

Jimmy Belmont of Braddock won the decision over Allen Beatty of McKeesport in the seconnd bout of six rounds. In the opener, Mike Hogan of the North Side won by a technical knockout over George Mareau of Charleroi when the bout was stopped in the sixth round.

PETE SCOTT SENT HOME

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 3.—Pete Scott, Pirate outfielder, who injured a vetrebrae in his neck in New York a week ago, will leave the metropolis for Pittsburgh today, instead of coming to Philadelphia to join the Pirates.

The decision to send Scott home was made by the Pirate officials after Secretary Sam Watters talked with Scott's physician this morning. Scott had been discharged from the Lutheran Hospital in New York, but wanted to take more treatments from his physician so remained in that city. After reaching Pittsburgh he will rest up with the idea of being ready to join his mates when they return home Thursday morning.

Clyde Barnhart is well enough to play again, but, with Fred Brickell hitting like a star, he hasn't much chance of breaking in.

FIGHT RESULTS

At McKeesport—Cuddy DeMarco defeated Larry Brignolia, 10 rounds; Johnny Ryan knocked out Ken Hargraves, 4 rounds; Jimmy Belmont defeated Allen Beatty, 6 rounds; Mike Hogan won by technical knockout over George Mareau, 6 rounds.

At Johnstown—Bobby Richardson knocked out Linn Jordan, 9 rounds; Gene Baker and Charley Brodd drew, 6 rounds; Tug Phillips and Jess Hoak drew, 6 rounds; Julian Mason defeated Billy Palm, 4 rounds.

Elliott Crowned Boys' Net Champ

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN.

MIDGET PAUL ELLIOTT, sturdy mite of a Wilkinsburg newsboy, will represent the Pittsburgh Tennis Association in the National Boys' tennis championships at Culver Military Academy, Culver, Ind., the week of August 13. The tiny suburbanite squeezed through a torrid Pittsburgh Center boys' final against Edwin Clarke, hard-hitting Beaver Falls youngster, by a 6-2, 3-6, 8-6 margin on the P. A. A. gallery court yesterday afternoon and thereby garnered for himself the $100 P. T. A. prize that means an all-week trip to the national meeting. The victor in the Junior division has not yet been determined, Billy O'Loughlin, 1927 titleholder, and Bob Lampus, Harvard Cup premier, being slated to clash for the honor on the Winged Head lot at 1 p. m. today.

NEED MORE WORK

Other American athletes shared Anderson's opinion, but in contrast to these views Trainer Peter Poole asserted, "I never saw a staler athlete than Lloyd Hahn." Hahn, coached exclusively by Jack Ryder, was one of the biggest disappointments to the Americans and the feeling prevails that he was worked too hard. This is merely a sample of the divergent views.

Lavish feeding aboard the floating hotel of the American team, the steamship President Roosevelt, is the chief reason for the Yankee failures in the opinion of the boxing coach, Spike Webb. His views are echoed by British as well as Canadian observers, who contrast the "luxurious" living and feeding arrangements for the Americans with the simple and isolated living accommodations provided for the British Empire's victorious sons. Although he was not talking in his official capacity and disclaimed any idea of criticizing the methods of the other trainers, Webb made no secret of the fact that the Americans, while keeping away from liquid refreshments, went too heavily on epicurean delights—at least that was the idea Spike conveyed, although he didn't use those exact words.

"Why, I had all the trouble in the world to keep my boxers from getting outside of three or four helpings of each dish," Spike volunteered. "I didn't exactly starve them to death, but they were all overweight when we got here. It seemed as though the boys were more interested in an eating contest than in the Olympic games."

pace all the way. Lermond finished fourth and Smith dropped out on the eighth lap.

Ritola succeeded as champion his countryman and rival, Paavo Nurmi, but kept the title in Finland.

Nurmi, after sticking to Ritola's heels for the last eight laps, created a sensation by not chasing as Willie closed with a spurt that carried him to the tape 40 meters ahead of Paavo. Nurmi kept looking around at the next man, Edvin Wide, and contented himself with just beating the Swede for second.

Ritola's time was 14 minutes 38 seconds, nearly seven seconds slower than Nurmi's Olympic record.

PRE-ARRANGED RACE

The flying Finn apparently ran a pre-arranged race with Ritola slated to win. Nurmi perhaps desired to set at rest stories that he and Willie still are at odds.

In their "Alfonse and Gaston" act, Paavo obliged by setting the early pace, carrying the two youthful Americans along at a dizzy clip. Then satisfied that the race was well under way, Nurmi deliberately moved out so Ritola could take the lead and never threatened him thereafter.

Smith stuck first to Nurmi and then to Ritola's heels for eight of the 13 laps, but wilted quickly and withdrew on the back stretch of the ninth lap. Lermond carried on the battle for three more laps, but the pace was too hot for him. He faltered on next to the last lap and finished 50 meters behind Wide.

Nurmi's defeat was his first in an Olympic final since 1920, when he was beaten in the same race by Joseph Guillemot, of France. Paavo has won seven finals in three Olympic games.

The judges today officially awarded third place in the disputed 200 meters final to Helmut Koernig, of Germany, after Jackson Scholz, of the United States, had declined to run off the tie in which they were placed on Wednesday. The sprinters were invited to stage a special race this morning. Koernig was willing, but Scholz declined because he has broken training.

The effect of the decision puts the United States no better than fourth in either sprint and also takes one-half point off the American score and gaves the same to Germany.

comparatively quiet. They picked up a run here and there and when the ninth began owned 14 tallies. They broke out again in earnest in the ninth, four more Buccos making the circuit.

Dawson pitched three runless rounds after relieving Grimes. Joe decided to ease up in the heat as the home players came up for their last "cuts." The Quakers were quick to seize the little opportunity, they scoring a brace of tallies on three doubles. They were able to make only two while Grimes worked.

MONROE WINS STANTON HGTS. TOURNEY

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER

BOB MONROE rules where Joe Crawford once held sway. Playing excellent golf in the semi-final and final rounds of the sixteenth annual Stanton Heights invitation tournament yesterday, the home club star defeated the defending champion first and then went into the finals to down Fred Brand, Jr., of Hannastown, 3 and 2.

Crawford and Brand entered the semi-finals established as favorites. Crawford, Oakmont star, was beaten by Monroe, 2 up. Brand disposed of Lang Hukill, Jr., of Shannopin, in the other semi-final round, 4 and 3.

In the second flight, Bindley Reitz emerged victor, defeating F. E. Campbell in the finals, 2 and 1. He defeated Freddie Weppner in the morning, 2 and 1.

Larry Seamans was victor in the third flight, downing Thomas Bloch, 2 and 1. He won over J. R. Dickie in the semi-finals, 5 and 4.

In the fourth flight J. C. Sheedy beat Sam Brown for the title, 2 and 1, with George Euwer topping Walter Phillips in the finals of the fifth flight, 1 up, after 20 holes. Euwer won from Walter Shanahan in the morning match, 5 and 4.

Enos Kirkpatrick took sixth flight honors. Kirkpatrick won from H. Alexander, 1 up, in 21 holes in the morning and downed Carl Schuster, 2 and 1, in the finals.

The best round of the entire tournament was scored by Fred Weppner in the special sweepstakes event staged after the match play finals, when he went around in 68. F. L. Simonson, with a low net of 64, won the event. The leading scores follow:

NOTES of the BOXERS

JACKIE RODGERS, flashy Negro flyweight, of the North Side, leaves tonight for Toledo, where he is tentatively matched to box Luis Carpentero within a few weeks. Jackie has just returned to action following a layoff due to a dislocated thumb. He has matches in view at Washington, Pa., and New Castle in addition to the Toledo bout.

Ray Miller and King Tut meet in their postponed bout at the Coney Island Stadium tonight. Happy Atherton and Harry Goldstein are in the semi-final. Izzy Schwartz, the flyweight champion, boxes Little Jeff of Baltimore at the Rockaway (L. I.) club.

Both Jack Sharkey and Johnny Risko have a "peeve" against Tex Rickard for giving Tom Heeney the call over them as Gene Tunney's last opponent and aver that they will not enter his new heavyweight elimination tournament. Risko is matched to box Roberto Roberti for Humbert Fugazy and Sharkey is going to barnstorm about the country meeting all comers.

KERN MAY ASSIST M'LAREN AS COACH

According to reports from Denver, Bill Kern, star tackle of the University of Pittsburgh football team, may be signed to assist Dr. George McLaren, also a former Pitt star, as coach of the University of Wyoming football eleven.

RISKS TITLE TONIGHT

NEW YORK, August 3.—(AP.)—Izzy Schwartz, recognized in this state as flyweight champion of the world, defends his title against Little Jeff, of Baltimore, in a 15-round bout tonight at the Rockaway Stadium. It will be Schwartz' second title defense in two weeks.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

by HARRY KECK

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

in advance of his own retirement.

THE kids certainly learn their stuff early nowadays, as witness an incident that befell Mike Gazella, utility player of the New York Yankees and former college football star.

Ford Frick, a scribe traveling with the Yankees, tells the story, one of the best of the year, as follows:

Mrs. Gazella, coming to New York a month or two ago, was attempting to impress on her young daughter the necessity of remembering her name, her address and her daddy's name, in case she ever should be lost.

After considerable instruction Mrs. Gazella finally decided to hold a rehearsal.

"Now tell me your name," she said.

The little girl told her name promptly.

"And where do you live?"

The little girl answered that one, too.

"What's your daddy's name?"

"Michael Gazella."

"And what does your daddy do?"

"He sits on the bench," was the youngster's prompt, though unexpected, response.

"IT All Depends On You," is the refrain the followers of the American track and field forces are mentally singing to Joie Ray, the hope of the United States in the Olympic marathon race to be run Sunday, as they cast about for some ray of sunshine after the fine kicking our runners have received to date in the cinderpath events of the Amsterdam games. Clarence DeMar, Bill Agee, Harvey Frick, Jim Henigan and Whitey Michelson also are American marathon entrants, but most is expected from the little reformed middle-distance runner, who has been a sensation since he turned to the 26-mile, 385-yard grind.

Ray is in a tough spot against those Finns and Swedes and other rugged plodders, but he has the proper competitive spirit and may provide the miracle that will prevent our runners from falling victims to a complete debacle. A victory in the classic race will go a long way toward assuaging the feelings of the folks back home.

PLAN MORGAN BOUT

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3.—(INS.)—A title match between Tod Morgan of Seattle, junior-lightweight champion, and Santiago Zorilla, flashy San Blas Indian, was in prospect here today, following Promoter Ancil Hoffman's announcement that he had procured Morgan's tentative approval. The bout, if arrangements are concluded, would be staged in September.

A Shaving Cream that ends tenderface —its healing, double-dense lather completely lubricates skin, giving smoother shaves
THINK of it! No more skin irritation after shaving! No more burning and smarting. For here's a new kind of shaving cream with a wonderful lubricating lather which ends all shaving discomfort.
Tenderface is usually caused by friction—the rough scraping of razor over skin. Only through complete lubrication can this friction be ended.
Ordinary lather cannot lubricate the skin completely. It is too light and frothy. Lifebuoy Shaving Cream, however, with its healing, double-dense lather, hugs the face so closely that a thoroughly lubricated shaving surface is formed. You get a cleaner, faster shave, yet your razor scarcely seems to touch it.
Also, Lifebuoy Shaving Cream contains the same antiseptic ingredient as the famous Lifebuoy Health Soap. Your skin is kept clean, smooth and healthy. Lifebuoy Shaving Cream is really a shaving cream and face lotion in one. Get the big red tube today. LEVER BROS CO. Cambridge, Mass.

Personalities or Principles; Which Should We Consider?

By B. C. FORBES

WHAT is foremost in your mind when you think of the coming presidential election? Is it not the two leading candidates, Herbert Hoover and Gov. Smith?

Is it a mistake to put persons ahead of parties, to think more of the personalities of the candidates than the principles they stand for?

THAT question is raised by Ludwig Stein, president of B. Kuppenheimer and Company, the nationally-known clothing concern. He writes:

"I have been following your daily newspaper articles appertaining to the effect of the coming presidential election on business with an avid interest, and to my knowledge, neither you nor other writers have impressed the public with one point which, to me, is of singular importance.

"Business interests will be served best in the coming election if the American electorate will go to the polls and give approbation to party principles and platforms, and not to individual candidacies or personalities.

"It seems to me that voters should be more desirous of having that party in power which will satisfactorily serve their interests, than in elevating to the presidency any single individual because of his personality or accomplishments.

"After the election, industry will very largely be governed by the principles and policies of the party in power, yet I venture to say that preceding the election very few voters will give sufficient thought to these policies.

"A more thorough study of the respective merits of each party's platform and its accomplishments over a period of years by business men would be more conducive to industrial progress than 'horn blowing' for any particular candidate because of his political record.

"After all, the will of the legislative body of the nation shall continue to be the law of the land, and sound government will only ensue when there is harmonious functioning of the executive, legislative and judicial division of our government. If the personal views of the executives are not compatible with those of Congress, there is apt to be unsatisfactory legislative progress.

"I should appreciate hearing any thoughts you may have on this subject."

WHEN I consider purchasing securities, I always want to know the character and caliber of the man or men at the head of an organization. If the president has made a wonderful record, either where he is or before he joined his company, I assume, other things being satisfactory, that he will continue to do well, and I consequently buy the securities of his company without misgiving.

On the other hand, although a concern may be making the rosiest of promises and even a wonderful showing of earnings, I steer clear of its stocks if I find that his record does not appeal to me.

I confess that I am guilty of what Mr. Stein complains of. After all, the kind of legislation this nation will get during the four years from next March will be influenced more by the man occupying the White House than by any other man in America. It is easy enough to write vote-catching platforms, to make fine-sounding speeches of acceptance, and to deliver alluring campaign addresses. But ideas and promises are of little account unless they are put into force. And you must look to men to do that.

THE label a man wears is infinitely less important than what the man actually is. Personally, I would rather see the affairs of this commonwealth administrated by Democrats of the finest character and caliber than by Republicans of questionable character and caliber; also, I would prefer the right type of Republicans to the wrong type of Democrats.

Let us discuss principles and platforms, yes. Yet I think the public will do well to attach great importan[illegible], indeed, to individual candidates, their personalities, their principles, their life's record. We are governed by laws, but all our laws are made by men. Therefore, the character of men we elect to make or mold our laws is of the supremest importance. And, as already said, the President of the United States exercises more influence on our law-making than any other citizen.

STOCK RALLY LEAD BY OIL SHARES

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—A brisk demand for the oil shares, based on expanding earnings as a result of the recent increase in commodity prices, featured the resumption of the upward price movement in today's stock market. The rally, which ran from 1 to 6 points in many issues, followed an early period of irregularity in which the market was called upon to absorb a heavy volume of selling as a result of the large increase in brokers' loans and the more stringent regulations of the New York Clearing House Association.

Lowering of the call money rate from 7 to 6½ per cent stimulated the buying movement. Publication of another batch of favorable semi-annual earnings reports, and the cheerful tenor of the weekly trade reviews also helped to revive bullish enthusiasm.

Atlantic Refining, after running up more than 6 points, ran into heavy profit-taking, but the other oils, particularly the refining issues, continued to press forward. Houston climbed 4½ points and Union Oil of California, Pierce Oil preferred, Mexican Seaboard and Sun Oil advanced 2 points or more.

Motors responded to reports of heavy mid-summer sales of new cars with Chrysler in the forefront of the advance. General Motors was a bit backward on selling inspired by rumors that directors might defer the declaration of an extra cash dividend until later in the year. International Nickel, Trico Products, Coco Cola, Warner Bros. Pictures, National Distillers, Johns Manville and American Radiator all advanced 3 points or more.

Rails were quiet despite the prediction of President Loomis, of the Lehigh Valley Road, that the anthracite carriers would show marked improvement in the last half of the year.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—The cotton market opened firm today at an advance of 15 to 25 points and showed net advances of 27 to 33 points in early trading in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables and talk of a firmer technical position.

There were more expressions of uncertainty as to the probable showing of next week's government crop report, which probably increased the disposition to cover short contracts after the recent severe decline, but buying was not particularly active or aggressive. After selling up to 19.57c for December, the market eased off a few points by the end of the first hour.

Private cables reported continental selling and liquidation in Liverpool, with prices but slightly better than expected in view of yesterday's decline in the local market.

The volume of business tapered off after the opening advance and fluctuation were rather irregular during the middle of the morning, but the dip seemed to bring in further covering and prices held fairly steady. A private report placing the condition of the crop at 66.5 and the indicated yield at 14,610,000 bales was slightly below some of the recent private figures, and probably helped the tone of the market. At midday December was selling around 19.57c, with the general list showing net advances of about 25 to 30 points.

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

Pittsburgh Retains Lead as Chief of Steel Cities in Spite of Gains in Western District.

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

PITTSBURGH continues to be undisputed leader in the steel industry. Last year it made 25.35 per cent of all the ingots produced in the United States. This was double, or more than double, the figures for every other district with the exception of Chicago, which made 18.81 per cent.

THE abolition of the Pittsburgh plus system of pricing steel erected a tremendous wall of high freight rates which this district has had to surmount in reaching some of its markets, but the resourcefulness to overcome this obstacle has not been lacking. River transportation has been one factor which has helped to maintain the pre-eminence of this district.

IN addition to holding the lead in the production of ingots, Pittsburgh is also the greatest maker of all of the types of finished steel with the exception of rails, in which Chicago holds the lead. These conclusions have been based on a comprehensive survey of steel production and steel capacity made by the Iron Age.

PITTSBURGH'S share of the steel output varies from 20½ per cent of the total in sheets to 44 per cent in tubular products. That its share of the actual output of all steel products is not far out of line in comparison to its facilities is indicated by the fact that the capacity of mills here is 26.9 per cent of the total.

THE extent of Pittsburgh's importance to the steel trade is not fully shown by these proportions. The Valleys are not included as part of the Pittsburgh district in the survey, although they are sufficiently close to have an important bearing on the general commerce of this vicinity. The Valleys produced 12.71 per cent of the ingots.

WITH the westward movement of the center of population and the changes made in the steel pricing system, there has been a movement of steel production in the same direction. This was not great enough to cause any alarm.

The total production of steel ingots and castings decreased almost 7 per cent from 1926 to 1927, but, while Indiana lost only 1.8 per cent and Illinois only 4.2 per cent, the Youngstown district declined 11.7 per cent and Allegheny county 11 per cent.

West Virginia ran contrary to the general trend. It decreased 8.9 per cent from 1925 to 1926, while the industry as a whole gained, but increased 12.4 per cent from 1926 to 1927 when the entire industry lost. This was due to the abandonment of the Riverside plant of the National Tube Company, and the increase resulted from the growth of the Weirton Steel Company.

THE prominence of Pittsburgh from the standpoint of individual types of steel may be seen in the fact that 26.91 per cent of all the rolled products were made here.

Rails amounted to 23.36 per cent, plates to 27.66 per cent, shapes, 34.13 per cent; merchant bars, bands and hoops, 21.82 per cent; sheets, 20.49 per cent; tin plate, 29.49 per cent; pipe, 43.95 per cent, and wire rods, 29.22 per cent.

ON September 1 the financial news service of Dow, Jones & Co. will be made available to Pittsburgh brokers, banks and investment houses on the local broad-tape tickers. W. A. Wyman, who 20 years ago gave Fourth avenue its first electric page financial news tickers, has completed arrangements for the cutting in of a Dow, Jones leased wire which stretches from coast to coast. With the establishment of this news connection Mr. Wyman will change the name of his organization from the New York News Bureau to the Pittsburgh News Ticker Company.

DOW, JONES & CO. publishes the Wall Street Journal and operates financial news tickers in over a dozen of the leading cities of the United States. It is the most widely quoted and copied financial news agency in the country. It is also the oldest news agency in Wall street.

The Pittsburgh News Ticker Company will also operate the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange quotation tickers and the New York curb market tickers here.

MANUFACTURER LEAVES $300,000 TO EMPLOYES

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—(AP.)—Two hundred and fifty employes of the late Aaron Naumburg, manufacturer of hatters' furs, will divide $300,000 of his estate of more than $3,000,000, under the terms of his will, filed for probate today.

Those in his employ for five years at the time of his death last June 29, will receive a year's salary, and those in his employ for 10 years will get two years' salary. Jewish and Catholic religious and charity organizations and non-sectarian welfare societies will share more than $1,250,000. The widow, the former Nettie Goldsmith, of Cleveland, is the chief beneficiary.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Pittsburgh Plate to Split Stock.

The Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company plans to split its stock on a four-for-one basis and to declare a 10 per cent stock dividend before the end of the present year. Directors are considering the listing of the stock on the New York Stock Exchange. A special meeting of stockholders has been called for October 9 to approve an increase in the authorized capital stock from $50,000,000 to $65,000,000 and to replace the present stock of $100 par value with new stock of $25 par value. The dividends on the new stock will be 50 cents a share quarterly, which will be equivalent to the 8 per cent annual rate now being paid on the old stock.

Market Entitled to Reaction.

Many financial observers believe the market is entitled to a reaction on technical consideration. Judging from the comment heard in the street there is a growing tendency toward caution. It is pointed out that average prices, interrupted by only three fractional declines, have moved ahead nearly 12 points since July 17. Such an upturn frequently has resulted in the sacrifice of underlying strength and weakened the technical position. For that reason several observers were advising customers to wait for a good technical setback before re-entering the market on the long side. However, no one expected any radical decline.

Oils Gain in Public Favor.

Oil stocks continue to gain steadily in favor because of improved trade conditions, and particular attention is being given to the so-called "gasoline" issues which are expected to lead this group on any upturn. Importance is attached to the government figures, which showed a decrease of more than 500,000 barrels in stocks of all classes of petroleum products in June, compared with an increase of more than 1,000,000 barrels shown in May. Private reports from Tulsa indicated that oil men there, while refusing to be quoted directly, were of the opinion that another upward adjustment of Mid-Continent crude prices may take place shortly, especially in view of the strength in the gasoline market. Chicago reported bulk motor gas at 9½ cents a gallon, the highest figure of the movement.

Loan Service Charge Increased.

The New York Clearing House Association has approved a change in service charges relating to Street loans placed for the account of customers other than interior banks and has adjusted interest rates of deposits as a further move to curtail the lending by the "others," usually representing corporate and trust funds for which the owners have no particular use at a given period. Old charge for placing Street loans was 5 per cent of the proceeds. The new charge will be one-half of 1 per cent of the principal amount. Interest rates on deposits have been increased to 2 per cent from 1¾ per cent on out-of-town banks' deposits and to 2½ per cent from 2 per cent on commercial deposits. On deposits of 30 days or longer the interest rate has been increased to 3½ per cent from 2½ per cent. It was also decided that the minimum amount to be handled as a Street loan shall be $100,000. With increasing publicity being given brokers' loans knowledge of the subject has increased. More and more organizations are instructing their bankers to place part of their balances in call loans. Previously such surplus funds were left on deposit and the banks could lend them in the market at a substantial margin of profit. More recently small corporations and out-of-town banks are taking those profits themselves.

Profits Getting Away.

One of the keenest observers in Wall Street comments on the banks' loan attitude as follows: "While few would go so far as to question the disinterestedness of the banks in their movement to curtail collateral loans made for account of corporations and others, ostensibly because the growth of such loans menaces the stability of the money market, a few brokers have pointed out that some banks might not have lost sight of the fact that growth in volume of loans made for others has caused a reduction in banking profits. Until a few years ago only the largest corporations placed part of their surplus funds in the call money market, and not a large proportion of out-of-town banks took advantage of the collateral loan market for their surplus funds."

The Federal Trade Commission has filed application with United States Circuit Court of Appeals for Second district of New York City for enforcement of the commission's orders of July 8, 1927, prohibiting block booking of motion picture films by Paramount-Famous-Lasky Corporation. Expect Tonnage Increase.

It is considered likely that another increase in unfilled orders will be reported by the United States Steel Corporation as of July 31 although the gain is not expected to approach the increase of 220,187 tons reported for June. During the greater part of last month the daily shipments were in excess of incoming business, but there was a change in the last few days and new contracts then were greater than deliveries. This, coupled with the fact that adjustments are likely at the end of the month which should add some tonnage to the books, is expected to make another increase possible. Highest estimate now heard is that the gain may reach 100,000 tons, with most predictions ranging between 50,000 and 80,000 tons. Such a showing would be considered favorable by authorities in the corporation, because up to a few days ago it was generally agreed that reduction in orders was to be expected.

The daily average output was 233,200,000 kilowatt hours, nearly 1 ½ larger than the average for May, 1928. Production for the first half of 1928 increased about 7½ per cent over the first half of 1927. Production of electricity by water power was 44 per cent of the total, or 3,085,173,000 kilowatt hours, a new high record and an increase of 22 per cent over June, 1927. For the first half of 1928 electricity output by water power was 14¼ per cent greater than in the same 1927 period.

Cotton Market Strong.

An active covering movement sent the cotton market up about $1 per bale early in the day, when there was less pressure to sell and what appeared to be some short covering. Reports by a Texas publication showing an average abandonment of acreage in that state of 7 per cent and the appearance of leaf worms, attracted some attention, and it was thought that the technical position of the market had been materially strengthened by the recent heavy selling.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—There was no change in the raw sugar market today. Sales reported included 14,000 bags of Philippines, due August 12th at 4.05c, a decline of 1-32c, but later 7,000 bags of Cuban from store and 28,000 bags of Porto Rican for prompt shipment sold at 4.11c, all to local refiners.

Under a renewal of September liquidation and European hedge selling of new crop deliveries, raw sugar futures opened at declines of 1 to 4 points. The foreign selling was believed to reflect a more optimistic view of weather conditions abroad, but with refiners showing more interest in the spot market, there was a disposition on the part of shorts to cover and prices rallied and at midday were 1 to 2 points net lower.

As announced yesterday all refiners advanced their list quotations at the opening to the basis of 5.85c for fine granulated. New buying was light.

PITTSBURGH PLATE GLASS FIRM ON SPLIT-UP PLANS

Prices slipped back a little in the early trading on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, with Lone Star Gas receding to 52, the lowest for the current movement, in reflection of a lower opening on the shares in the New York curb market.

Several hundred shares were handled here at the 52-figure but as the price in New York firmed up shortly after the start, there was sufficient support buying to prevent the stock selling below that figure on the local board. Reason for the softer tone displayed by Lone Star the past few days is probably due to the rather widespread rumors that the general market is facing further correction on the downward side and that all stocks will follow the main trend. This correction theory has a large following apparently but it is also true that there is some very daring bull maneuvering, especially in the high-priced issues such as Atlantic, the mail orders stocks and others.

Standard Sanitary dropped back a half point to 37, the bottom price on this issue for some time, but there was not much of the stock sold. Follansbee Brothers preferred was unchanged at 95, as was McKinney Manufacturing at 13.

Announcement of a four-for-one splitup and a 10 per cent stock dividend on Pittsburgh Plate Glass strengthened the market for that issue. Sales were recorded at 238 before the news was announced, but the "bid" price immediately moved up to 240 with no stock offered. The last previous close on Pittsburgh Plate was 241.

The last hour uncovered the real situation in Plate Glass, when orders coming into the market as a result of the capital announcement, forced the bids up a point between jumps with no stock available until buyers were willing to pay 245, the highest price on the shares this year. Subsequently there was another jump of 5 points to 250.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—All grains underwent an early setback in price today. Selling which accompanied the downturns was owing more or less to declines in wheat quotations at Liverpool and to rains in Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas beneficial for corn. After opening ¼c to ⅝c off, Chicago wheat values continued to sag. Corn started 3⅜c higher to ⅝c higher and subsequently showed a drop all around. Oats were easy. Provisions also had a downward trend.

At noon wheat was ¾ to 1¼c net lower and corn 1⅜ to 2⅝c down.

Houses with connections northwest were conspicuous today on the selling side of the wheat market. Meanwhile, in addition to declines in Liverpool wheat quotations, crop reports were also in favor of sellers. Canadian advices especially showed an auspicious outlook, with news that preparations were in progress for an early harvest, that cutting in Manitoba would commence within 10 days and would be only a few days later in Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Bumper prospects for corn yield were reported today as having been materially increased by timely rains last night. In particular, some sections of Iowa sent word that the crop is now practically perfect. Besides, arrivals of corn in Chicago today were somewhat larger, 160 cars, and buying support for the market appeared at times to be less aggressive than has been the rule of late.

Ninety seconds is the average.

But most out-of-town calls, up to forty or fifty miles away, go through instantly—just like local calls. You don't even hang up your receiver.

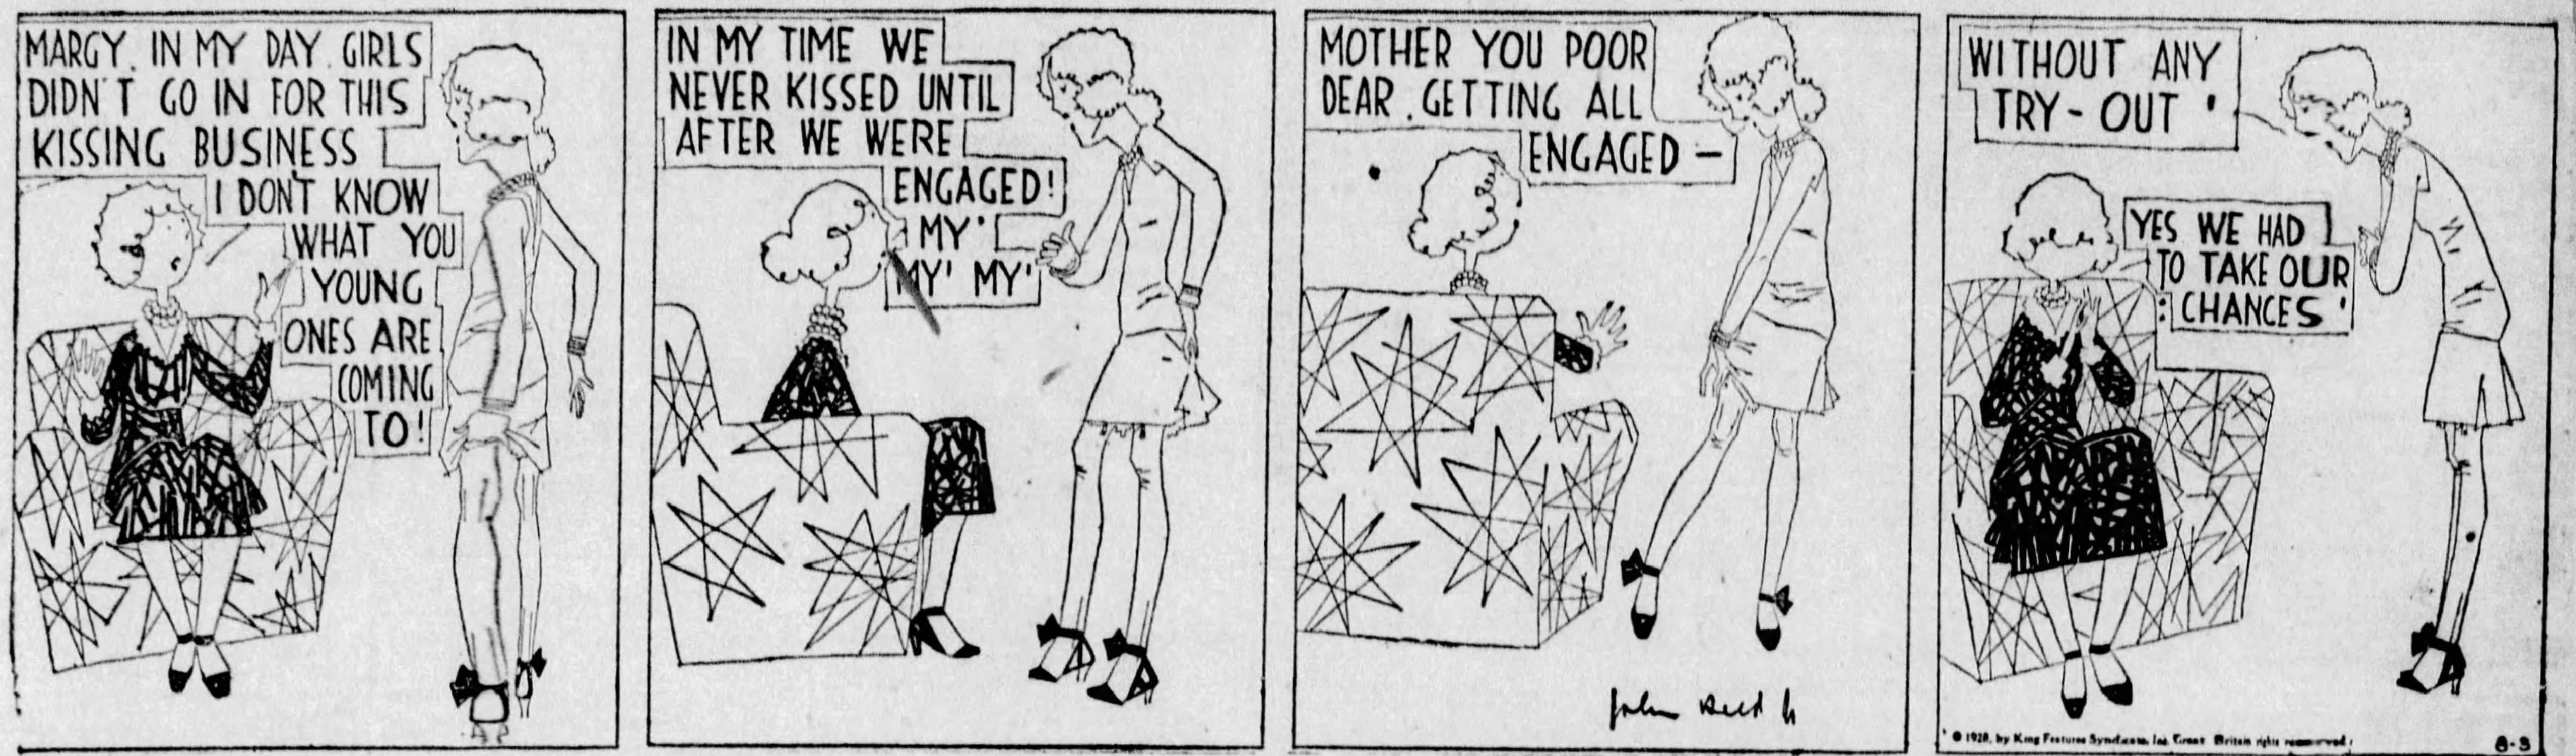
Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl -:- Story by Lloyd Mayer -:- By John Held, Jr.



MARGY, IN MY DAY GIRLS DIDN'T GO IN FOR THIS KISSING BUSINESS
I DON'T KNOW WHAT YOU YOUNG ONES ARE COMING TO!
IN MY TIME WE NEVER KISSED UNTIL AFTER WE WERE ENGAGED!
MY' MY' MY'
MOTHER YOU POOR DEAR, GETTING ALL ENGAGED — WITHOUT ANY TRY-OUT '
YES WE HAD TO TAKE OUR CHANCES '

"My dear, I'm ALL-of-a-grope-and-FUMBle, no less! I mean MOTHer BAFfles me at this point because I endeavor VIVidly to underSTAND her VIEWpoint, my dear, but it's POSitively perVERted because I mean she's such a deFUNCT mid-VicTORian BAG, do you know what I mean? F'r instance EV'ry other MINute she begins LECturing me about NECKing among the YOUNGer generAtion, my dear, which she thinks is SIMply TERrible because I mean she says that in HER time nobody ever NECKED each other until they were enGAGED—can you BEAR it, my dear? And I mean she was simply HORrified when I incinerated that idea was pretty SMALL-time—getting enGAGED without any TRY-out—because I mean the idea of inDULGing in elimiNAtion trials prior to entering the NUPtial MARathon simply apPALLED her, which is so ABs'lutely riDIC, my dear, because I mean before you EAT anything strange you naturally TRY it and see if you LIKE it and I HONestly think it's only SENsible to apply the same PRINciple to these odd oafs who are madly trying to MARry you, do you know what I mean? But MOTHer's quaint idea that you ought to take a CHANCE ACtually seems to me FAR more WILD than this TENtative MUGging business because, my dear, a girl in those days would have to run the risk of getting engaged to some inGEnious benny who'd had so little exPErience it wouldn't mean a THING, do you know what I mean?"

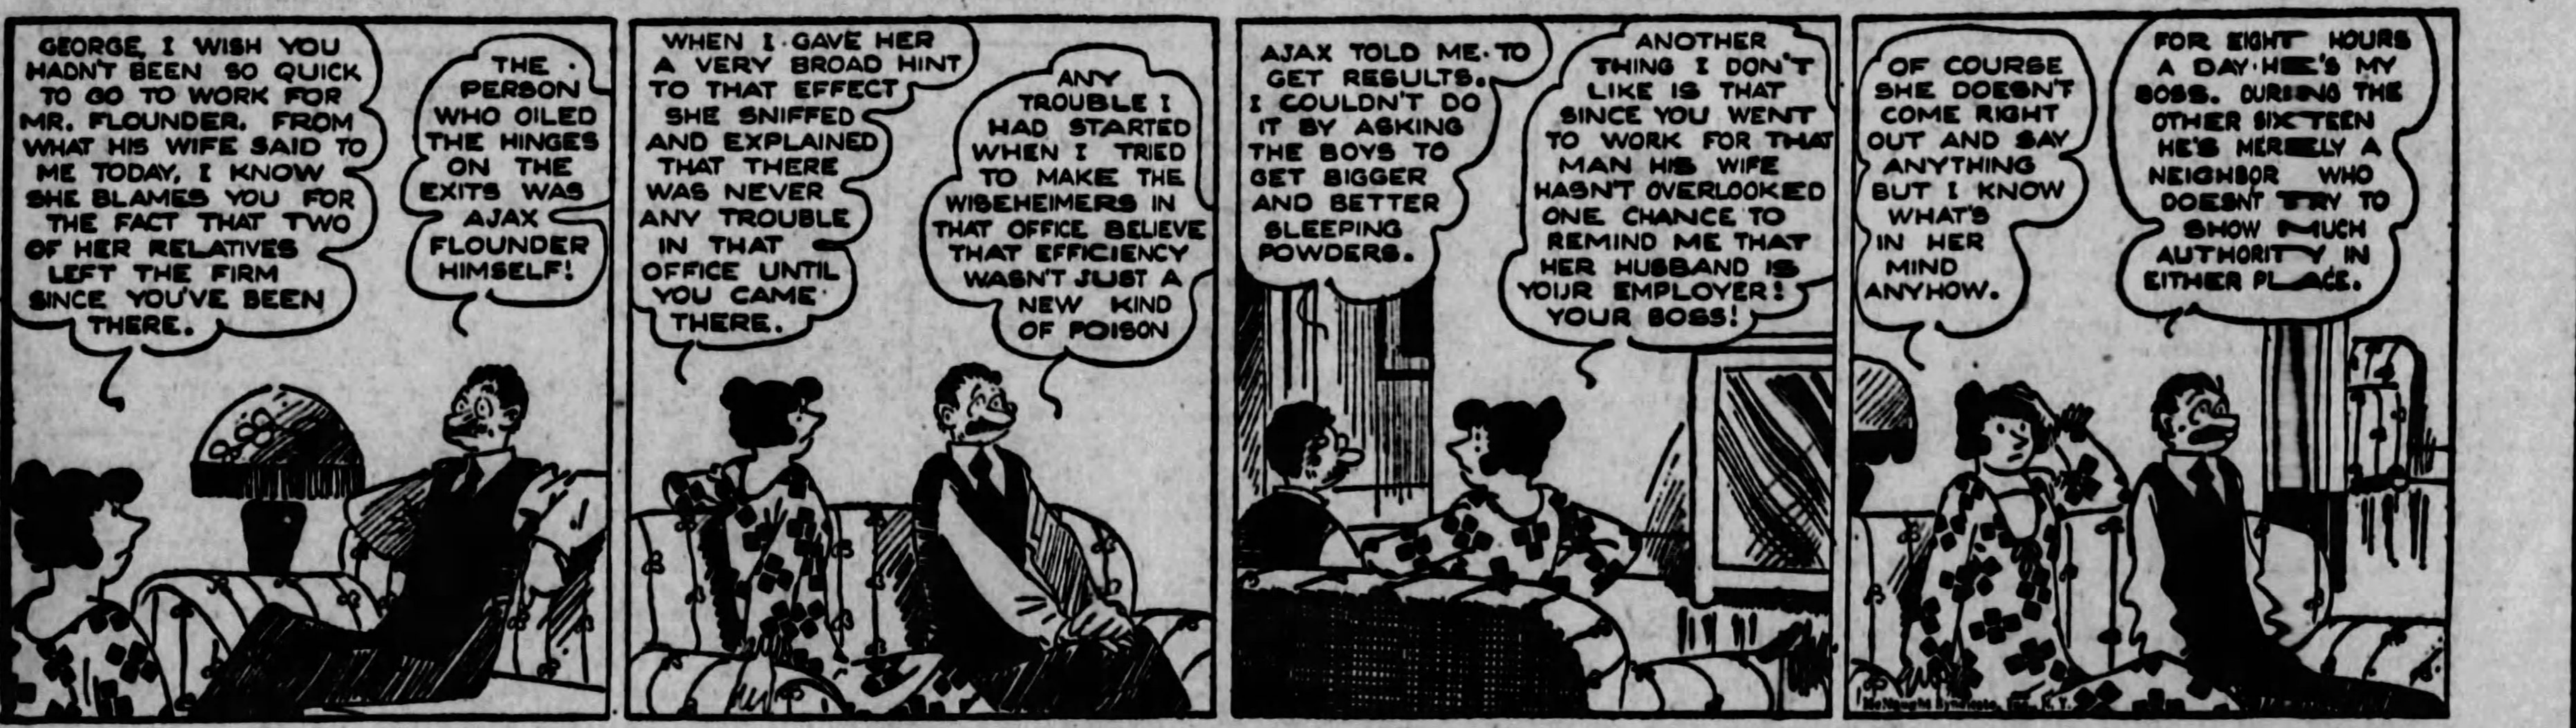
Regrets



GEORGE, I WISH YOU HADN'T BEEN SO QUICK TO GO TO WORK FOR MR. FLOUNDER. FROM WHAT HIS WIFE SAID TO ME TODAY, I KNOW SHE BLAMES YOU FOR THE FACT THAT TWO OF HER RELATIVES LEFT THE FIRM SINCE YOU'VE BEEN THERE.
THE PERSON WHO OILED THE HINGES ON THE EXITS WAS AJAX FLOUNDER HIMSELF!
WHEN I GAVE HER A VERY BROAD HINT TO THAT EFFECT SHE SNIFFED AND EXPLAINED THAT THERE WAS NEVER ANY TROUBLE IN THAT OFFICE UNTIL YOU CAME THERE.
ANY TROUBLE I HAD STARTED WHEN I TRIED TO MAKE THE WISEHEIMERS IN THAT OFFICE BELIEVE THAT EFFICIENCY WASN'T JUST A NEW KIND OF POISON
AJAX TOLD ME TO GET RESULTS. I COULDN'T DO IT BY ASKING THE BOYS TO GET BIGGER AND BETTER SLEEPING POWDERS.
ANOTHER THING I DON'T LIKE IS THAT SINCE YOU WENT TO WORK FOR THAT MAN HIS WIFE HASN'T OVERLOOKED ONE CHANCE TO REMIND ME THAT HER HUSBAND IS YOUR EMPLOYER! YOUR BOSS!
OF COURSE SHE DOESN'T COME RIGHT OUT AND SAY ANYTHING BUT I KNOW WHAT'S IN HER MIND ANYHOW.
FOR EIGHT HOURS A DAY HE'S MY BOSS. DURING THE OTHER SIXTEEN HE'S MERELY A NEIGHBOR WHO DOESN'T TRY TO SHOW MUCH AUTHORITY IN EITHER PLACE.

I LOOKED DOWN TO THE CORNER AND DIDN'T SEE HIM ANYWHERE—MAYBE HE'S WALKING AROUND THE BLOCK
THIS IS A FUNNY TIME TO TAKE A WALK WHEN I TOLD HIM TO HURRY BACK
I SAID GO TO BED AND NOT ANOTHER WORD!

FAMOUS LAST WORDS

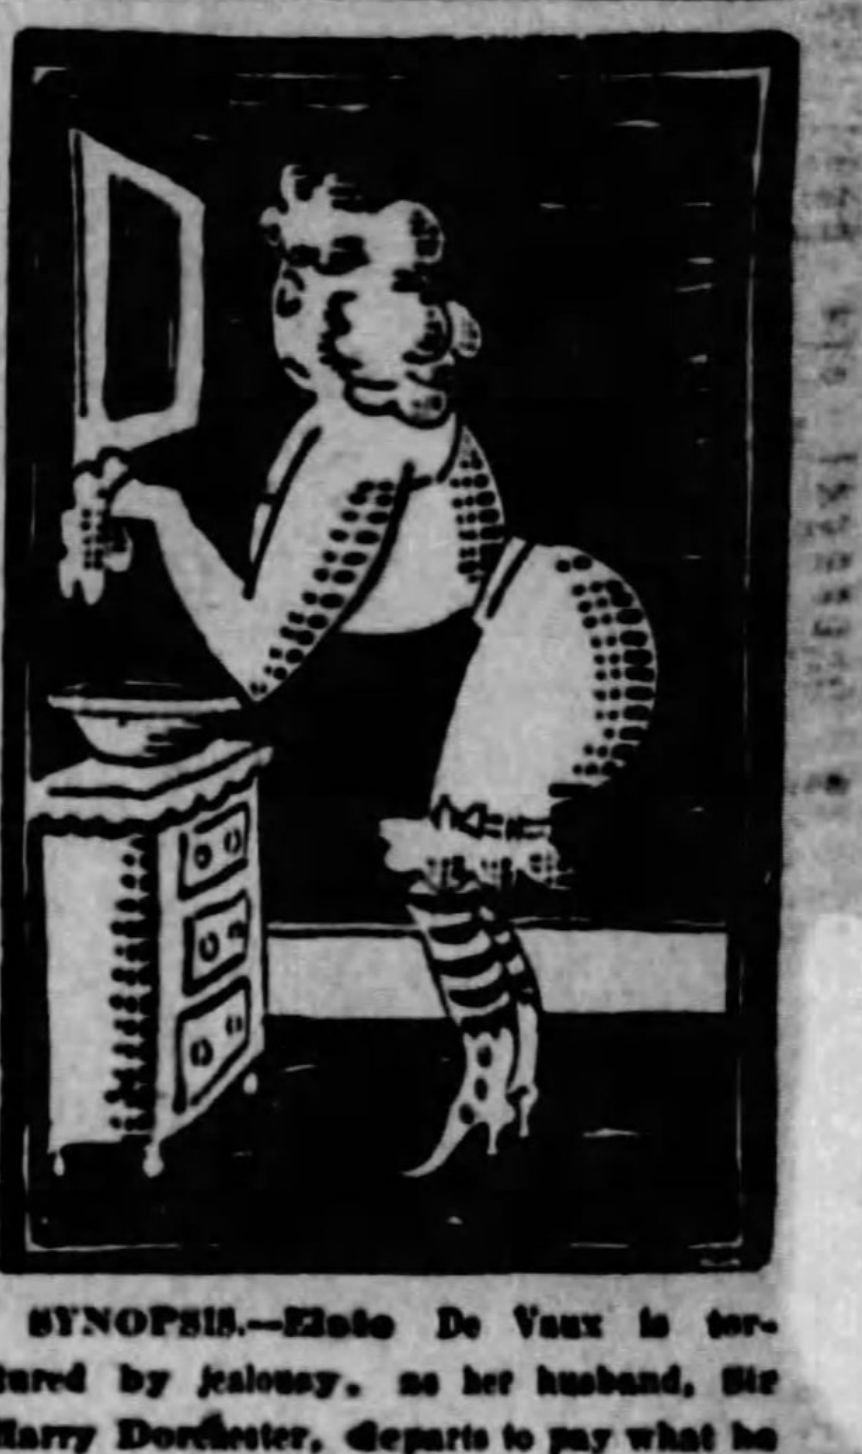
"LONDON SOCIETY"

First Time Published Since 1869.



SYNOPSIS.—Elsie De Vaux is tortured by jealousy, as her husband, Sir Harry Dorchester, departs to pay what he declares is merely a social call on his old sweetheart, Miss ———, who is a stranger in London.

"THE MISTAKE OF A LIFETIME"

OH, how slowly the hours dragged as Elsie gave herself up to jealous self-torture! Harry must not see her thus—no. She rose and bathed her eyes and tried to busy herself embroidering the tiny garment.

When Harry returned that evening he sat opposite his wife at the tea table and was quite convinced he could repeat his social call to Miss ——— without giving his wife a single heart-pang.

Poor, proud Elsie!—Harry does not know how you long to throw your arms about his neck and say, "Oh, never look upon those bright eyes again, dear Harry! Be mine—mine only!"

No—he didn't know that! The spell had begun to work—he was blinded.

Suburban Water Rate

Situation an Argument for Metropolitan Plan.

Council has rejected a compromise rate schedule offered by the South Pittsburgh Water Company in lieu of a prevailing schedule which had been protested. The City of Pittsburgh is one of the customers of the water company. That is, some of its citizens residing in annexed territory in the South Hills are served by the South Pittsburgh Water Company, the rates of which are greatly in excess of those charged by the city.

The domestic rate for metered water served by the city is 18 cents per 1,000 gallons. That of the South Pittsburgh Water Company is 34 cents per 1,000 gallons, in addition to which there is a service charge of $2.50 per quarter. That service charge alone is more than the charge for metered water used in an average family occupying a six-room house in the city. In fact it is twice as much as would be charged to a small family thrifty enough to guard against waste of water. So, you see it is small wonder that Council is engaged in a controversy with the South Pittsburgh Water Company about rates.

The situation offers an argument in favor of the metropolitan form of government for cities and boroughs of the county. Under it the water problems as well as others of a similar nature would be those of an entire community such as that embracing Pittsburgh and its surrounding boroughs.

22 Billion Good Acts

To Infinity Big Figures Are Small.

The Rt. Rev. John J. Dunn will carry to the Pope as a tribute from the faithful in America, "a bouquet" in the shape of a book, beautifully bound, enumerating 22,145,089,361 acts of devotion, including masses said and heard, holy and spiritual communions, benedictions, etc.

The "practical agnostic" may question the possibility of keeping track of more than 22,000,000,000 devout acts. But figures that amaze men are insignificant, to infinity. There are 2[illegible],000,000,000 atoms in the corner of your eye, each one a little solar system. "Laugh that off," as modern youth would say.

WHY Would Her Pictures Fail in America?

MISS MONICA LINDEN, VERY SATISFYING BRITISH MOVIE ARTIST. BUT—

The British admire her and cheer up when she languidly [illegible] out on the so-caled "silver screen."

How is it that British beauty such as this fails to score in pictures HERE IN AMERICA?

What is MISSING in this lady that you find in 10,000 little girls gathered into Hollywood from all points of the American compass?

The British girl has beauty, goodness, morality, undoubtedly, good shape, substance, talent and eyes that could keep Byron writing for a week.

How do you explain the fact that a 90-pound girl from [illegible], with no particular ancestor back of her, and no early environment more exciting than a cornfield, can eclipse this lady and walk away with the gate receipts? Very puzzling.

It puzzled Britishers, and this nice British girl even more than it does us. Perhaps you can answer the problem. WHY IS IT?

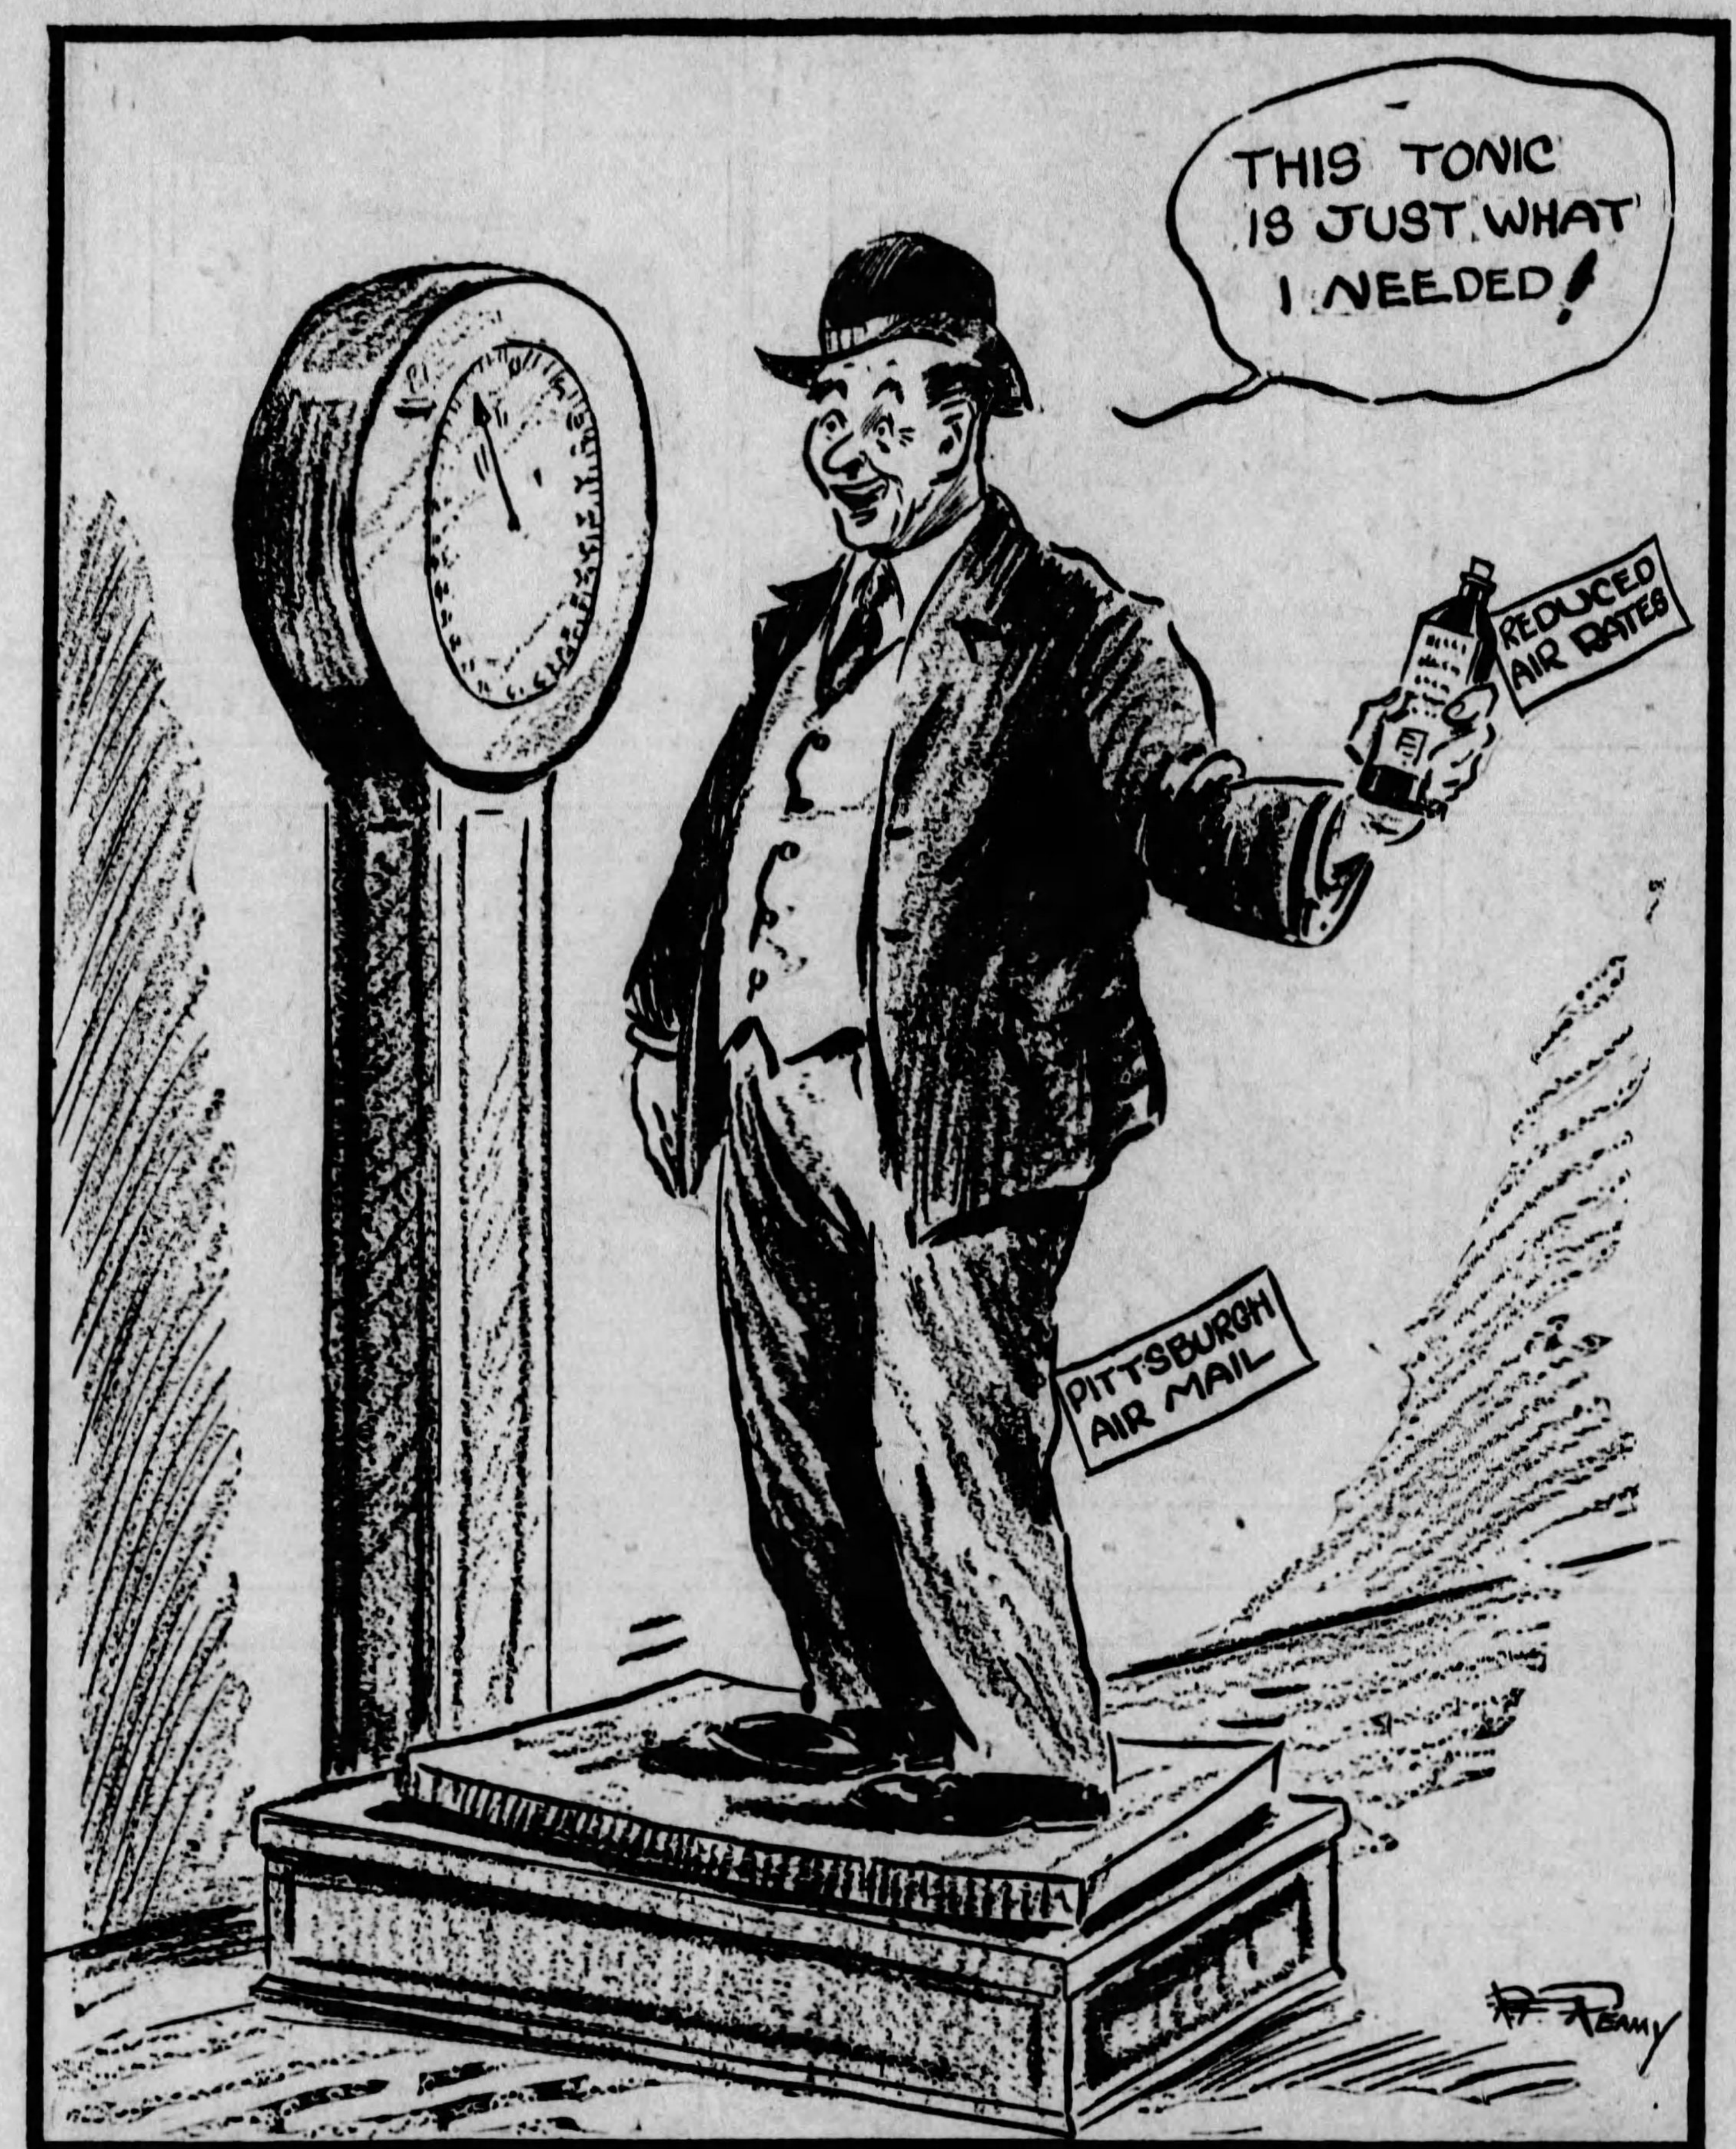
GAINING WEIGHT



Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Katydid a Master Artist

THERE seems to be a general opinion among entomologists that the insects are, prospectively, man's most dangerous rivals, and common experience indicates that these minute but multitudinous foes are, to say the least, holding their own in the struggle, if not actually gaining ground.

Are they also preparing an anvil chorus in celebration of their expected final victory? One might imagine that such is the case after reading some remarkable statements made by H. A. Allard, of the Department of Agriculture, in a communication to Science.

Remarking that "in the music of man technique has become the big factor, and marvellous progress has been made in this direction alone by the modern masters over the ancients," Mr. Allard goes on to affirm that the larger angular katydid has shown an astonishing specialization in the direction of musical technique, and "has proved himself a master artist with his xylophone."

In this respect, he says, the katydids far excell the crickets, although they have not "somehow hit upon tonality in their music," as the crickets have done. But the angular-winged katydid has specialized in technique" in a manner that makes him a pioneer in his art, at least in his own country."

In order to show what this insect musical wonder has achieved it is necessary to recall the fact that the musical instrument of these insects consists of a "file-vein," which is a thickened ridge on the wing-cover, furnished with parallel bars of chitin, resembling the teeth of a comb. These are set at right angles to the file-vein.

"An almost universal technique among the crickets and katydids is to draw the scraper entirely across this music-file one or more times to produce a note. In the single chirp of the cricket or the intermittent rasp of many katydids, an extremely rapid back-and-forth movement several times delivered produces the sound. The quaver of the chicket-chirp is due to these alternate wing-strokes. In this manipulation all the teeth of the file-vein are used practically simultaneously. The larger angular-winged katydid, however, has somehow gone far beyond this and has learned to produce a long, slow crepitation of thirty or forty or more clicks, making use of the individual teeth or perhaps sometimes slipping over two or more teeth. The scraper is slowly moved with nice adjustment and precision over the individual teeth in a gradual closing movement of the wings to produce the long series of individual clicks characteristic of the 'song' of this species. This katydid not only makes use of this specialized technique, but it has in addition an intermittent zip, produced by striking all the teeth with one quick draw of the scraper."

Mr. Allard interestingly philosophizes on the way the katydid developed this new technique. "Once the chitinous xylophone came into being on its wing covers," he says, "once the scraper began to touch the bars and produce a rasp, potentialities were ahead. In case of the intermittent rasp, or zip, one quick closing draw produced the note. Slowing down this closing draw was the next step, and some weird prescience of life has in some manner taught the katydid to do just this."

Some will see a faint glimpse of dawning intelligence and power of choice in this "weird prescience," and others will see, or pretend to see, only a mechanical response to external stimulus. Anything to show life as unliving!

In Southern Skies

CAPT. JOHN W. FLANAGAN, president of the Andean National Corporation of Toronto, which operates Colombian oil fields, says that in South America travel by air is overshadowing travel by automobile and train.

In that mountainous country planes in a few hours can cover an area which it takes days to traverse by any other method. At the present time German airplanes and German aviators are dominant in Colombia.

The dream of gridironing South America with rail lines, beginning with a Pan-American railroad from here to Cape Horn, may never be realized.

Instead, the immediate prospect is for gridironing the southern continent with air routes. It is a fine field for the energies of our expanding air industry.

What Other Fellow Gives

PEOPLE are pretty much like sheep.

What does the rest want to do.

This is as true in commendable matters as it is in less worthy ones.

Then how important for a community to have some leaders who are real men and women working for the good of the many.

It becomes very noticeable in civic affairs.

Those who have been taught to respect the rights and the privileges of their fellows are quick to come to the front in a helpful spirit.

Others follow those whose opinions and good-will they respect.

Some cannot afford to do as much as the leaders, but if the spirit is right their mite is as much in a get-together meeting for the public good as the larger service the leaders can give.

But there is too much "What did this or that one give?" which signifies that sheep spirit.

Does it really matter what the other fellow does, if it is plain to you that you should help?

Of course, you should not give out of proportion to the need, but you should proportion your benevolences according to your income, not your neighbor's.

Her Garden

HER garden is so gay with bloom always,
Such wealth of loveliness is flaunted there,
It seems the kindliest sunbeams drench its ways,
The gentlest breezes stir its fragrant air.

Her life is like a garden bright with bloom
Where every hour new sweetness meets the gaze,
A plot no snows of winter can entomb,
As fair in autumn as in April days.

And yet, no sweeter air, no warmer light
Than such as fall to all have blessed her flowers,
And all the garden of her life is bright
Because her soul illumines the sunless hours.

Great Passages from the Bible

Faith, Hope, Charity

(I. Corinthians 13; 1-13)

THOUGH I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have no charity, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal.

And though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge; and though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing.

And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing.

Charity suffereth long, and is kind; charity envieth not; charity vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up,

Doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil;

Rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth;

Beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things.

Charity never faileth: but whether there be prophecies, they shall fail; whether there be tongues, they shall cease; whether there be knowledge, it shall vanish away.

For we know in part, and we prophesy in part.

But when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away.

When I was a child, I spake as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child: but when I became a man, I put away childish things.

For now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known.

And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity.

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

A FELLOW is kinda at a disadvantage arguing with a judge, because the judge is up high and can look down on the poor prisoner. And most people get so scared they don't know what they're saying to a judge, anyhow.

So the judge says to this guy: "You're charged with stealing a dozen watches and two emeralds from a jewelry store. How do you plead?"

"I ain't guilty, judge. Honest I ain't guilty."

"Have you got a lawyer?"

"No."

"Can you afford to hire a lawyer!"

"I don't know, judge. Do you suppose he'd get me off if I gave him the two emeralds?"

The Professor's Precaution

THE rather absent-minded professor had called on a friend, and on leaving was horrified to discover that his car had disappeared.

A policeman listened to his tale of woe and made copious notes in a little black book.

"Did you take any precautions against the car being stolen?" he asked presently.

"Well," returned the scholarly one, "I padlocked the wheel."

"Ah," said the officer, "but which wheel?"

Light dawned on the professor.

"My stars!" he gasped. "It was the spare wheel!"

Disillusioned

THE young man who was inclined to fancy himself as a motor engineer had bought a second-hand car and had just completed one or two urgent repairs.

He stepped back and surveyed his handiwork.

"There," he exclaimed, turning to a friend, "you'd never think she was second-hand now, would you?"

His friend cast a speculative glance over the vehicle before replying.

At last he spoke.

"No," he agreed; "it's more like something you'd made yourself."

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Thoughts while strolling: A maid pinning a rose on a policeman. Cowboys from the Liggett ranches. Quite a number are using Argentine co-respondents this season. Those boys who talk in elevators about market winnings. And the inarticulate who can only say "O. K."

Dean Cornwell, a Louisville, Ky., boy, who made good in the city. The hub-bub around a railroad terminal. Bedizened with hotels and pullulating—do you care for that?—with tourists. More signs that you can't do this and you can't do that. Oh, to live with no meddling restrictions and a jug of wine or something or other.

Antiseptic lipsticks. That irritating stride of athletic girls. Military chauffeurs who receive orders with a salute and click of heels and do as they please. A hatless Chinese with horn-rimmed glasses. A little old lady scolds a newsboy for swearing. And he blushes.

The hotels advertised as homelike, where you are known as numbers. Eva Steinmetz, the fashion designer. Cops who ride around in flivvers and always seem hufiy about something. Commercial candor: "We do not sell anything to our customers until we are sold on it ourselves."

Fat women who hold their hands over the dials of weight machines. An alert dignity about New York bank employes. The mournful wail of a crate of bawling calves. Poor little fellers. Over dressed girls chewing gum. Underfed men who pay the bills. Mark Hellenger, the tabloid columnist.

A shepherd dog carrying a canary in a cage. Everybody in society is opening a specialty shop. Whatever became of hoarhound candy? A man with a buggy whip. He'll have a time finding a horse to use it on in this village.

Japs who open those home cooking tea rooms, painted a peacock blue. A store specializing in wind instruments. Butlers who seem horror-stricken if you stop to tie your shoe at their doorsteps. The ever curious crowd around a piano hoisting. But after all a rope does break now and then.

An elegant little neighborhood movie house in the Fabulous Fifties is adopting the elegant manner in French to attract a class clientile. They hang banners of their attractions in French and the ticket seller has a decided French accent. And the pictures are usually terrible.

The king of old shoe savers has been found. He is a New Yorker who could afford a half dozen pairs of new shoes every day. Yet moving from one mansion to be torn down to a $300,000 co-operative apartment it was found he has 316 pairs of old shoes. He is a heavy donor to charity, but is miserly when it comes to parting with discarded boots. There is some inherent kink in almost every man that makes giving old shoes away a distinct personal loss. It has caused more family quarrels than any domestic difference save drink and money. Don't ask me how I know.

Indeed almost all sorts of wearing apparel takes on quality that makes its association pleasant and we part with it with a sigh. The King of Sp[illegible] is said to have a pair of house slippers that are left over from his school days and takes them with him wherever he goes. Every man has something or other of a similar nature he clings to in this fashion. And if somebody writes me "Who cares?" I won't blame them.

The most embarrassing incident in a life of embarrassment took place on a street corner this morning. A man I had not seen in a number of years stopped to shake hands. He looked prosperous, and I commented. But in the midst of his grandiose story of success another man came up and berated him soundly for failing to return $20 he had borrowed five weeks ago. I never longed so for a window to lean out.

Milk

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Milk is perhaps the most ideal food for a human being. It is our only food in infancy and a food too little used by adults. It has been called "the perfect food."

It is a food, however, that is hard to keep, for it readily spoils at too great a temperature.

We have preserved all other kinds of foods, we have salted fish, canned vegetables and fruit, canned meat and smoked ham.

In 1851 a man went to England with a meat biscuit he had invented. On the ship on which he traveled there were cows to give fresh milk. At that time most vessels resembled floating barnyards, that is, most vessels that pretended to give human comfort. The inventor observed on his return trip home in the summer that the cows were sea sick, the milk was bad and many babies died.

Coming home he devised a process of drying milk and canning it. After much difficulty the enterprise was successful.

It grew to great proportions during the Civil War, when the government bought the entire output of his factories.

Since then preserved milk has been a boon to all explorers whether in the frozen regions of the North or in darkest Africa.

Herbert Hoover preserved the lives and health of some 1,200,000 Belgian children by condensed milk.

Our own Mr. Strauss has proved himself a public benefactor by supplying pure milk for babies.

Any traveler in Europe is familiar with the dirty milk that is supplied everywhere from milkmen's cans. These have been replaced almost entirely in America by the bottle.

Still about 6,000,000 children in the United States between the ages of two and 14 are undernourished. They are stunted for lack of proper food, usually for lack of milk. The various companies handling milk have done much good by diseminating knowledge as to the value of pure milk. Pure milk has as much to do with preventing infant mortality as any other one thing. In China, years ago, when they had plenty of cows, they created a great civilization, now that they have cut down their forests and eaten their cows they kill as many babies as they raise. You cannot bring up a child, with success, on tea.

Those health departments in the various cities which are insisting on pure milk and the companies which owe their success to the distribution of pure milk, deserve all encouragement. Nothing could be of more importance to the public health than the maintenance of a supply of pure milk.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

"HAVE you seen 'Strange Interlude?' " asked a lady. "Yes," said her friend. "I have, and the strange interlude is the hour for dinner."

At "the Three Musketeers" the other night, a white Angora cat almost stopped the show.

Cardinal Richelieu, in handsome red robes, held the white Angora on his lap. Presently, while making an important speech he arose and walked to the front of the stage. The cat leaned forward, non-chalantly began licking his paw, and thoroughly washed his pretty white face. A little shake from the cardinal didn't bother him at all; he kept right on "dolling up."

He took the act away from the talent on the stage. No question about that, and while the audience laughed right heartily, the animal was handed to a flunkey who accomplished his exit.

Even allowing four to a piano, and five to the baby grands, New York has much too many piano legs. Denver has even more, proportionally, but walking up hill does it.

A lady was seeing Boston.

"I wonder, do they ever think of making any of the streets wider?" she asked, innocently.

The man who had become a Bostonian gave her a dark look and said: "Just ask 'em and see what happens to you! Why, if anybody even suggested it they would make them narrower."

"We are the victims of our fears," said a wise lady to a worrying friend.

"Yes," said the worrier. "I know it. The things I worry about, though, never happen, and I am wondering, if I worried about everything, if I could just think about everything that MIGHT happen and worry about it, if NOTHING ever would happen?"

The first lady took another cup of strong coffee.

A New York woman with plenty of money went to Paris to shop. She came home, comfortable in the thought that she would show her friends what was what "on the other side."

The day after she got back she walked along Fifth avenue, and in the shop windows saw all of the choice things she had gone to Europe to buy.

See America first!

I thought a pretty young telephone operator in a New York apartment house was rather disagreeable and I wondered what she expected to get acting that way.

Next day I found out that she had a mother and a small child to support, and her husband deserted her. She gets a salary of $50 a month.

SHE should laugh merrily all day! I wonder if I could?
